Today

Half a Day in Mexico.
Half in San Diego.
1,000 Eyes Too Few.
Lindbergh's New Glider.

—By ARTHUR BRISBANE—

AGUA CALIENTE, Mexico, March 27.

IN THIS part of the world, and just north, across the border, in San Diego, U. S. A., they show and tell you more interesting things than 1,000 eyes and 1,000 ears could see and hear, adequately.

On this new and amazingly successful resort, created almost over night just south of the United States border, many millions have been spent to create conditions that will compete with anything in Europe.

WHATEVER your ideas of horse - racing and other amusements, with betting attached, you find comfort in the fact that this place will keep American money in America. Wide roads, bus and air lines enable the American who feels cramped by prohibition and other restrictions, to cast them off, here.

It is not necessary to go to Europe, spending all his income there.

SIXTEEN miles from San Diego, one of America's most beautiful cities, the American finds here everything that he would find at Deauville, Monte Carlo, Nice or any resort in Europe. The place is well managed, well policed, well patronized. Ask Foxhall Keene, who has just gone by, looking younger than ever.

This place is extraordinarily beautiful, with a perfect hotel, golf, all sports, hot sulphur and mud baths, famous in Aztec days and the visitor is in Old Mexico, a land as foreign to him and as fascinating as though he were in Spain, yet near to his own land, no ocean to cross.

BELOW this place, the peninsula of Southern California, property of Mexico, stretches for 1,000 miles. The wealth of that peninsula cannot be exaggerated. Its beauty cannot be described.

High rock walls, going straight down to the ocean, innumerable sheltered coves, with white sand beaches, great flocks of sheep on the round green hills, herds of seals, ploughing through the water, close to shore, quail innumerable, a wonderful empire.

SPEND six hours driving along that Mexican-Pacific shore, and in comparison, the Mediterranean Riviera, with which you have been familiar all your life, is like an indoor golf course compared with the real game.

ONE HUNDRED AND TWENTY miles, by air, southeast of this spot, is one of the finest hunting grounds in the world.

In less than two hours a plane lands you on the level of a desert, called the Valle Trinidad. From that desert floor the Saint Peter Martyr Mountain rises eleven thousand feet. Dewey was first to measure its height, as a young ensign.

On that mountain you find one of the world's few remaining natural game preserves, mountain sheep, mule deer, other kinds of deer, wild birds of all kinds, streams full of trout.

IF YOUR mind craves romance, Mexico will supply it. This is a picturesque people, wondering at our Nordic foolishness, our drinking and our gagging, but courteous, obliging, willing to let us be as foolish as we choose.

Looking at the blue water of the Bay of San Quentin, your imaginations call back the old British ships and captains, Pirates, in plain English, lurking there in wait or Spanish treasure vessels, on their way from the Philippines around the Horn.

ENGLAND no longer licenses pirates in the name of Queen Elizabeth. But Britons still reach out for treasure.

On this peninsula is a gigantic iron ore deposit, that could supply steel to duplicate every one of our skyscrapers, many times over.

Sir Allen Spence Thomas, who lives at Cardiff, in Wales, is head of a British company that owns that. You ask Sir Allen's son when they will develop that wealth. "Oh, no hurry. We get very cheap ore now from Norway. We shall need this Mexican iron later, in fifty, or perhaps 100 years."

The second great iron deposit in Mexico is said to be owned by United States Steel. A great iron mountain near Mexico City has not yet been acquired by Nordic energy. Opportunity there.

IT IS said that President Storey, of the Santa Fe, due in San Diego tomorrow, plans to extend his railroad down this peninsula.

If American money and industrial efficiency could cooperate with Mexico in developing this territory, wealth beyond any dream would result, and the Mexican nation would be enriched by many billions.

A SHORT motor drive and the scene changes to San Diego. On the Emerald Hills golf course, outside the city, at 3 o'clock yesterday afternoon, three 17-year-old San Diego high school boys tried out their amphibian flier, first made to land on water. W. L. Van Dusen, experienced pilot, took off and landed the plane quietly on a small pond; then one of the high school boys repeated the feat. The three boys, deserving credit, are Bill Dickinson, Allan Essery and Joe Thurston.

AN HOUR later, on the Lindbergh Field, where Lindbergh started his immortal flight, Frank Hawks gave an exhibition of gliding, towed by a heavier-than-air plane.

Lieut. Norman Goddard, a good flier, was recently killed

3—Joseph G. Armstrong, Western Pennsylvania manager for Davis-Brown ticket, will go to Philadelphia to help draft platform.

4—James F Malone slated to be county manager and Joseph N. Mackrell, manager of nearby counties, for Davis-Brown ticket, under Commissioner Armstrong.

PRISON MUTINY QUELLED BY MILITIA

20 Convicts in Missouri Penitentiary Injured as Guards Club, Use Gas

JEFFERSON CITY, Mo., March 27.—(AP.)—Tear gas bombs and clubs were used to rout 750 convicts from the dining hall of the Missouri Penitentiary this afternoon and quell a second mutinous outbreak in as many days.

About 20 prisoners were injured in the clash with prison guards and a company of Missouri National Guardsmen.

The convicts, the same group that staged a rebellion in the dining hall yesterday by refusing to eat stew and demanding "fried meat," had defied prison authorities for 30 minutes before they were routed, and were driven out only after Warden Leslie Rudolph had warned them that if they did not obey peacefully force would be used.

The injured men, none of whom was believed seriously hurt, were taken to the prison hospital and the others were marched to their cells.

The convicts were dislodged with "dead" tear bombs containing no gas which were hurled into the dining hall to frighten them, but when they started rioting the guardsmen brought their clubs into action.

Windows in the dining hall were smashed and missiles were hurled, but the prisoners were not armed and the skirmish was short lived.

While it was under way a force of National Guardsmen were stationed at one end of the stockade with machine guns trained on the hall but not a single shot was fired.

COME HOME!

CHARLES G. DAWES, AMERICAN AMBASSADOR, To Great Britain and Member of the American Delegation to the London Naval Conference:

Why not send the American delegation home, Mr. Ambassador, now that your practical American mind has seen the fizzle of this latest attempt to set off the fireworks of well-meaning American pacifism under the drenching downpour of realism in a war-minded European world?

It is with particular satisfaction, Sir, that the American people have contemplated your presence on an American delegation headed by an old League of Nations man, Henry L. Stimson.

Stimson is widely suspected of a Wilsonian itch to meddle in the quarrels of all the world ever since he protruded his uninvited nose into the Russo-Chinese controversy—and withdrew it smarting from a stiff and well-deserved punch.

It is a fortunate thing, indeed, that Stimson is not seconded by an American Ambassador to Great Britain of the stripe of Walter Hines Page.

The American people have not forgotten Page's disloyalty to his country. They have not forgotten Page's treasonable disclosure to Sir Edward Grey of the President's confidential messages concerning maintenance of American neutrality in the World War. They have not forgotten Page's confessed plotting with the British government—a plot that was unfortunately successful—to bring us into the war on the side of the Allies.

The people trust you, Gen. Dawes, as an envoy of another type, as a man of the sound Middle West, as an American acquainted with the true facts of this World War business, as an American on guard against the ceaseless intrigues of Europe to inveigle us into paying the costs of their last fight and participating in their future conflicts, and as a soldier aware alike of the horrors of war, the dangers of defenselessness, and the perils of European alliances.

WE SHOULD LIKE YOU TO BOOK PASSAGE FOR YOUR FELLOW DELEGATES TO COME HOME, MR. AMBASSADOR, ON SOME ONE OF THE GOOD AMERICAN SHIPS SAILING FROM LONDON OR SOUTHAMPTON IN THE NEXT WEEK.

Thereafter, the country feels that it can count on you to do two things:

First, recognize the stern present reality of our unsatisfactory and unequal naval position with relation to a tory-minded England that is still intent on dominating the world, including the United States, and

Second, work for the FUTURE IDEAL of a satisfactory and equal partnership between the United States and the English-speaking members of the British empire, BANDED TOGETHER TO KEEP THE PEACE OF THE WORLD.

The record of the last 10 years seems sadly to show that England is not yet ready for this partnership.

We have witnessed her statesmen in 1922 trick us into a fake battleship disarmament conference, in which AMERICA ALONE DID THE DISARMING.

We have discovered that, while we pursued a naval building holiday since that time, Great Britain built a fleet OF 400,000 TONS OF POWERFUL MODERN CRUISERS.

We have experienced the protests of the British government against our desire to elevate the guns of our remaining ancient battleships so that they could shoot as far as the new British battleships.

We found at the Geneva naval "disarmament conference" of 1927 that the British would agree to cruiser parity ONLY IF WE BUILT THE KIND OF CRUISERS SUITABLE FOR BRITAIN AND NOT FOR OUR NEEDS.

The Hearst papers then exposed a secret Anglo-French naval treaty, directed against the United States, IN WHICH THOSE TWO COUNTRIES AGREED TO STAND TOGETHER AGAINST THE KIND OF CRUISERS THE AMERICAN NAVY HAS DECLARED IT REQUIRES FOR AMERICAN DEFENSE.

We have found that the Kellogg-Briand Pact, originated by M. Briand, is no deterrent of wars.

On the contrary, Europe says, the pact must be "implemented" by an agreement on our part TO JOIN EUROPEAN POWERS IN MILITARY MEASURES AGAINST ANYONE THEY VOTE TO BE AN "AGGRESSOR."

We have seen our country, and yours, Gen. Dawes, besmirched with the stigma of making this London naval conference a failure, because we would not join them in a "security pact" in which warlike European nations were made secure at America's sacrifice of peace and independence.

IT IS TIME FOR THE AMERICAN DELEGATION TO COME HOME.

And it is time to stop futile and farcical chattering about disarmament with nations which will not disarm and about naval limitation with nations whose only object is military and naval increase until they reach the ultimate and inevitable climax of another murderous conflict.

IT IS TIME FOR THE AMERICAN DELEGATION TO COME HOME.

Then let the government of the United States and the government of the British Empire discuss the details of that naval parity which both seem to be agreed upon and which may be the one overwhelming influence to maintain the peace of the world and to preserve the white race from self-extinction in universal and suicidal conflict.

BAN STANDS, HIGH COURT DECIDES

Refusal to Act on Illegal Assessment Here Removes Last Hope for Primaries

Thirty-eight thousand persons assessed last fall are ineligible to participate in the May primaries as the result of action of the Pennsylvania Supreme Court which today threw out two appeals from Common Pleas Court decisions because of neglect to file the appeals to the higher court within the proper period.

Chief Justice Robert J. Von Moschzisker ordered the appeals ignored after counsel for the Allegheny County Bar Association, arguing that 38,000 names were illegally on the additional assessment books, indicated that the county solicitor had not filed appeals within the three months allowed by law.

TECHNICALITY INVOLVED

Under one decision by Common Pleas Court, 15,000 names were ordered stricken from the assessment books because the county assessors transmitted the books to the county delinquent tax collector without presenting them to the county controller.

In another appeal the Registration Board's elimination of the name of a taxpayer assessed on the additional books, as sustained by Common Pleas Judges, was involved.

As the authorities pointed out, persons assessed on the additional books may not be assessed legally until the 1930 tax-paying period on May 1.

These taxpayers, it is declared, thereby are disbarred of a vote at the May primaries, since there will be insufficient time to register.

WRIT CLAIMED FOR DELAY

County Solicitor Dithrich stated after the argument that the appeal had been filed in sufficient

PUBLIC BUYING CLOGS 'CHANGE

NEW YORK, March 27.—(INS.)—Public buying demand for the well-known industrial and utility stocks swamped the Stock Exchange today.

Rising quotations for active stocks have finally attracted a "public following," and the huge inrush of buying from scattered sections of the country was reflected in the transfer of numerous large blocks of stock to new owners.

Stock sales reached the 3,000,000-share mark at 2:10 p. m., and the market was headed toward a 5,500,000-share session.

Because of the uninterrupted advance of industrial stock prices in the last three weeks, and the huge volume of profit-taking and speculative selling, the market as a whole made very little headway. The tickers were far behind in recording transactions.

Market reports in detail may be found on the finance pages.

Drops $500,000 Balm Suit Against Tunney

BRIDGEPORT, Conn., March 27.—(AP.)—John S. Fogarty, of Fort Worth, Tex., today withdrew his $500,000 alienation of affection suit against James J. (Gene) Tunney, retired heavyweight boxing champion. The withdrawal was accepted by Judge Edward M. Yeomans at a hearing in Superior Court. Counsel for Tunney, said in court that no monetary settlement had been made in the case.

Special Entry Given Lipton's Shamrocks

NEW YORK, March 27.—(INS.)—A special permit of the Department of Agriculture will be employed today to admit into this country six pots of shamrocks which will be shown at the Cleveland Flower Show. The plants, due to arrive today on the George Washington, were sent to America by Sir Thomas Lipton.

DAGUE IGNORES WIFE, CHILDREN

By AL GOUGH
Staff Correspondent.

NEW CASTLE, Pa., March 27.—Drawn by the presence of his deserted wife and children at the trial of W. Glenn Dague, charged with the slaying of Corp. Brady Paul, a crowd of several hundred, mostly women and girls, packed the courtroom today.

They jammed into the dingy little courtroom for a glimpse of the sandy-haired defendant, his still loyal wife, Mrs. Theresa Dague, who asserted she came to assist her husband because of her marriage vows, and their two children.

Mrs. Dague, sorrowful, kept her head down most of the time while the defendant's gaze avoided her during a recital of the amazing story told by witnesses of the flight with his sweetheart, Irene

MERGER FAILS, EATON HOLDS

YOUNGSTOWN, O., March 27.—(INS.)—The proposed merger of the Youngstown Sheet and Tube Company with the Bethlehem Steel Corporation is defeated, according to Cyrus W. Eaton, Cleveland financier and leader of the anti-merger forces, in a statement to the Chamber of Commerce here today. He cited figures to support his contention.

The figures submitted by Eaton show 510,756 shares for the consolidation; 412,571 shares against it (or definitely agreed not to vote for the plan), and 262,273 shares still undecided.

A total of 395,201 shares opposed is sufficient to block the merger, which will be voted upon by stockholders of Sheet and Tube at a meeting April 8.

Eaton attacked the merger on

Frigid Wave Here to Stay

Weatherman Brotzman today refused to promise immediate relief from the unseasonable cold spell which carried on from yesterday.

State, city and private agencies were trying to make things easier for motorists who found the icy streets dangerous. State snowplows were ordered out on highways; city employes and the bus companies were scattering ashes along boulevards. This was not enough to prevent scores of minor auto collisions.

The mercury was around 27 degrees today after having reached a low of 26 at 9 o'clock last night. Mr. Brotzman expected it to drop possibly as low as 20 tonight.

One inch of snow had fallen before noon and more was expected. The wind, speeding at 24 miles an hour, probably will ease up tonight.

Bell Lands Put Up at Auction

WASHINGTON, Pa., March 27.—John A. Bell's vast coal holdings, known as the Carnegie Coal Company, were offered at auction in the court house corridor here today in foreclosure proceedings brought by holders of the first mortgage bonds. Offered first as a whole, the property brought three bids, of which $6,000,000, that of J. T. M. Stoneroad, chairman of the bondholders' committee, was the highest.

It was then offered in 17 parcels.

The property, comprising 21,265 acres of coal lands in Washington and Allegheny Counties and West Virginia; 4,750 acres of surface lands, eight mines, two docks at Duluth, Minn., and Superior, Wis., and a retail coal yard at St. Paul, Minn., will be offered tomorrow at auction in Wellsburg, W. Va.; on Monday, at Duluth, and on Tuesday at Superior.

The property has been appraised by Samuel A. Taylor, mining engineer, as worth $15,000,000.

PLENARY SESSION CALLED TO DRAFT SECURITY PACT

BARGAINING ON TERMS STARTS

British Firm Against Armed Aid Pledge in Treaty to Protect France and Italy

By HARRY R. FLORY
International News Service.

LONDON, March 27.—Chief delegates to the five-power naval conference today decided to call a plenary session of the parley at 10:30 p. m. next Friday. The decision was reached at an extremely cordial meeting.

It is expected the question of some sort of a security pact for the benefit of the French will be brought into the open at this plenary session.

Foreign affairs experts of France, Italy and Great Britain were busy all day bargaining over France's "price" for reduction of her naval armament demands.

The conference took on a decidedly European tinge as the statesmen, in private session, attempted to work out a pact of mutual guarantee in the Mediterranean, framed in such a manner as to satisfy France's demands for security and at the same time not commit England to too great an extent.

ARMED AID REFUSED

Sir Robert Vansittart, permanent under-secretary at the foreign office, attended the session on behalf of Britain, primed with definite instructions from Prime Minister Ramsay MacDonald to remain adamant in the insistence that the pact must not include a promise of actual military or naval assistance to France or Italy other than that which Britain already is obligated to furnish in accordance with the League of Nations covenant.

Foreign Secretary Arthur Henderson and Foreign Minister Aristide Briand held a long conference at the British foreign office as to what form the pact might take, but the actual details are being left to the experts.

Security Pact Faces Rough Time in Senate

By GEORGE R. HOLMES
International News Service.

WASHINGTON, March 27.—Any political pact that emerges from the London naval conference, whether it be merely consultative or otherwise, is in for microscopic scrutiny and rough sledding in the Senate. A canvass of senatorial opinion today made this crystal clear.

For the first time in weeks, Senate attention was focussed on the London parley today as a result of what appears to be a remarkable about-face on the part of Secretary of State Stimson in agreeing to consider American participation in a political consultative agreement with European powers in return for France's scaling down her tonnage demands.

Fair warning of strong opposition was sounded by Senator George (Dem.), of Georgia, one of the conservative minority members of the Foreign Relations Committee.

After a call at the White House, Senator George said:

"Any consultative pact will meet stuuborn opposition in the Senate. It will be generally regarded as an unwarranted move.

"The Senate, I believe, stands generally with what it understands to be President Hoover's views—against any political pacts at London."

British Protect Salt From Gandhi

BOMBAY, March 27.—(INS.)—Mahatma Gandhi, Independence leader, may find his present march to Jalalpur to manufacture salt a vain effort, according to reports in government circles today.

It was intimated ample precautions had been taken along the seaboard of the Gulf of Cambay, where Gandhi proposes to make salt in defiance of the government monopoly, to prevent any violation of the law.

Gandhi and his followers were at the town of Broach today.

Schroder, whom a jury last week condemned to die in the electric chair. Besides Mrs. Dague, one on on each side, sat Delmar, 8, and her daughter Marlys, 6.

Louis Burke, of Parkersburg, W. Va., was the first witness after the noon recess. He told of seeing Irene park the Pontiac coupe in which she and Dague fled from Wheeling to Parkersburg. He was corroborated by Police Lieut. Al Williams, who recovered the machine and returned it to its owner, a resident of Toledo, O.

State Patrolman William Keisling, of St. Louis, Mo., told of the search being conducted in the Middle West for the Pennsylvania fugitives. The officer testified to an attempt to apprehend Dague and his companion in St. Louis, but said he was bested in a hand-to-hand struggle with Dague.

"He fired point-blank at my heart," Keissling declared, pointing out the defendant in the court room. "I threw my left arm up and the bullet tore through my sleeve. I struggled with him at close quarters, and I was struck on the head after two more shots were fired.

"The next I remember I was lying on the sidewalk and the car was leaving. I fired several shots at the machine, but they got away."

WIFE WATCHES WITNESS

Mrs. Dague looked up at the witness several times during the narration, glancing sidewise at her husband now and then, but Dague kept his eyes to the front, never once looking towards his family.

Deputy Sheriff William Reynold was called at the opening of court today and described the automobile abandoned by the bandits just before they took Ray Horton's car here for the first lap of their getaway. The discarded machine had three bullet holes in the windshield, believed from Paul's gun, who fired from behind a pole after he had been mortally wounded.

ARMS EXPERT TESTIFIES

C. H. Millholland, New Castle civil engineer, followed Reynolds to the stand. He gave measurements and position of bullet marks in the car and explained a survey made at the scene shortly after the shooting.

John Funk, state police ballistic expert, identified bullets found in the car left behind to have come from Paul's gun.

State Trooper James Brooks testified to bringing Irene's 4-year-old son, Donnie, to New Castle from the home of relatives in Bellaire, O. Albert McGailly, Wheeling motorcycle patrolman, testified to recovering Horton's car in a garage in Wheeling. Where it had been placed by Dague and Irene, fleeing west.

Dague's aged father, A. L. Dague, of Dallas, W. Va., was in court for a time yesterday afternoon, but he left before court adjourned and up until midnight had not been located in New Castle. It is understood he is registered at one of the local hotels under an assumed name.

Country School Closed as Wife Aids Dague

WHEELING, W. Va., March 27.—The little one-room rural school at Viola, Marshall County, was closed today, its steps covered with snow. The teacher, Mrs. Theresa Dague, with her two children, who are among her pupils, is at New Castle attending the trial of her husband, W. Glenn Dague, for the murder of Corp. Brady Paul. She is expected to testify in his behalf. Her Brother, Ray Hess, also is in New Castle in an effort to help save Dague from the electric chair.

Woman Offers Help Of Darrow to Irene

WASHINGTON, March 27.—(AP.)—Mrs. Ella J. Mountz, wealthy coal operator of Smithmill, Pa., announced here today she had offered to enlist the services of Clarence Darrow in the defense of Mrs. Irene Schroeder, who was found guilty last week at New Castle of first degree murder in the slaying of Corp. Brady Paul, of the state highway patrol.

NEW CASTLE, Pa., March 27.—(AP.)—Charles J. Margiotti, special prosecutor in the trial of Irene Schroeder, said that Mrs. Ella J. Mountz, wealthy Smithmill (Pa.) woman, had sought to persuade him to quit the prosecution of Mrs. Schroeder and that he had been offered a large amount of money if he would defend the woman.

650 Put to Work At Kolster Plant

NEWARK, N. J., March 27.—(AP.)—Receivers of the Kolster Radio Corporation, which was declared bankrupt and suddenly closed several months ago, today reopened the plant at Thomas street and Mt. Pleasant avenue with 650 men at work.

Receivers said they may employ another 400 men to fill an order for 15,000 radio sets. They promised at least three months' work for the men.

DRY, ANTI-DRY LOBBIES HIT

WASHINGTON, March 27.—(AP.)—An investigation of dry and anti-dry organizations is planned by the Senate lobby committee.

Chairman Caraway of the committee said today the inquiry probably would begin as soon as the investigation into persons and organizations interested in Muscle Shoals was completed — probably next Tuesday.

Caraway said the first witness in the prohibition inquiry would be Representative Tinkham (Rep.), of Massachusetts, who has asked to be heard.

Definite plans have not been completed, but Caraway said the inquiry in all probability would embrace the Anti-Saloon League and the Association Against the Prohibition Amendment.

Meanwhile, a report on Muscle Shoals is being prepared by the committee. Caraway said it would "present the facts" on the activities of Claudius H. Huston, chairman of the Republican National Committee, as a shoals lobbyist.

The committee, he added, had no intention of introducing a resolution of censure against Huston.

Negro Poet's Wife Gets Paris Divorce

PARIS, March 27.—(AP.)—Nina Yolande Dubois Cullen was granted a divorce today from Countee Cullen, Negro poet. She is the daughter of William Dubois, Negro writer and director of the publications for the National Association for Advancement of Colored People. They were married in Brooklyn April 9, 1928, later coming to France to live.

MacDonald Action Spurred By Jobless Increase

LONDON, March 27.—(INS.)—Prime Minister Ramsay MacDonald's government, stung by the criticism of its own parliamentary supports, today began formulation of plans for immediate relief of the unemployment situation, the worst in eight years.

Despite ministerial remonstrances the Labor Party last night issued an ultimatum to the Government, fixing a limit of 14 days from today for the leaders to bring out plans for relief. At the end of this period, it was said, the Government also will be called upon to give reasons for rejecting any of the items of policy suggested in a secret memorandum to the Government by Sir Oswald Mosely and George Lansbury, colleagues of J. H. Thomas, lord privy seal. This memorandum was shelved by the Government.

The action of the Labor Party followed publication of unemployment figures showing total unemployed of 1,621,800, which is an increase of 57,000 over the previous week. Further increases are anticipated.

INCOME TAXES WARRANT CUT NEXT YEAR

Only Heavy Spending by Congress Will Necessitate Increase of 1929 Levy

WASHINGTON, March 27.—(AP.)—Treasury officials today said income tax receipts totaling $542,432,341 on March 25 indicated the month's total would amount to more than $550,000,000, fulfilling estimates made at the beginning of the fiscal year.

The figures were cited also as justifying a reduction of taxes on 1929 income.

Whether this reduction will be carried beyond one year depends chiefly upon expenditures authorized by Congress for the 1931 fiscal year.

PROSPEROUS YEAR

Income tax experts found that, while stock market losses last fall were large, they affected only a few, while corporation returns indicated a prosperous year.

No one would venture an opinion as to whether the government would finish the fiscal year with a surplus. This problem also depends largely upon pending expenditures.

The federal building project authorized by Congress this week is not expected to affect the surplus because the money authorized will come out of the treasury over a number of years.

"BEST TIME TO BUILD"

It was the opinion of Secretary Mellon that the present time was most opportune and economical for the government to build.

The letting of contracts under the Keyes-Elliot bill probably will start in April, and officials hope the year's construction program will total $50,000,000 or more, made possible through the piling up of amounts allotted to former years.

Congressional action on this bill, which authorizes total appropriations of $230,000,000 for public building, was completed today when the House accepted Senate amendments. The measure now goes to the President.

Painting a picture the exact opposite of that depicted yesterday before the commerce body by Charles M. Schwab, chairman, and Eugene G. Grace, president of Bethlehem, and James A. Campbell, chairman of Sheet and Tube, Eaton declared that the consummation of the merger deal would "jeopardize the future of the entire Mahoning Valley."

8 DEAD IN WAKE OF BLIZZARD

CHICAGO, March 27.—(INS.)—Its record-shattering spring blizzard at an end, the Central West today began in earnest the task of freeing itself from mountainous snow drifts which have closed schools, paralyzed all modes of traffic and threatened food supply shortages.

After holding Northern Illinois and the surrounding territory in its grip since late Monday, the snowfall ceased last night, leaving an average of 19.2 inches of snow in the Chicago area, an all-time record for continuous snowfall.

Schools which were closed yesterday will remain adjourned until Monday. Most highways throughout Illinois, Northern Indiana, Wisconsin and Eastern Iowa remained impassable today due to drifts which in some places were piled to a depth of 10 feet.

Four additional deaths attributed to the storm today brought the total of victims to eight persons.

Chicago's loss in dollars will run into many millions. The army of snow shovelers employed by the street car system alone will require a payroll of $5,000,000.

A temporary milk famine loomed today as farmers found it impossible to ship their products into the metropolitan area. Fresh vegetables and fruits were selling at premium prices.

Late yesterday Mary called a boy friend to drive her home and shortly after her arrival admitted taking three poison tablets on Tuesday. She was rushed to the hospital by her mother. Authorities had not been notified, the mother said, because a special delivery letter was received from the girl Monday night revealing she had run away. PROHIBITION DENOUNCED BY ELITE

Secret Poll Reveals 6 to 1 Majority for Modification Or Repeal, Pitcairn Says

By E. L. RAWLEY
International News Service.

PHILADELPHIA, March 27.—The majority of Philadelphia's social elite does not advocate prohibition, as a Congressional committee was informed by Mrs. George H. Strawbridge, prominent society matron, a few days ago, but on the other hand is overwhelmingly against prohibition, according to Raymond Pitcairn, wealthy aircraft builder and Pittsburgh Plate Glass head.

Pitcairn said a secret poll, taken among all those listed in the social register here by a committee for prohibition reform, of which he is the head, revealed that 84.7 per cent of them were in favor of modification or repeal of the dry act, with only 15.3 per cent for strict enforcement.

SIX-TO-ONE LANDSLIDE

The tabulation:

Strict enforcement—540.

Modification of Volstead act—612.

Repeal of prohibition amendment—2,372.

A letter with a marked ballot from Owen Wister, the novelist, read:

"In no house that I visit have I found any approval of the extreme scope of the Volstead act.

"In certain houses I find this law obeyed, though it is condemned."

Premier Denies Rum Control In Canadian Plan is Failure

TORONTO, March 27.—(INS.)—Emphatic answer to the charges of E. C. Drury, former Premier of Ontario, before the House Judiciary Committee at Washington yesterday, that government control of liquor in Canada was a failure, was made today by Premier G. Howard Ferguson.

Ferguson declared:

"If the prohibition probing committee at Washington wanted to know the truth about government control in Ontario, why didn't it call some responsible official to testify?

"The best evidence of satisfaction of the public of Ontario as to the law is shown in the result of the last election, when the province repudiated Drury's policy and returned 92 supporters of the government out of a total of 112 members in the legislature."

Sir Henry Drayton, chairman of the liquor control board, announced his recent report was sufficient answer to Drury's charges. The report shows a steady decrease in drunkenness convictions and traffic accidents.

WASHINGTON, March 27.—(INS.)—Aroused by dry attacks on the Canadian liquor control system, Congressional liberals today took steps to invite Premier G. Howard Ferguson, of Ontario, to appear before the House judiciary committee.

Increasing the size of the taxing district and the instituting of measures of central supervision to bring about a greater degree of efficiency in tax collection and tax expenditure were recommended by Dr. Marion K. McKay, of the University of Pittsburgh.

John L. Glenn, director of the Taxpayers' Association of Allegheny and Washington Counties, reviewed some of the results achieved by his organization in the last four years.

CAPTIVE BOUND BY DOG COLLAR

BAD AXE, Mich., March 27.—(AP)—Bound with adhesive tape, a dog collar and rope to the driver's position in her automobile, Mrs. Elsie Mills, 25, of Detroit, drove into a filling station late last night and told of having been kidnaped near her home. She and her husband, she said, had received notes threatening them if they appeared in a civil suit filed against them by a former landlord.

Two of three men in another car, she said, jumped into her machine and bound her to the steering wheel. They forced her to drive nearly seven hours, apparently seeking a shack in which she believed they intended to imprison her. The third man followed in another car. When the latter became stalled on a snow-covered road, Mrs. Mills said, the two men with her got out and went back, warning her not to move.

"I took a chance, and drove away as fast as I could," she added.

ECKENER CALLS ON HOOVER

WASHINGTON, March 27.—(AP)—Opening his first day in Washington with official calls on President Hoover, Postmaster General Brown, Secretary of War Hurley and Acting Secretary of the Navy Jahncke, Dr. Hugo Eckener, skipper of the Graf Zeppelin, today outlined a program for the dirigible's next flight to America and the proposed establishment of a trans-Atlantic aircraft line.

The flight of the Graf, he said, will probably start May 10, with a stop at Seville, Spain, for refueling, mail and passengers. South America will be the destination, followed by a flight to Lakehurst ending May 30.

Today

trying that kind of flight. But that does not deter such a flier as Hawks, who recently flew from Los Angeles to Long Island, ocean to ocean, in 17 hours and 38 minutes, a world record.

SMILING cheerfully, he sat in his long, strongly-built glider designed by Franklin, a parachute strapped to his back, for "regularity." "But," says Hawks, "a parachute is not needed in gliding. You might as well come down with your glider and land on top of that."

Pilot J. B. Jernigin, Jr., taxis his plane along the sandy field, dragging a light steel cable 500 feet long. Hawks hitches on to the cable towed by the airplane. The plane starts along the ground dragging Hawks, and soon both are in the air, going 90 miles an hour. Hawks keeps his glider well above the plane to avoid the air rush from its propeller.

THREE THOUSAND FIVE HUNDRED feet up, Hawks drops the cable. Jernigin reels it in, and the graceful glider goes off on its own account, flying upward, coming down, rising again, banking, turning on its side, finally coming down to earth, at Hawks' command landing more lightly than a swan on water.

Next Sunday Hawks will start a glider trip from the Pacific to the Atlantic, Jernigin towing him, Franklin, the designer, going along. They will cover 2,800 miles. The glider cutting loose to land at 61 cities on the way.

Over Central Park in New York, Hawks will drop his cable for the last time on the trip, and glide on to his landing in Van Cortland park, taking mail with him. And Jernigin, free of his tow, will land on Long Island.

LINDBERGH, who should know, says the glider will train thousands of young fliers, with a minimum of danger, and teach experienced men how to build better planes. Yesterday afternoon, in the factory where the Spirit of Saint Louis was built, Hawley Bolus, who superintended that construction, showed a beautiful glider just finished for Lindbergh, who will be in San Diego today.

The new Lindbergh glider, pure white, much lighter than any bird in proportion to size, and more graceful, has in landing a ratio of 33 to one. This means that if Lindbergh were up in it, only 1,000 feet, he could glide 33,000 feet in any direction before landing, and without any sustaining wind.

HOT here yesterday, hotter than it will be in July, for this whole coast is a summer resort.

You read that a blizzard rages in Chicago, with 18 inches of snow and here with the sun beating down, fields covered with yellow, purple and crimson wild flowers, you realize that this is a variegated country.

School Girl, Youth Found Dead In Auto

JONESVILLE, Mich., March 27.—(AP)—Lowell Durfey and Cecile Nye, 17-year-old Jonesville High School students, who had been missing since Monday night, were found dead this morning in Durfey's sedan, parked in a cemetery near here.

The two students had left the Jonesville High School Monday night following a football banquet. Durfey said he was going to drive Miss Nye home. Death by carbon monoxide poisoning was suspected.

Youth, Hatless In Blizzard, Walks Span

Lieut. Harry Keisling, of Carnegie police, discovered a hatless youth scanning the floor of the Rosslyn bridge with a searchlight during last night's driving snowstorm. The stranger refused to talk, other than to say he was looking for the name of the bridge. He was taken to the police station.

After being in a cell four hours, the prisoner said he was Elmer Vorderburg, of Toledo, O., and a Carnegie Tech student.

"He may be a Carnegie Tech student and fraternity candidate," Lieut. Keisling said today. "If he is, and his fraternity brothers want him, they'll find him in the Carnegie hoosegow."

Vorderburg is being held on a suspicious person charge.

OFFERS 'ICARUS' PLANET NAME

LONDON, March 27.—(AP.)—Rear-Admiral W. A. Moffett cabled a suggestion to Senator Hiram Bingham that the new planet discovered by Americans be named "Icarus," in honor of the mythological flier.

Admiral Moffett, as a member of the council of the National Aeronautic Association, of which Senator Bingham is president, suggested the organization press for such naming in honor of aviation and because the planet was discovered in the "flying age."

Icarus was the flier whom aviation aspirants tried to emulate before the perfection of the balloon and the airplane. He flew with wings, Greek legend has it, but the wings were of wax. Hence, one day he flew too near the sun and the wax melted, thereby leading to what was probably the first "crash."

BAKER, RICH N.Y. BANKER, 90

BRUNSWICK, Ga., March 27.—(AP.)—George Fisher Baker, the lone survivor of a powerful group of financiers who commanded money and industry at the beginning of the twentieth century, today observed his ninetieth birthday at the Jekyl Island retreat where he once conferred with J. Pierpont Morgan, James J. Hill, Theodore N. Vail and James Stillman.

Still active in the conduct of a wide variety of enterprises, the taciturn New York banker, whose silence has become a legend, planned a quiet day marked only by a family dinner. His son, George F. Baker, Jr., his daughter, Mrs. J. St. George, and her son, George St. George, all of New York, and E. E. Loomis, president of the Lehigh Valley Railroad, were with him for the occasion.

Desertion Charged In Wife's Suit

Forty years after her marriage, Mrs. Annie K. Booth, of 48 Southern avenue, asked a divorce from James J. Booth, of Monaca, alleging that he deserted her without just cause on the sixteenth anniversary of their wedding 24 years ago. The divorce libel filed in Common Pleas Court recited that they were married April 10, 1890, and that the desertion occurred April 10, 1906.

The meeting was called by the State Aeronautics Commission. Clifford Ball, of Bettis Field, McKeesport, and M. R. Scharff, of Greensburg, were appointed on a committee of the operators to confer with the State Commission on future policies.

Gov. John S. Fisher signed a charter for the Pennsylvania Goodwill Air Tours, Inc., formed by representatives of the Pittsburgh and Philadelphia aero clubs to back the air tour planned next summer over Pennsylvania.

FOUR MEN HELD IN OLD KILLING

JOHNSTOWN, Pa., March 27.—(AP.)—Tony Palumbo, under arrest at Chicago, and three other men are under indictment for the slaying at Salix, Cambria County, of Louis Hoffman, July 14, 1928. Hoffman was shot, it is charged, by men who went to his place in search of a reported cache of liquor. The four were only recently cited following an investigation by state police.

Those under indictment in addition to Palumbo are Frank Powell, who is serving 5 to 10 years in state prison for robbery; Frank Cantilla, in the Cambria County jail is serving a sentence for bootlegging, and Carl Crow, who is held on the murder charge. All are from Johnstown, except Palumbo, whose home is in Chicago.

Oh, boy! no more colds

SOUNDS like magic. No more colds! What wouldn't you give to go through the winter without them?

Here is one sensible thing you can do. A preventive measure that doctors recommend.

Every night snuff a little "Vaseline" Petroleum Jelly up the nostrils. It coats the membranes of the nasal passages. According to doctors, germs are not likely to get in their deadly work if these sensitive membranes are fortified against them by lubrication.

When you are outdoors on a dusty, windy day, use "Vaseline" Jelly in the nostrils to relieve that tickle. The tube is convenient to carry, so you can always have it with you when you need it.

If the throat feels husky, take a teaspoonful of the Jelly and swallow it. Radio stars, whose voices mean their bread and butter, have learned this trick. You can profit from it too.

Lay in a supply of "Vaseline" Jelly—in jars or tubes—at the nearest store. Use it regularly every night.

GRUNDY LIKELY TO QUIT RACE AND SENATE

Candidate Angered at Mellons And Fisher Quits Capital; 'Startling News' Promised

uel S. Lewis withdrew as a candidate for governor.

Senator Grundy, who left Washington yesterday afternoon without publicly announcing his destination and who could not be located last night, turned up at his office in Philadelphia today. The senator maintained his policy of silence.

An Associated Press dispatch from Harrisburg had this to say concerning Grundy's anticipated resignation:

ANGERED BY MELLONS

"Supporters of the ticket represented Grundy as being exceedingly angered at the situation which has developed mainly through the purported refusal of the Mellon forces in the state Republican organization and Gov. Fisher to take an unqualified stand in favor of his gubernatorial running mate. They said they would not be surprised if Grundy resigned his commission as senator which keeps him in the Senate until the official returns of the general election in November are collected and certified."

Local politicians supporting Lewis, when asked yesterday for the next move, said "keep your eyes on Washington today for a sensation."

ARMSTRONG, VARE TO MEET

County Commissioner Joseph G. Armstrong is scheduled to be in Philadelphia next Monday to help William S. Vare finally determine upon the Davis-Brown ticket, draft a platform and map a statewide campaign.

The slate as presented unofficially lists James J. Davis for United States senator, Francis Shunk Brown for governor, Gen. E. C. Shannon for lieutenant governor, Phillip A. Dewey for secretary of internal affairs, Judge George W. Maxey for justice of the Supreme Court and Judge James B. Drew and Judge W. P. Linn, incumbent, for two places on the Superior Court bench.

Complications arose, however, in the framing of the ticket with the filing today of two candidates, Lieut. Gov. Arthur H. James and Judge Maxey for justice of the Supreme Court. James coupled the filing of his papers with a declaration in favor of the candidacies of Davis and Brown.

Armstrong, who is sharing state leadership in the Davis-Brown movement, will have complete supervision of the campaign in the territory west of the Alleghenies.

MALONE, MACKRELL AIDES

He will be assisted, according to report, by James F. Malone, former president of Council, who will be campaign manager for Allegheny County, and by Register of Wills Joseph N. Mackrell, who will manage the campaign in adjoining counties.

Western Pennsylvania headquarters, including Allegheny County, will be formally opened next week in the William Penn Hotel and will be in charge of Secretary William H. Ziefel. An intensive campaign will begin March 31, it was learned.

Lewis refused to say whether Grundy ordered him to withdraw. His elimination was considered a signal victory for Gov. Fisher who bitterly fought Lewis' selection by the state organization. Fisher did not comment on the withdrawal reports indicated.

HARRISBURG REVOLT

Cabinet officials and other appointees of Gov. Fisher were said to be openly working in Harrisburg for the Davis-Brown combination.

Lewis' withdrawal drew pertinent inquiries as to the probable course of Senator Grundy in regard to the four remaining candidates for governor. They are former Attorney General Francis Shunk Brown running with James J. Davis; former Gov. Pinchot; former Congressman Thomas W. Phillips, of Butler County, and Judge J. Ambler Williams, of Montgomery County.

Another possibility suggested was that Grundy might take as a running mate State Treasurer Edward Martin, Republican state chairman, who was recommended by Gov. Fisher.

Local leaders of the Davis-Brown combination scoff at suggestions that William S. Vare and his friends, comprising the Philadelphia "War Board," would throw Davis overboard to permit Grundy to take Brown as a running mate.

PINCHOT PAPERS FILED

Nominating petitions placing the name of Pinchot on the Republican ballot as a candidate for governor at the May primary were filed today at the State Elections Bureau, in Harrisburg. The petitions contained the names of 5,200 voters from 25 counties of the state.

Rumors that Pinchot would place a complete ticket in the field, with former Judge Frank I. Gollmar for Superior Court followed by the announcement today by Charles F. Armstrong, Leechburg, Armstrong County, postmaster, of his candidacy for lieutenant governor coupled with an indorsement of the former chief executive. Armstrong is the co-author of the Snyder-Armstrong act, the state prohibition law enacted in 1923 soon after Pinchot took office, and was recognized as the dry leader of the House of Representatives then.

County Commissioner E. V. Babcock, hopped on the Davis-Brown band wagon today with this announcement: "I am for Davis for senator and his associates on the state ticket. We have been personal friends for 15 years and I was for him as soon as he announced."

C. E. LOGUE WITH A GROUP OF STUFFED WILDCATS

STATE TRAPPER SPEAKS HERE

The beaver, listed 14 years ago as extinct in Pennsylvania, has been re-introduced with such success that in some localities it is making itself more or less of a pest by cutting down valuable trees.

This was the word brought to Pittsburgh by C. E. Logue, of Fresh Fork, Cameron County, chief trapper for the Pennsylvania Game Commission, who came here to address the Naturalists' Club.

Logue said he would begin trapping beaver in two weeks, catching them at points where farmers complained of damage and releasing them at other places. He estimated there are now 10,000 in Pennsylvania, all descendants of 10 pairs brought from Canada and released in 1917.

The otter, Logue said, is apparently on the road to join the numerous other Pennsylvania mammals that have been exterminated since the coming of the white man, among them being the panther, wolf, wolverine, marten, fisher and lynx.

DREW ENTERS BENCH RACE

Judge James B. Drew, of Common Pleas Court, has announced his candidacy for one of the two nominations for judge of the Superior Court. He also announced today that he would support the candidacies of Secretary of Labor James J. Davis for United States Senator and former Attorney General Francis Shunk Brown for governor.

Friends of Judge Drew have declared that he has been slated for the Superior Court bench on the Davis-Brown ticket.

Judge Drew called attention to the absence of Allegheny County representation on the Superior Court bench since the death of Judge William D. Porter.

This county, he declared, with its 1,500,000 people, including 1,600 practicing lawyers, should have at least one place among the seven judges of the Superior Court.

Judge Drew averred that this county should have a resident judge on the Superior Court bench to facilitate the business of the local courts, which with Philadelphia County, provide 70 per cent of the business of the state's higher courts.

Einstein's Gravitation, Electricity Relativity Explained by Scientists

Einstein's latest discovery, his first practical proof of a connection between gravitation and electricity, is herewith presented by The Associated Press.

Its significance is explained by Dr. M. S. Vallarta, Massachusetts Institute of Technology physicist.

BERLIN, March 27.

PROF. ALBERT EINSTEIN has presented to the Prussian Academy of Sciences a new paper he has written with Dr. W. Mayer on two strictly static solutions of the field equations of his uniform field theory. It connects gravitation and electricity.

These solutions were described as follows: These field equations can be rigorously solved in two cases. The first case is that of a spherically symmetrical field in space, for example, the external field of an electrically charged sphere of fixed mass. The other case is that of the static field of any number of uncharged mass particles at rest with respect to one another.

By HOWARD W. BLAKESLEE
Associated Press Science Editor.

CAMBRIDGE, Mass., March 27.

EINSTEIN'S first practical proof of some mysterious connection between gravitation and electricity is announced in his new paper.

His discovery of mathematical equations which he said prove that gravitation and electricity are related created a world sensation about a year ago. One of the great goals of science is to learn the connection between these two universal forces. Along with light, they affect every moment of human life.

Einstein's first announcement did not attempt to say what the relation is, but only that its existence is demonstrated in mathematical formula, which he called field equations. These equations, however, failed to work altogether satisfactorily, and their accuracy was challenged. Einstein modified them, seeking to eliminate weak spots. The Berlin dispatch indicates success.

IMPORTANCE EXPLAINED

DR. M. S. VALLARTA, assistant professor of physics at Massachusetts Institute of Technology, today explained the importance of the Berlin announcement.

"It means," he said, "that Dr. Einstein has found from his latest equations both the laws of gravity and the laws of electricity. The same equation gives both of these laws correctly. This at least is the conclusion to be drawn from the brief description.

"By giving correctly both gravitational and electrical laws the equations seem to verify the existence of a connection between the two fundamental forces. This is the first time that a mathematical solution has worked. It is very important.

COMPARISON MADE

"An idea of the first solution —that of a spherically symmetrical field of space—may be obtained from comparison with physical conditions upon the earth. The sphere conceived in the mathematical solution is not flattened at the poles like the earth, but is perfectly round. With such a globe, the pull of its gravitation would be the same everywhere at a given distance above its surface. The electrical forces of such a globe —assumed to be electrically charged—would likewise be symmetrical. It is to the gravitational and the electrical forces of such a globe that Einstein has applied his field equations.

"The second solution is not so important, being in the nature of a confirmation."

Tomorrow (Friday)
10 to 12 and 2 to 4

Tomorrow, and every Tuesday and Friday, for three weeks, a competent bridge authority and instructor will hold informal receptions in the spacious living room of our Interior Decorative Studios for those interested in

Contract Bridge

Contract is a modern development of auction bridge, and is rapidly supplanting the former in interest and popularity. Contract bridge is rapidly becoming the prevailing game in smart circles, and it is freely predicted that auction bridge will soon be passe.

Anyone who has played the older game can readily learn the newer one, the principal difference being in the card valuations, bidding and scoring.

During these receptions, everyone interested is invited to ask questions and obtain any information desired regarding the newer game.

In connection with these semi-weekly bridge receptions, there will be appropriate displays of suggestions for bridge entertaining, and also correct table settings for bridge luncheons, teas and buffet suppers.

These receptions and displays should prove of great interest to all bridge enthusiasts, and a cordial invitation is extended to all to participate.

PARKER RECORD UNDER FIRE

WASHINGTON, March 27.—(AP)—With a delay in prospect on consideration of the nomination of Judge John J. Parker, of North Carolina, to the Supreme Court, senators and other interested parties are scrutinizing his record.

While officials of the American Federation of Labor withheld a decision on whether to protest his confirmation, the newspaper Labor, published by the railroad labor organizations, in its weekly issue characterized the appointment as "a bitter disappointment to progressives."

Labor officials are studying the decision of Judge Parker as a member of the Federal Circuit Court of Appeals on an injunction case involving the United Mine Workers.

During the month 45,712,000 tons of coal were mined, of which 39,555,000 tons were bituminous and 6,157,000 tons were anthracite, the fatality rate, per million tons for the industry being 3.50. The record for February 1929, showed 183 deaths, 140 occurring in bituminous mines and 43 in anthracite mines, with a production of 47,900,000 tons of bituminous and 6,670,000 tons of anthracite. The fatality rates based on these totals, were 2.92 and 6.45, with an average for the coal industry of 3.35.

A comparison of the accident record for January and February 1930, with same period in 1929, showed a reduction in the death rates for haulage and explosives, while increases were shown for falls of roof and coal, gas or dust explosions and electricity.

Right Idea

This three-year-old athlete is the son of Mrs. M. Sarsfield, 5131 Hoopes St., Philadelphia. She says: "Jackie's wonderful condition shows my idea is right.

"Whenever he's the least cross or upset, or has a cold, I give him a little California Fig Syrup. It always brightens him up; regulates his stomach and bowels; gives him a hearty appetite. I have used it with Jackie since he was a year old, and it has never failed to help him promptly."

All children love the rich, fruity flavor of California Fig Syrup. A pure vegetable product, it doesn't gripe or sicken. It always acts gently but thoroughly to cleanse the system of bilious, headachy, constipated children. Doctors say it tones and strengthens weak bowels. Try it with your child. See how bad breath, coated tongue or feverishness disappears!

The name California marks the genuine, famous for 50 years. So look for it when buying.

Belmont was brought to the hospital in a private automobile from the Virginia horse breeding center last night. Physicians say he has several fractured ribs, a cut tongue and an eye injury.

He has been active in Virginia turf circles several years. In 1926 he was divorced by Carolyn Hurlburt Belmont and later married Mrs. May Murling Maddox, a prominent horsewoman of Middleburg.

SANTA MONICA, Cal., March 27.—(AP.)—Karl J. Ondricek, gray-haired little Bohemian concert master, found life worth living again today. His rare old Stradivarius violin, stolen from his apartment here Monday, was recovered yesterday in a pawn shop where the thief had sold it for $10.75.

The violin was purchased at Toronto, Can., 16 years ago and its genuineness attested by authorities, Ondricek said. He estimated its value at $25,000.

Rosenwald Adds 2 Millions to Gift

SPRINGFIELD, Ill., March 27.—(AP.)—Julius Rosenwald, Chicago philantropist, has increased his $3,000,000 gift to the Chicago Museum of Science and Industry to $5,000,000.

This was revealed in the filing of an answer to a suit by a Chicago lawyer pending in Supreme Court. The suit seeks to block reconstruction of an old World's Fair building for use of the museum.

WILLS HER EARS TO SCIENCE

CHICAGO, March 27.—(AP.)—Science will get the ears of Miss Abby Hosmer—70, wealthy and deaf.

At her death, by the provisions of the odd bequest she signed yesterday, Miss Hosmer's ears will go to the Chicago Laryngological and Otological Society.

Dr. Austin A. Hayden, a prominent member of the society, praised the bequest of Miss Hosmer, who has been deaf since she was 7 years old.

"Until medical science can have the opportunity to make microscopic studies of the ears of deaf persons after their death, we shall remain in the dark as to why one out of every 10 persons today suffers from this malady," he said.

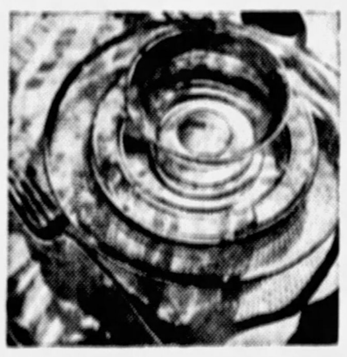
NEW THINGS OF INTEREST TO WOMEN

Table Linen Demands Hand Washing



Caressing White Hands Every Woman's Right

Wash Linens This New Way—Keep Hands Satin-Soft

SPOTLESS table linens—soft as only hand washing can make them—are as much a mark of social knowledge as good manners.

To have them—impeccable and flawless—and, at the same time for the housewife to have caressing, white hands is a problem that has now been solved an interesting, new way.

Use any kind of soap, soap powder or soap flakes, in washing linens. But add a teaspoon of CLIMALENE to the water.

This enables you to use ONE-FOURTH the usual quantity of soap. For it softens the water instantly, so that far less soap is needed. Thus avoiding any danger of "soap eat" or fading, so fatal to fine fabrics.

Then by bland cleansing elements IN ITSELF, CLIMALENE acts to gently DISSOLVE any food stains, grease or dirt in things being washed. Thus they emerge soft, spotless, utterly without fading.

Containing superlative SKIN WHITENING and SKIN SOFTENING ingredients—used by scores of beauty specialists—it leaves the hands soft and lovely beyond words.

Women are flocking to it. It costs only a dime at grocers. Try it. Just ask for CLIMALENE.

Motor Classic of 1912.
How the thundering roar of racing motors on the Indianapolis Motor Speedway, May 30, 1912, might have sounded to radio listeners, will be demonstrated by Phillips Carlin.
Ralph de Palma, the hero of many a hard cylinder battle, was the butt of hard luck. Long before the last two laps he was pushed as sure winner. He led from the 10-mile mark, won 180 laps and needed two more to win the race, when engine trouble drove him toward the pit.
He was waved on, however, and continued for another lap when his engine went dead and Dawson, only five laps behind him, roared by and won the race.

SONGS of her native Spain and a vocal arrangement of the famous Strauss Waltz, "Tales from the Vienna Woods," will feature Lucrezia Bori's part in the RCA-Victor Hour on WCAE at 10 o'clock tonight. Though Mme. Bori is remotely of Italian descent, she is a native of Valencia. Her early studies were made in Milan and her debut as Micaela in "Carmen," took place in Rome. She is now a soprano in the Metropolitan.

Lucrezia Bori

As an extra attraction, Mme. Bori will sing the delightful "Depuis Le Jour" from Charpentier's opera, "Louise," in which she has played the heroine many times.

Two new works, "Sweetheart," by J. Kellar Kirn, and "Riding Club March," by Nathaniel Skilkret, will be introduced by the Victor Orchestra.

A brass quartet presentation of "Lover Come Back to Me," Sigmund Romberg's latest hit, will feature the Atwater Kent Musicale on KDKA at 10.

Anne S. DeLuca, promising young organist, has selected an inviting program for her KQV concert at 11 from the Howard Webb studio.

Otto Gray's Cowboy Band on KDKA at 11:30 will have many listeners.

TODAY'S TID-BIT:

"My Kingdom for a horse"—old King Richard's wish—was uttered over the air by Pat Flanagan of WGN recently when he complained about having to rush from one studio to another. A youngster in Columbus, O., sent him a wooden hobby horse.

CHEER EGYPT'S DELEGATION

LONDON, March 27.—(AP)—Headed by the prime minister Nahas Pasha a substantial delegation reached London last night from Egypt prepared to negotiate a new treaty with Great Britain. At the railway station the delegation was accorded a boisterous welcome which quite overshadowed the return to London of Aristide Briand, French foreign minister at the same time.

Proposals by the British government will form the basis of the new treaty. Arthur Henderson, in making the proposals last year, described them as the utmost limit to which he could recommend His Majesty's government to go. They include withdrawal of troops from Egypt except for the immediate Suez Canal zone, promises of British influence to induce other powers to consent to abolition of extra-territorial rights, recognition of the Egyptian government's responsibility for the safety of foreigners in Egypt and withdrawal of British personnel from Egyptian military forces.

WAR-TIME SHIP CASE SETTLED

WASHINGTON, March 27.—(AP)—The United States Shipping Board and the Skinner & Eddy Corporation of Seattle, Wash., have settled out of court a 10-year-old argument over wartime ships with the latter party agreeing to pay $3,500,000 to the government.

The settlement, which was made March 15, was announced here by the Shipping Board. It provides for payment of $1,000,000 cash and the balance to be paid in installments within a two-and-one-half-year period.

The government had claimed approximately $11,500,000 and the Court of Appeals had held that $7,500,000 was due the government, but had not included in those figures certain points which the Department of Justice said could have been carried to the Court of Claims by the corporation.

Garden Clubs Elect Sewickley Woman

PHILADELPHIA, March 27.—(AP.)—The Pennsylvania State Federation of Garden Clubs, with a membership of 33 clubs throughout the state, was organized at a meeting in the headquarters of the Pennsylvania Horticultural Society, Mrs. Thomas Newhall, of Philadelphia, was elected president. Other federation officers elected were: J. Horace McFarland, Harrisburg, Mrs. C. C. Zantziner, St. Davids, and Mrs. Carroll P. Davis, Sewickley, vice presidents; Mrs. George L. Harrison, Philadelphia, corresponding secretary; Mrs. Walter G. Sibley, Philadelphia, recording secretary, and Garrett V. Clark, Philadelphia, treasurer.

Ask Wife to Face Quiz Over Theft

NEW YORK, March 27.—(AP)—Police here telegraphed police of Hot Springs, Ark., requesting them to ask Mrs. Molly Gallagher, wife of the express messenger who allegedly stole $63,000 here last October, if she would waive extradition and return to New York to explain what became of the money.

Dispatches from Hot Springs said that some $15,000 to $20,000 was found in Mrs. Gallagher's room in an apartment where she was taken into custody. Gallagher was arrested near Paterson, N. J., Tuesday. Police said he confessed the theft.

TWEET! TWEET!

FOLKS return from southern rest spots
Cupid, that renowned of despots
Wakes and wanders out to test spots
That will aid his glowing reign.
Boosts come north from sundry ball clubs.
That they're primed to wipe up all clubs
Golfers hie to large and small clubs—
Spring again!

Yes it's here, the magic season
When despondency is treason.
And a lad forgets to reason
If the game is worth the pain.
Peeping through the woodland Pan sees
Winter routed by the banshees,
And in hearts romantic fancies
Spring again!

GAG

MARC LACHMAN'S favorite story is the one about the young chorus girl who married a rich man three times her age—for his coin, of course. But after a month of monotony with him she decided to put life into the old gazumper. So she brought some rejuvenation powder and when he wasn't looking she slipped it into his coffee.

The next morning she nudged him in the ribs, but he didn't move. She called to him but couldn't rouse him. Then she shook the old man violently 'til he awakened.

"I'll get up," he yawned, "but I won't go to school!"

VERSION No. 755632

Take it from Evelyn Groves, of "The International Revue." A busybody stopped before the yard of a country house to watch a woman beating a rug.

"Here, here!" he bellowed, "quit beating that rug, it might be Lon Chaney!"

"Don't be silly," replied the woman, "I'm Lon Chaney!"

GOOD OLD AMERICA

THE cable services recently reported that Theodore Fortune, 30, was sentenced to jail in London on a charge of being a common eavesdropper. The charge was based on an old statute which read in part: "Said person did listen about the houses and windows and eaves of the houses of divers good people, hearing tattle, and repeating same to the common nuisance of all the people and against the law, peace and dignity of the said commonwealth."

Over here you get a swelegant salary just listening to people who promised somebody that they would keep it a secret.

INCIDENTALLY

SPEAKING of gossips, page 48 of "Private Letters Pagan and Christian" reveals this choice bit of gossip of some 1900 years ago. It was written by M. Caelius Rufus to Cicero in Galicia, sending him news from Rome. Part of it follows: "I have no idea when you expect to leave your province, absolutely nothing new has happened, unless you would like me to retail to you gossip of this kind, and I am sure you would. Young Cornificus has got engaged to Orestilla's daughter, Paulla Valeria; Triarius' sister got a divorce without any cause alleged, the very day her husband was expected home. She is going to marry D. Brutus. She has sent back all her clothes. Servius Ocella has been caught with other men's wives twice in three days. You will ask, where? In the last place you would have wished! I leave you to find out the rest from others." Tee, hee.

TORCH SONG

FOR NEWSPAPERMEN

Balzac sympathized with the reporter who "is damned if he prints it and damned if he doesn't." He once chronicled: "Whoever has dipped into journalism or is still in it lies under the hard necessity of bowing to men he despises, smiling upon his worst enemy, consorting with the rankest baseness and dirtying his fingers in his struggle to pay his adversaries in their own coin."

BALM

THE morning mail is not complete unless it contains several letters from Rudy Vallee fans who vigorously object and resent "your jealousy and knocks." As a matter of fact this corner forwards such letters to Mr. Vallee in an effort to show the popular sex-ophonest that some of his renown is built up by the press. Vallee, himself, has never complained about any comments here and probably enjoys the fuss made about him.

But if he does object to it, let him comfort himself with the retort of another target who dismissed a critic's incessant comments with: "At least he doesn't consider me unimportant. You are never unimportant, you know, when you can prompt people to throw a ton of brick at you."

HELD IN THEFT OF GAS STATION

SEMINOLE, Okla., March 27.—(AP)—K. C. Huckins, who by his own admission nursed an ambition to go into business for himself, but lacked the necessary funds, is held in a Seminole jail charged with theft of equipment for an entire gasoline filling station.

A week ago Huckins installed his station here and did a thriving business until the law intervened. Chief of Police Jake Sims said the prisoner admitted theft of two pumps, two storage tanks, four oil barrels and other modern equipment, at Shawnee, Okla.

'Overhead' Door Not Garage Death Cause

In a published report, the death of John A. Roth was attributed to "overhead garage door falling on him." Investigation shows that the door was not the trade-named "Overhead Door," but a vertical lift door, and the accident was caused by the heavy counter-balancing weights pulling loose from the ceiling, permitting the door and weights to fall upon the victim.

Prepared for Anything Now

"I can't imagine anything more discouraging than to suffer every time you eat a meal," says Andrew Anderson of 3453 Broadway, Chicago. "It keeps a fellow upset and so shaky he isn't good for much of anything. You should see me now, though. The simplest thing has straightened me out fine. I take a dose of Acidine whenever a meal doesn't sit right. Before I know it everything is all right. I am not afraid of anything now."

Mr. Anderson is absolutely right. Such a simple thing as a stomach which fails to digest starchy food and sweets can break down a person's resistance until even his confidence is undermined. The excessive acids cause thin blood because your food doesn't nourish you. By sweetening your stomach with Acidine, you can eat and grow strong. Get Acidine at any drug store.

Needless Pain!

Some folks take pain for granted.

They let a cold "run its course."

They wait for their headaches to "wear off."

If suffering from neuralgia or from neuritis, they rely on feeling better in the morning.

Meantime, they suffer unnecessary pain. Unnecessary, because there is an antidote. Bayer Aspirin always offers immediate relief from various aches and pains we once had to endure. If pain persists, consult your doctor as to its cause.

Save yourself a lot of pain and discomfort through the many uses of Bayer Aspirin. Protect yourself by buying the genuine. Bayer is safe. Always the same. All drugstores.

The Strange Romance of a

GIRL-BANDIT

A New Love-Thriller by Georgette MacMillan

HE HAD glimpsed her face as she stood beside him in the jewelry store. A face of haunting, fascinating beauty.

Now, as he drove home along the lonely country road, he wondered about her. Who was she? Where had she come from? Would he see her again?

Suddenly a voice broke into his thoughts. "Stop that car and put up your hands!" Even in the semi-darkness he could see that the figure which stood levelling a revolver at him was that of a girl. He drew back in amazement as he saw that she was the same girl who had fascinated him that afternoon!

Reckless, hunted—yet beloved!

This is the opening situation of Georgette MacMillan's stirring new love tale, "A World Apart" which begins in the March 29th issue of Love Story Magazine. A thrilling romance of a man and a woman from two entirely different worlds.

She a reckless girl-bandit. Hunted. Branded by society. Forced into a life of crime. Could she ever hope for honest love and respectability?

He a victim of her lawlessness. Cultured. Honest. Drawn to her in spite of himself by an impetuous, sudden love. His mind told him to hate and despise her. To turn her over to the police. His heart said, "You love her. Help her." What should he do?

Georgette MacMillan Never Disappoints

If you ever read the stories of Miss MacMillan you know what to expect from the gifted pen of this popular writer. "A World Apart" is her finest creation. Don't miss this absorbing two-part story beginning in this week's issue of Love Story Magazine.

What are your love problems?

What would you do if you fell in love with a man and later found out he was married? Suppose your sweetheart left you—how could you win him back? These are the kind of problems that Laura Alston Brown answers every week in her helpful department—"The Friend in Need." Whatever problems are worrying you—Mrs. Brown is ready to aid you at all times.

Many other stories in March 29th Issue

"THE Haven of Her Dreams" is the enthralling story of two sisters—in love with the same man!

"The Lucky Winner" relates the story of a girl who won an expensive roadster—and set out alone in search of romance and adventure. The incidents that follow make this one of Edna Ettinger's most intriguing tales.

You'll enjoy, "Catch Them with Honey," "Sally Ann Could Dance," "The Right Girl," "The Singing Heart," "The Little Thrill Seeker" and Maysie Greig's stirring serial novel, "The Husband She Bought." Get your copy today!

INVENTIONS WIN MAN PAROLE

JACKSON, Mich., March 27.—(AP.)—Willard Irving Osgood Twombly, one time wealthy New York inventor and engineer, whose wife had him arrested in Los Angeles and financed his extradition to Michigan to face a bigamy charge, was paroled from the state prison here to go into business manufacturing numerous inventions perfected in prison. Twombly denied the bigamy charges, but pleaded guilty to misconduct with a young woman and served 18 months of a six months to three years' sentence.

He was reputed to have made a fortune from a submarine device sold to the British government during the World War and was credited with some 200 other inventions giving him an income of $100,000 a year.

Both Twombly and the wife who brought various court actions involving him following their elopement in 1918, had been previously married. In 1926, Mrs. Ethel Helen Twombly brought suit in New York against Helen Woods, an instructor in a public dance hall, charging alienation of affections. Twombly was 57 years old at the time. Shortly afterward Mrs. Twombly brought a separate maintenance suit against Twombly in Chicago.

It was a judgment for $3,800 for non-payment of alimony obtained in the latter action that caused Mrs. Twombly to oppose all efforts to obtain Twombly's release from prison. At one time, when he was eligible for parole, she came from her White Plains, N. Y., home, and took up her residence on Twombly's $85,000 estate near Niles, Mich. Later she obtained a divorce but continued to oppose his release until a bond of $21,000 had been posted to insure payments of $75 a month for the support of a minor daughter.

Many persons suffering from the malady admitted drinking jamaica ginger.

He said, however, that indications were that poison in whisky or jamaica ginger caused the paralysis.

WASHINGTON, March 27.—(AP.)—The Kendall bill to provide a 40-hour week for postal employes was approved today by a House postoffice sub-committee. Under the measure, postal workers would be given a half holiday on Saturday, with extra compensation if conditions were such that their services were required for more than four hours on that day.

Blind Girl Begged For Idle Parents, Court Is Told

Sure Way to Get Rid of Dandruff

Girls—if you want plenty of thick, beautiful, glossy, silky hair, do by all means get rid of dandruff, for it will starve your hair and ruin it if you don't.

It doesn't do much good to try to comb or wash it out. The only sure way to get rid of dandruff is to dissolve it; then you destroy it entirely.

To do this, get about four ounces of ordinary liquid arvon; apply it at night when retiring; use enough to moisten the scalp and rub it in gently with the finger tips.

By morning, most, if not all, of your dandruff will be gone, and two or three more applications will completely dissolve and entirely destroy every single sign and trace of it.

You will find, too, that all itching and digging of the scalp will stop, and your hair will look and feel a hundred times better.

You can get liquid arvon at any drug store. Four ounces is all you will need, no matter how much dandruff you may have. This simple remedy never fails.

Charged with the theft of a $700 fur coat from Miss Marian Siebert, a stenographer at 824 Bessemer Building, Fred Costello, 42, of 1501 Dixon street, today was held over for investigation by Magistrate Leo Rothenberg in Central Police Court. Search is to be made for the missing apparel.

Miss Siebert testified Costello was cleaning windows in the office where she worked alone yesterday. She went outside for 10 minutes, she said, leaving the coat on a chair, and when she returned both Costello and the coat were gone. Costello's arrest followed. He denies implication in the affair.

LAST OF BANDIT GANG DOOMED

ELIZABETH, N. J., March 27.—(AP.)—Daniel Grosso, New York gunman, was convicted by a jury of the murder of John P. Enz, mail truck driver, in a hold-up October 14, 1926. He was sentenced to die in the electric chair.

How to Darken Gray Hair

By BERYL WEST

I repeat what I have often said—there's no excuse today for a woman submitting to gray hair and looking older than she feels. Gray, faded or streaked hair may be so perfectly restored to color that it need be only your own boudoir secret. Nothing more or less than a mixture of sage tea and sulphur is the magic.

One may either prepare the mixture at home, or as most people prefer to do, buy it already prepared and ready to use. Wyeth's Sage & Sulphur is the name of the ready-to-use preparation and since all druggists sell it at 75c a bottle, there is really no need of going to the trouble of making it yourself.

You simply moisten a comb or soft brush with it, and draw it through the hair, one strand at a time. One application banishes the gray and one or two more completely restores your gray, faded or streaked hair to its original color. There is no artificial, dyed look. The whole effect is one of perfect naturalness. My readers would be surprised if they knew of the thousands of men and women who use this preparation.

Why Does No One Want To Hold Her Baby?

There is something about Edna's baby that nobody likes to talk about—especially to Edna. It is one of the prettiest little youngsters—a round, roly-poly sort of baby, but—

And the worst of it is that it is not baby's fault. She can't help it if she cries, and is irritable, and cross. At heart she is a little darling, but that peevishness and "temper" that she has developed is a "hands-off" signal to all of Edna's friends.

The truth of the matter is that there is scarcely an hour of baby's life that she is not in pain—not inward pains, but outward fiery blotches of irritation that cause suffering such as only a baby can really experience.

She is chafed and raw on her buttocks and thighs — and the chubby folds of her skin are simply pain-spots all day long. Now if Edna would bathe her baby carefully, and after bathing gently massage the creases and folds with Mennen Baby Oil she would find that baby would no longer suffer from chafing and irritating rawness.

And if Edna would liberally anoint baby's buttocks after every diaper change she would find that the oil would act as a soothing, waterproof coating, preventing the acid and fecal matter from clinging to and irritating the skin.

And lastly if Edna would dust baby all over with Mennen Borated Talcum, after wiping off the excess oil, she would find that her baby would be cool, comfortable, sweet, clean and entirely free from pain.

Perhaps you will be good enough to give this message to Edna?

Special Offer! This week your druggist is offering a can of Mennen Borated Baby Talcum FREE with a purchase of a bottle of Mennen Baby Oil for 50c. Mennen Baby Oil is a sterilized blend of oils, properly medicated, pleasantly scented, and will not become rancid.

THE VOICE OF R-K-O

COMMUNITY EXPOSITION

RADIO KEITH ORPHEUM

IT'S R-K-O— LET'S GO!

By ETHEL DANFORTH.

Community spirit and the annual penchant to "Paint-up, Clean-up and Dress-up," have combined to make the Pittsburgh Community Exposition, now going on at the R-K-O Sheridan Square Theater, a great success. Paint, awnings, garden furniture, beautiful things for the home as well as gay attire for summer wear, transform the foyer, mezzanine and halls of the Sheridan Square into a veritable resort. Milton D. Crandall, who is in charge of the exposition, and J. O. Hooley, manager of the R-K-O Sheridan, have succeeded in producing a display that is well worth a visit from every man and woman in East Liberty.

The exhibition started last Monday, March 17, and will end on Saturday, March 29. Twenty-five firms have filled booths with material which Mr. and Mrs. East Liberty will use this spring to make their homes and themselves more in keeping with the fresh, green season.

Many valuable prizes are being offered by the various firms, and souvenirs are given all visitors. There is no entrance fee charged.

It is estimated that over 2,000 visitors saw the exposition the opening day and the number has increased every day since.

The foyer of the theater looks like a garden. Brilliant beach parasols and handy fold-up furniture make a spot of color against the artificial green grass.

SEES BREAK IN CONSTITUTION

PHILAEDLPHIA, March 27.—(AP.)—The constitution of the United States "is in process of deterioration, and not of growth," in the opinion of Representative James M. Beck, of this city, a nationally recognized constitutional authority.

Addressing members of the American Philosophical Society, Mr. Beck discussed the "changed conception of the constitution."

The former United States Solicitor General declared the constitution is undermined by governmental enactments, of which the Eighteenth Amendment is "the crowning atrocity." He said the Eighteenth Amendment invades individual liberty "in a manner at which Washington and Franklin would have stood aghast," and as an addition which "relegates the once-proudly conscious states to the ignominous position of being merely police provinces."

Speaking of "portentous changes" to which the constitution has been subjected, Mr. Beck named "the steady deterioration in power of Congress, as the great council of the republic, and the corresponding aggrandizement of the executive until he is, in everything but name, an elective king."

POPE RECEIVES BUTLER

VATICAN CITY, March 27.—(AP.)—Dr. Nicholas Murray Butler, president of Columbia University, was received in private audience today by Pope Pius XI.

The Pontiff bestowed the apostolic benediction upon him and his wife and daughter, who were also present at the interview, and presented them with medals commemorative of his jubilee year.

Dr. Butler spoke at some length with His Holiness of the work at the Vatican library, where an immense store of treasures, many centuries old, is being catalogued. He told the Pope he admired greatly the methods used by Cardinal Ehrle in directing the work, and the superior leadership and inspiration of the Pope himself.

ANOTHER HOME BROKEN UP

Family to Be Separated By Illness of the Homemaker.

TRAGEDY AVERTED JUST IN TIME BY WONDERFUL RESULTS OF WELL-KNOWN WORLD'S TONIC TREATMENT.

Mrs. J. C. Bowser, of Ford City, Pa., has cause to be grateful, for she and her three children are in their home, while the husband is gaining new successes in business. But it was a narrow escape from breaking up. Let her tell it.

"Last winter I caught a heavy cold that hung on frightfully. My head was full all the time, my eyes watered, and I had a persistent cough. When I got up in the morning I thought I would strangle before I could cough the phelgm loose. Nothing I took did me any good. Then early in the spring my stomach went back on me, and my kidneys gave me a lot of trouble. I had headaches and backache all the time. My folks thought I was going into consumption. I wasn't fit for any work, and my three children were greatly neglected.

"So my husband and I decided all we could do was to break up our family. My mother was to take my girl, and his folks were to look after the boys. Just imagine how I felt! I went to the drug store one morning to get relief for my stomach, and the druggist told me he thought that what ailed me was a bad case of catarrh. On his recommendation I got a bottle of World's Tonic. It helped my stomach so much that I got the second bottle, and before I had taken all of it my headaches ceased and backache was easier. The third bottle cleared up my kidneys and opened up my head. With the fourth I was almost well.

"You can imagine how I felt when I knew I could keep my children. I was so glad I cried with joy and thanked heaven for sending this great new medicine to me, and when my husband stopped worrying about me he was able to make his business better. I tell you here is one family that is everlastingly grateful for the discovery of this wonderful medicine and will never cease to praise World's Tonic for all it has done for us." World's Tonic is for sale at Dow's, May's & Leggett's, Mayflower, and all other first class drug stores. (A-16)

HAPPENINGS IN HOLLYWOOD AND NEWS ABOUT THE STAGE WORLD

Walter Jones Here to Stay Harland Tucker Goes Our 21 Dramatists

By GEORGE SEIBEL.

WHEN Gus Forbes took his last bow from the stage of the Pitt Theater it must have put a few wrinkles in George Sharp's placid front to find somebody as "character man" who could really fill the vacant place. The wrinkles have come off since he found Walter Jones.

George Seibel

It was a very roundabout route that brought this capable player to the stage. He started as a choir boy in an Episcopal Church at Providence, R. I., and his family intended to make a musician of him. But he became addicted to Lothrop's Dime Museum, where the Ossified Man and the Missing Link helped little Georgie Cohan to entertain the public. Cohan went to school, but assisted his parents and sister in their performances at the Museum.

Little Walter Jones became an addict of the Museum, where he spent all his spare nickels and all his spare hours. The final result was one chorister less and one actor more. It was Georgie Cohan's fault.

Jones has played with Marie Wainwright, E. H. Sothern and Julia Marlowe in Shakespeare. His first engagement was with Frank Daniels in "The Wizard of the Nile." He has acted in stock companies from Halifax to New Orleans and has supported many stars including Walter Hampden and Peggy Wood. And now there is every indication that he will be a fixture in Pittsburgh and a favorite like Gus Forbes.

HARLAND TUCKER GOING

Very soon George Sharp will have to wrinkle his brows again to find somebody in Harland Tucker's place. The popular leading man at the Pitt has been in poor health for some weeks and feels that he must get back to sunny California to recuperate.

The audience will be sorry to see him go for he has won a place for himself in their hearts. But stock work is very wearing and a leading man or woman must be in the pink of physical condition to stand the strain of study, rehearsal and playing eight times a week.

It may be that Harland Tucker will go to Philadelphia for a few weeks to open George Sharp's new theater there with Margaret Anglin. And next season he will probably be seen on Broadway in one of Al Woods' new productions.

WE'VE PLAYWRIGHTS APLENTY

As the home of Bartley Campbell, once the most popular American playwright, Pittsburgh ought to have playwrights aplenty—and the showing of the Drama League contest would indicate that Bartley has at least 21 successors here. For there were exactly 21 plays from this section entered for the prize tourney and considered of sufficient interest and merit to deserve consideration.

It will be weeks or months before the final decision is arrived at, but meanwhile it is a comfort to know the drama will not die if these 21 playwrights can help it.

KENYON NOT ONE

But the most surprising thing about the roster of Pittsburgh dramatists is that Elmer Kenyon is not one of them. Elmer, who is with us for a brief space, telling us what to think about "Strange Interlude," has never written a play. As far as the secret service knows, he has no intention of acquiring the habit.

But he need not preen himself with pride despite this rare distinction. He has appeared on the stage as an actor—in "The Octoroon." There is a skeleton in every family cupboard.

Original Role

Donald Brian, the original Prince Danilo in "The Merry Widow," comes to the Alvin next week in that role in a revival of Franz Lehar's popular operetta.

O'NEILL PLAY, STOCK AND OPERETTA NEXT WEEK

Franz Lehar's operetta, "The Merry Widow," will be the offering in the Alvin for one week, commencing Monday night. Beppie de Vries, Continental prima donna, and Donald Brian, original "Prince Danilo," will appear in the leading roles.

"Strange Interlude," the nine-act drama by Eugene O'Neill, opens a two-week engagement in the Nixon Monday afternoon. Because of the play's length, performances are scheduled to begin at 5:30 o'clock. At 7:40 there will be a dinner intermission and the play will be resumed at 9 o'clock.

Recent letters from Anne Forrest to her sister, Mabel Kroman, indicate that when Miss Forrest returns from Florida, where she has been spending the winter, she will pause long enough in Pittsburgh to appear in at least one production as guest star with the George Sharp Players in the Pitt. Next week's attraction will be "Two Girls Wanted."

Alice Day's Engagement To Jack Cohn Is Called Off

By DOROTHY HERZOG.

HOLLYWOOD, MARCH 27.

THE Malibou Beach contingent are getting that familiar with their Pacific frontage, most of 'em now refer to Malibou as Mallie. . . . Alice Day's engagement to Jack Cohn has been called off. The flick-ite and her broker-fiance were to have been married come April and April was coming . . . Ernest (novelist and playwright) Pascal has gone to work for Fox. Um, writing a Western yarn. . . .

IVAN (W. K. AGENT) KAHN predicts 1930 will be highlighted by Pauline Starke's sensational return as a star. Pauline is working steadily these days. . . . He was such a bounding, nice looking prize fighter lad that a racous voice at the Hollywood Stadium monikered him the "Leaping Daffodil." . . . George Arliss and his wife have set sail from England. En route to Hollywood. Where Mr. Arliss will make another talkie, "Old English" . . .

Alice Day

OFF TO THE RACES

ALL Hollywood journeyed to Agua Caliente last Sunday to lose hard-earned coin on the Coffroth Handicap Race, or races. Also the green top tables. Nearly all Hollywood went. Those who stayed ter hum are eating as usual . . . Hoot Gibson and Sally Eilers (in line for the yes-walk) are fight fans. Hoot reckons it isn't safe to let Sally learn too much about the "gentle art," but Sally says "please." What's a guy to do? . . . George Fawcett philosophizes that an actor shouldn't make his job an obsession. Neither should it be a concession. Many screen results point to the latter . . . There's a lad around town said to be a dead ringer for Conrad Nagel.

SINGERS MAY CO-STAR

LAWRENCE TIBBETT will be concert-touring until the middle of May. Some talk about him and Grace (Metropolitan Opera Soprano) Moore co-starring in "New Moon." . . . Ralph Ince two-timed his acting job in "The Big Fight." In the outloud, Ralph plays the fighter's manager. The picture is completed. A Spanish version is to be made. Ralph will direct this. Hence, the two-timing . . . Al (director) Green is a cold victim . . . Jack Warner does tricks with coins when in conference . . . Irving Thalberg, when listening to a writer narrate a story, has a habit of walking to the window and twirling his watch chain . . . Harry (Columbia Pictures' head) Cohen has a contraption in his office whereby he can turn a switch and listen to what's going on on every set.

HUNTER IS THERE

LUPE VELEZ and Gary Cooper having a late snack at Ye Brown Derby. Glenn Hunter is in town. Whispers that Glenn may play the lead in Cruze's production of "Circus Parade". George O'Brien has had umpty ump hours in the air. He'll loop a pilot's license, bime by. Marjorie White has adopted a poodle that was washed into the studio by the rain last week. Marjorie says the dog thinks he's a collie.

MR. AND MRS. ARTHUR HAMMERSTEIN (Dorothy Dalton) return East in three weeks to remain until the fall. Then they hit back West, where Hammerstein will movie-ize "The Bird of Paradise," with music composed by Rudolf Friml.

Takes Four-Cent 'Cut' in Boy's Poker Game

NEW YORK, March 27.—(AP.)—Lorenzo Esposito was in court here accused of exacting a "house cut" of four cents from four small boys playing penny ante in his candy store. The total amount in the game was 20 cents.

Girl, 14, Admits Starting Fires For Thrill

LANCASTER, Pa., March 27.—(AP.)—Alice Deckert, 14, who was caught setting fire to a pile of paper and clothing in her bedroom, has confessed that she burned a barn last July, District Attorney S. V. Hosterman announced. In her story to the district attorney, Alice said she started the barn fire for the "excitement."

The girl was committed to the shelter home. Her parents are dead, and she has been living with Mr. and Mrs. Frank Witmer, of near Edisonville, in whose home she attempted to start the fire.

She was living with another family in the same community when she started the barn fire.

ASSAIL OUSTING OF TEACHERS

LIBERTY, Mo., March 27.—(AP.)—Dismissal of three professors from William Jewell College here on charges of modernism has been called a "grave academic wrong" by a committee from the American Association of University of Professors.

Dean Robert Ryland Fleet, Prof. Harry George Parker and Prof. Lorenzo Dow Weyland were dismissed May 24, 1928, by the Board of Trustees of the school.

Among the findings, published in the current issue of the Association Bulletin, the Committee reported:

"That President H. C. Wayman had laid claim to possession of academic decrees to which he was not entitled and had gained professional advantages from such claims.

"That the charge of modernism was overdrawn; that it possessed validity only for the extreme Fundamentalist partisans, and that in this extreme sense it was not the real ground of the board's action, although it was a weapon used in the controversy."

JEFFERSON DAY FETE SCORNED

WASHINGTON, March 27.—(AP.) — Representative Howard (Dem.), of Nebraska, has declined an invitation to attend the Founder's Day exercises of the Thomas Jefferson Memorial Foundation with the assertion that one of the principal speakers "would not recognize a Jeffersonian principle if he should meet it in the middle of the road."

The exercises will be held at the University of Virginia April 13.

The Nebraskan wrote:

"In view of the fact that your organization has listed as its chief speaker a United States senator who would not recognize a Jeffersonian principle if he should meet it in the road, I feel that I would not be playing the part of one loyal to Jeffersonian principles by lending my presence to such an occasion."

Two senators, Fess (Rep.), of Ohio, and Dill (Dem.), of Washington, are scheduled to speak on the Founder's Day program.

DON'T WORRY about pyorrhea— PREVENT IT

AS LONG as The Danger Line keeps healthy, you will not have pyorrhea. In two important ways, Squibb's Dental Cream protects The Danger Line (where gums meet teeth).

First of all, Squibb's is safe. It does not contain grit or astringents or anything which might injure the delicate gum tissues. Second, it does contain 50% Squibb's Milk of Magnesia, a preparation recognized for its soothing properties and its antacid effect. Each time you brush your teeth with Squibb's you soothe the gums and neutralize the acids from fermenting food particles, which acids are the principal cause of irritated gums. Don't let The Danger Line, the delicate gum edge, start receding. Protect it with Squibb's. Get the generous-size tube.

JUDGE FORD TO RETIRE FROM BENCH

SIDE WALKS of PITTSBURGH

by WILLIAM PFARR

POLITICS is usurping Page One these days, and you may be interested in an excellent piece on one of Pennsylvania's most successful political war horses in the April Scribner's. Henry Hart writes of Boies Penrose. Mr. Hart tells a story which illustrates the practical mind of Politician Penrose.

Penrose, no older than 36, had just been elected to the Senate, and his political sponsors, one of whom was Matthew Quay, felt that he would be a better representative of Pennsylvania if he took unto himself a wife.

Ever the politician, Penrose answered: "If the Republican organization will pick the woman, I'll marry her."

Dick Ware, who has been entertaining around town for three years, has been installed as the head man in one of our theaters, and we thought that the public would be interested in the secrets of his private life; so we sent Elim Wheel around to see him. Through Bill Wyman, Elim met Mr. Ware on the Smithfield Street Bridge.

"Ask him hard questions," Mr. Wyman suggested. "He knows all the answers."

There they were, the three of them—Wheel, Ware, Wyman—leaning over the bridge rail and dropping peanut shells into the Monongahela River, which pours into the Beautiful Ohio.

"How are you?" Elim grilled Ware.

"I'm all right, how's yourself?" Ware retorted.

"How are you?" Elim addressed Wyman, ignoring Ware's implication.

Wyman refused to answer!

"Now listen here, Wyman," Elim carried on, "is it true you kidnaped Charlie Ross?"

Wyman's head hung in shame, and tears from his dimmed eyes poured into the Beautiful Monongahela River, which still pours into the great Ohio River.

"And you, Ware, did you or did you not strike Billy Patterson?" — this from Wheel, the truth-seeker.

Ware's head, too, hung in shame and tears from HIS eyes poured into the great Monongahela River, tributary of the Beautiful Ohio

Wheel left them there, disdaining to learn who won.

Sir:

Joining your campaign for cleaner clocks, we rise to ask:

Why, in every jewelry window overflowing with clocks and watches, is none of them ever going?

This seems to me poor policy, for nothing increases sales resistance like looking frantically at several score assorted hours and minutes indicated while you're rushing to the office mornings, late as usual for work. Please complain about this.—J. W.

YESTERDAY I wrote about my Democratic candidate, and didn't mention his name. I didn't think I needed to. I said he has been given a university degree for his advice in high finance. Well, what Democrat have we got that could get into a big financial conference (unless he was a watchman or messenger boy) outside of Owen D. Young? Well, Owen is my man. If Grundy's tariff passes, about 60 birds drawing wages as Republican congressmen will be washed up in November.

TAILOR BEATEN, POLICE HUNT ROBBER

Thug Floors Victim With Sash Weight, Then Loots Pockets and Makes Escape

While William Stine, 32, a tailor, of 6327 Frankstown avenue, lay in the Pittsburgh Hospital with a probable fracture of the skull, police today were searching for a Negro who beat him on the head with a sash weight in his shop and rifled his pockets of $5 late yesterday.

Stine was alone in the shop when the Negro entered and asked to look at a suit and an overcoat. When the tailor turned, the thug struck him several times with the five-pound weight which he drew from his pocket. He then robbed Stine of his cash and a check for $3.

Stine was found on the floor in the rear part of the shop by a passerby who was attracted by his cries.

Four bandits held up Harry Camins in his grocery store at 2701 Webster avenue, and escaped with $40 from the cash register last night, Camins told police. Camins described the four as well-dressed.

Thirty dollars was stolen by two bandits when they invaded the store of Jacob Rosen, at Thirty-fourth and Ligonier streets, last night. They made their getaway in an automobile.

CHIROPRACTOR APPEALS CASE

Howard C. Long, chiropractor, of Thirteenth and Carson streets, took steps today to appeal from a verdict in Criminal Court yesterday finding him guilty of practicing without a license.

The case is the latest of a series of test cases, brought in different parts of the state aimed to force chiropractors to procure licenses to practice drugless theraphy, as defined in the rules of the State Board of Medical Examiners.

The case against Long was brought by W. J. Hawes, special investigator for the State Department of Public Education. Deputy Attorney General David Glick represented the department and Assistant District Attorney John F. Haggerty tried the case. Long admitted he had no license and the jury quickly found him guilty.

A skidding automobile ran over the curb in the 900 block of Brownsville avenue, today, and pinned Fred Roshuskey, 43, of 934 Excelsior street, against a pole. He was taken to the South Side Hospital, suffering from a fractured leg and lacerations. Joseph Kreba, 40, of 1503 Celtic street, driver of the car was arrested.

WHITE HOUSE GANG

Very Severe Initiations Conducted by Boys

Theodore Roosevelt, when President of the United States, started the adventurous, rollicking, joyous career of the White House Gang by sending his youngest son, Quentin, to the Force Public School in Washington. Here the gang was recruited. The accredited members are Charles (Taffy) Taft, "Brom" Seeley, Dick (Sailor) Chew, Edward (Slats) Stead, also called "Bedstead," Walker White, "T. R.," the most active member of the gang; Quentin, the leader, and Earle Looker, the author of this story.

Each day, after school, the gang went into a huddle to confound all rules of deportment in high places, mingle in the lives of presidents and policemen, win victories, taste honor, suffer punishments and engage in escapades which were swept along the wires to national publicity. Many exploits of the gang, however, either remain unknown or were known only to the President and Mrs. Roosevelt. Some there were securely hidden even from them.

CHAPTER XX.

THESE bedtime talks, both at the time they were engaged in, and in after years to look back upon, were among the most pleasurable incidents in the entire story of the White House Gang. Wilkins, the houseman, says he remembered these occasions particularly, because "in the morning I'd find Quentin's clothes and everybody's else scattered everywhere, and shoes up on top of bed-canopies or behind cupboards, where they'd been slung the night before."

Finding two left shoes and no rights to mate them, Wilkins, being in charge of the boys' clothing, had, on one occasion, to report these losses to Mrs. Roosevelt. She was not greatly disturbed, however, being happily wise and full of understanding. She simply authorized the purchase of another pair of shoes. When one of the missing shoes was discovered behind a picture that had unaccountably tilted, she set it down to unexpected and profitable increment.

Part of her wisdom lay in not expecting or demanding too much from Q, with regard to unimportant details. She knew more about the mind of a child—manifesting her knowledge, continually, in a hundred various ways—than any teacher of child-psychology I have ever known.

That both the President and Mrs. Roosevelt—despite the demands of their great public position—continued to know their children so well was nothing short of a great achievement. I have no idea how they managed it. Thoroughly on a par with TR, we felt that Mrs. Roosevelt considered it a misfortune to be a First Lady, and, therefore, not able to romp with us, through rooms and halls of the White House. For both of them, there was a great deal of work to be done, yet both would make frequent breaks from conferences or other functions in order to keep track of us, and to take part in our enterprises whenever it seemed advisable to them.

Understanding
Keen Judgment Shown By Mrs. Roosevelt

Mrs. Roosevelt possessed a quick understanding of when it was wise to interfere with Gang plans—and when to look the other way. She knew that her adult motives could not entirely be her guide; she clearly recognize those moments when outside suggestions would promptly have been rejected, and when the Gang might easily have done the exact opposite of what she desired. Her judgment in these matters, was keen, because she was alive to the hourly changes of pitch of childhood spirit. She knew Q's humor at this time was at a place of crisis, and that the last intention of the Gang to conquer its world, had brought out all its egos and seriously threatened disbandment.

Of Q, Mrs. Theodore Roosevelt once remarked, "What a fine bad little boy he was!" Perhaps this comment equally applied to other Gang members when each was a self-nominated candidate for leadership. The whole future seemed to each one of us, personally, to depend upon it. Picking irritably upon one another showed, perhaps that the Gangsters were overstimulated by their familiarity with the White House and with being too often on the fringe of events, which, while they did not understand them, they nevertheless felt to be swirling about them as in some magnetic field of emotion.

Similar Gang
Boys Organized During Grant's Administration

This whole situation was unusual, but it was not new to the White House. Thirty-six years before, Mrs. Julia Dent Grant, the wife of the President, recognized the same problem, with regard to her youngest son, Jesse Root Grant, then 13 years old. Quoting from the Grant Gang Chronicle:

"With unusual judgment and foresight (Mrs. Grant) had observed the effect of the General's preeminent military position upon her boys when they were about Army Headquarters . . . " and later ". . . the effect of the White House environment upon children, especially upon Jesse. . . . To counteract this she sought association for him with a group of natural, healthy, normal boys and in order to break down the isolation which naturally surrounds children of the White House, she had this society organized. . . ."

This was the K. F. R. Society of Washington—the meaning of the letters has never been divulged—the Grant Gang, which met, first, on Christmas Day, 1871, in a gardener's tool house on the White House grounds—the exact location being under where the President's office now stands. Its thrillingly mysterious depths were lighted by a few candles, which disclosed a stove and only chairs sufficient for duly-elected officers.

'Tad' Lincoln
Dick Chew's Dad One of His Playmates

And as with us, many years later, there were six boys in the beginning of things — Jesse Grant, his cousin Baine Dent, Albion Parris (the Washington banker, to whom the chronicler of the Roosevelt Gang is indebted for this information), Harry Cutts, Frank Bolles and Walter Chew. The last-named, together with his twin-brother Leonard, who became the first new member, establish a blood-connection with Dick Chew, our own member, and so, between the Grant and Roosevelt Gangs.

Three uncles of our own Dick were members of the Grant Gang. (His mother's brother, Edward Cady, of Washington, was Grant Gang member number 68 in good standing.)

More remarkable still, is the fact that Dick's father, Robert S. Chew (well-known in Washington), who died in 1923, at the age of 73, was a playmate of "Tad" Lincoln, and member of the cadet company which drilled, in Civil War days, in our own south garden.

"Tad" (Thomas) Lincoln was 8 when his father came to the White House as President. His brother, Robert, 18, was away at school. His other brother, William, 10, died about a year later (February, 1862), during the darkest hours of the Civil War. The government departments closed as a mark of sym-

A boy and a girl walked down to the Carnegie Museum. They were visiting the Associated Artists' exhibition. They themselves wanted to be artists.

The boy stopped before a large oil painting by A. G. Kostello. "Man With Guitar" it was called. "How much character there is in that face," he thought. "I'd like to copy that."

He set to work with his soft pencil. Carefully, slowly he worked. He watched it take form, grow into a likeness of the original. A senior at Peabody, he modestly entered the drawing in the Pittsburgh high schools' Associated Artists' exhibition contest. He did not expect it to take the prize for the best copy of a painting in the exhibition, but it had been a lot of fun doing it anyhow.

The girl went on. She saw a soft textured oil painting of a girl leaning back on an old-fashioned sofa. "Repose," it was called. A pretty name, and the picture looked so restful to this young girl.

Instead of copying the effect Katherine McFayden, the painter, had achieved with oil, she would try something new. She would work it in black and white, in India ink with brush and pen for the finer lines. She, too, entered her picture in the contest, almost forgot to wish for a prize.

The boy, Morris Plotkin, Peabody High School, and the girl, Esther Capen, a junior at Langley, have been notified that they won first and second prizes, respectively, in the contest.

A check for $10 will soon reach Morris, one for $5 will come to Esther.

STUDY CHANGES IN PRECINCTS

The redistricting commission today was studying plans for changes in the voting districts of three wards submitted last night by residents to subcommittees of the commission.

A proposal was made to reduce the districts in the Eighteenth Ward from 28 to 15 when voting machines are installed in Allegheny County. It was also proposed to reduce the districts in the Tenth Ward from 29 to 17. Uncertainty over whether the former borough of Overbrook would be included in the Twenty-ninth Ward complicated the plans for that district.

HEALTH WILL DECIDE WHEN

Feels Better, He Reports, on Return From Florida Trip; Jurist Tells of Early Life

Judge Thomas J. Ford, 72, who through his own initiative rose to a place on the bench without graduating from a university or law school, will retire, but not earlier than next September, he hopes.

"I feel much better," said the jurist today, upon his return from Florida, "and I guess you want to know if I am going to step down."

HEALTH IMPROVED

Then the jurist pondered for a moment, indicating that before he made any real statement concerning the subject, he first desired to discuss the matter with his colleagues on the bench and with his physician.

However, it can be said he feels his health has improved and is hopeful that conditions will permit of him performing his duties. If satisfactory work can be done, he will remain on the bench for the present, but if his conscience dictates otherwise, will retire before the coming fall.

PRAISES EVANS

"I am decidedly sorry to hear that Judge John A. Evans intends to retire. He has a wonderful capacity for work," commented Judge Ford.

"Tell something about your early life," the judge was urged.

"I was seven when my father, John B. Ford, was killed in 1863 in the Civil war. He was a sentry. His death left us distressingly poor. My mother was the bread winner. I longed for an education. I loved books. At 15 I was in the Uniontown Soldiers and Orphans' School. Mother wanted me home. So there I went."

And then he stopped to reflect. It was plain he was opening his heart to what he had in mind.

"Well, I decided that I was going to get an education somehow. I went to work. At 19 I was a ticket seller at a Federal street station of the Pennsylvania Railroad. The midnight oil was burned. I read. Got all kinds of books. Friends often borrowed some and never returned them. The Rev. A. H. Calvert, father of George H. Calvert and pastor of the Etna Presbyterian Church was my preceptor. He taught me mathematics and other things."

GETS START IN LAW

"How did you come to get into the legal profession?"

"Why I just got hold of every law book that would teach me anything. Then M. A. Woodward (a well-known lawyer of his time) took me in hand and taught me the law."

"And you finally were admitted to the bar and won a place on the bench, without the aid of any school?"

"That's pretty it," said the aged jurist proudly but modestly.

Judge Ford was chairman of the Allegheny County Republican Committee from 1902 until 1906. He is serving his third term on the bench. If he retires this year, it will be on account of physical disability and he will receive full salary for the remainder of his term which has eight years to run.

Pictures of Judge Ford and other veteran jurists are printed on Page 20.

Duke Purchaser Rivals Alice in Wonderland

"A university purchasing agent is concerned with a greater variety of subjects than the Walrus in Alice in Wonderland, who spoke of 'shoes and ships and sealing wax, of cabbages and kings,'" says Rev. Joseph P. Danner, treasurer of Duquesne University.

Father Danner buys all the supplies for a university with an enrollment of more than 3,500 students, and his list of purchases contains everything from candy for the confectionery store to deadly poisons for the science and pharmacy schools.

Just to prove that his position is somewhat different from that of other purchasing agents, Mr. Danner can exhibit a list with objects ranging in size from pins to drying ovens for the chemistry department. Ox eyes, earth worms, athletic equipment, food for the university cafeteria and hundreds of other things used by a modern university in teaching are on his schedule.

Footprints in Snow Lead To Arrest in Robbery

If it hadn't snowed heavily today Sam Edwards, 23, Negro, wouldn't be in jail.

Sam broke into Steve Bazin's candy store in Vespucius street and took $30 worth of stuff, police say. Steve, asleep upstairs, was awakened. He notified police.

The police followed footprints which led from a rear window. The prints took them two blocks distant to Sam's home in Dyke street. In the snow the prints stood out clearly.

While police were breaking in the house Sam jumped out a rear second-floor window.

Again police took up the prints. They led to an adjoining vacant house.

They found Sam on the roof, running from one housetop to another. Sam gave up when he heard a few shots. In Morals Court he admitted the robbery. He was held for court.

ACTION URGED BY CIVIC BODIES

Allied Trade Boards Given Indosement; Criticism of Expert Brings Criticism

Controversy over the selection of a site for Pittsburgh's Town Hall again came to the forefront today with these three developments.

George S. Davison, chairman of the Town Hall committee of the Chamber of Commerce, replying to a letter circularized by E. C. Eppley, president of the Eppley Hotels Company, operating the Ft. Pitt and William Penn Hotels, opposing the selection of an Oakland site for the hall, suggested that Eppley owes an apology to Lincoln G. Dickey, town hall expert.

The Allied Boards of Trade announced that virtually every board of trade in the Pittsburgh district has indorsed the board's resolution urging immediate selection of a site.

FOR GOLDEN TRIANGLE

Dr. Bert W. Caldwell, of Chicago, executive secretary of the American Hospital Association and former superintendent of the Allegheny General Hospital here, declares that the site selected should be the Golden Triangle if Pittsburgh wants to attract convention visitors.

The letter of Eppley which brought a reply from Davison yesterday called attention to the fact that Dickey is manager of the Atlantic City convention hall and added that "it is well to consider that a properly located town hall would make Pittsburgh a formidable contender for the important convention business now going to Atlantic City."

In his letter Davison answers this assertion as follows:

"The strength of your point depends upon how far you can succeed in impugning the motives of the gentleman you mention in your foot note. From what I know of the character of this gentleman and the thoroughness of his work in his investigation of the subject of a site for the town hall, I should say that you owe him an apology."

DEFENDS DICKEY

After reviewing the circumstances connected with the retaining of Dickey, the letter continues:

"As to your inuendo about Mr. Dickey mislocating the Town Hall of this community to weaken its competitive effect upon other cities, I have this to say: Mr. Dickey many times favored a co-operative plan for certain features of city-owned auditoriums in the management of which he desired to play a prominent part. Pittsburgh was in his picture. How could he have had the incentive with which you have charged him? It is unthinkable.

In an interview credited to Dr. Caldwell, he is reported to have said that the American Hospital Association convention might be brought here if Pittsburgh "had a place to put the convention."

"We would be glad to come to Pittsburgh if you had a town hall and if your town hall were located near transportation facilities, hotels and the business district," Dr. Caldwell was quoted as saying.

Camera Question Box

The Sun-Telegraph's "Camera Question Box" each day will ask a question of public interest to Pittsburghers and will photograph those interviewed.

Today's question: Does capital punishment check the murder rate?

WILLIAM S. BROTZMAN, South Hills, meteorologist: "I do not believe capital punishment has any tendency to decrease the number of murders. Juries are prone to bring in a verdict of not guilty when there is a least doubt of a murder suspect's guilt. In my opinion a life sentence should be the extreme penalty."

W. S. Brotzman

MARY GUZY, Castle Shannon: "When a person commits murder he does not think of being tried and getting the "chair" for his deed. On the other hand, if he knew an efficient police system would capture him and send him to prison for life he would not be so ready to take another's life."

Miss Guzy

MARY DAVIN, Beechview: "Nobody should be permitted to send another to his death. Just because one man kills another, society has no right to take the murderer's life. Nothing is gained by such action. Murder can not and is not decreased by dealing out capital punishment."

Miss Davin

O. S. REED, McKees Rocks, telegrapher: "There is so much talk about capital punishment today that the one convicted of first degree murder and condemned to die is made a hero by the public. Death by such a method is so gruesome that it causes a world of discussion. Life in prison would be the better sentence and would cut down murders."

O. S. Reed

ELMER A. LYLE, Hazelwood, engineer: "Capital punishment belongs to a barbarous society. Almost every authority on the subject of crime will urge that taking life neither checks the murder rate nor has the desired effect on potential criminals. The best argument in the world is to consider the number of murders committed in this country where we have capital punishment."

Elmer A. Lyle

WILSON GLASGOW, South Hills, foreman: "I do not know much about murderers but I do believe that they are in no dread of the electric chair. To say that capital punishment checks murders would be going a little far. Crime, including murder, seems to be on the rise."

OVERBROOK PROTESTS BECOMING PART OF 29TH WARD

COUNCIL ASKED TO FORM NEW DIVISION

Residents Point to Rapid Growth Arguing Annexed Borough Should Be 32nd

A vigorous protest against placing what recently was Overbrook in the Twenty-ninth Ward was voiced in Council yesterday by Attorney John J. McGraw.

Residents of the newly-annexed territory are aroused over reports that Overbrook is not to be a new ward, the Thirty-second.

Council nevertheless will send a resolution to the Quarter Sessions Court asking that the territory be placed in the Twenty-ninth, John S. Herron explaining to McGraw that the re-districting commission plans to have three election precincts there, too few for one ward.

McGraw declared that the population and valuation of Overbrook has increased one hundred per cent in two years and predicted 8,000 voters there within five years. Deeds already have been registered for "Thirty-second ward" property, he said.

He suggested that several districts in the Nineteenth near Overbrook be placed in the new ward.

The matter is to be left to the courts to decide.

RATE PROTEST ORGANIZED

The new rates are to go into effect May 20. The drive was started yesterday after representatives of 60 industrial concerns met in the chamber.

According to Donald O. Moore, manager of the chamber's traffic division, the local firms face the prospect of being driven from the outside steel markets because of unfair rates. No formal protest will be made to the commission until the railroads publish the new tariff rates, which will be next month.

When the rates have been published, the local group will gather evidence purporting to show the alleged unfairness to local shippers for formal presentation to the commission.

HOLMES TALKS ON PARIS

Paris of 25 years ago, Paris of 1918 and Paris of 1930 were shown in pictures and vividly described by Burton Holmes in the second of his series of traveltalks of the season at Carnegie Music Hall last night. But the evening was not confined to Paris alone, for the lecturer journeyed with his large audience throughout France, from the heights of Alpine France to the fishing villages of Brittany, from the snow-bound Pyrenees to the gaiety of Deauville. Personalities, too, were presented in a pleasant way, prominent society folks and theatrical notables caught by the camera in casual attitude on beach and boulevard.

This is Mr. Holmes' thirty-seventh season of lecturing. Next Wednesday night he will present the new Germany, the following week cruising the Mediterranean, and the final week, April 16, showing delightful spots in Northern Italy and Venice.

PATRICIA PITT'S SPRIGHTLY COMMENT ON PITTSBURGH'S SOCIETY HAPPENINGS

Helen Garrison Hawman Names May 3 as Day For Her Wedding

EVEN unseasonable snow flurries cannot repress the bridal temperament of folks these late March days, and girls, undaunted by the surprise cold wave, are planning for weddings in April or later spring. June dates are interesting brides-to-be, too.

Many of the girls whose betrothals were made known in the fall are going to be spring brides. One engagement announced in October will end in a wedding of early May.

I'm referring to Helen Garrison Hawman, daughter of the Henry Grant Wassons of Devonshire street, who has named Saturday, May 3, as the date for her wedding. And her fiance is Allyn Bellamy Whaley, of Pittsburgh, formerly of Toronto, Canada.

The wedding will take place at high noon in the family home of the Wassons, with only members of the two families present. And the officiant will be the Rev. Dr. Hugh Thomson Kerr, pastor of the Shadyside Presbyterian Church. * * *

Debut Plans

DEBUT plans for next winter are already being made and some have been settled for several years. One of the buds of next season will be Jane Marshall, daughter of the Charles D. Marshalls, of Fifth avenue.

She will meet her mother's friends on Wednesday afternoon, November 12. Later Mrs. Marshall will give a tea for Jane and the Marshalls will also give a dance for her.

Jane and her sister, Mary Margaret, who made her bow two years ago, have been in Paris this winter, and will return to the States in mid-May. * * *

AMONG the weddings of spring will be that of Helen Rebecca West, daughter of the Charles Howard Wests, and Alexander Logan Wilson, son of Mrs. John Logan, of the King Edward Apartments. The wedding will take place at 5:30 o'clock in the home of the bride-elect's father and mother. * * *

YESTERDAY, stormy March was honored with as lovely a wedding as ever the month of June could bring, when Mary Currier Lewis, daughter of the James Edward Lewises, became the bride of Solon Armour Person, of Memphis, Tenn., and Pittsburgh, son of Mrs. John Meinch, of Pittsburgh.

Lewis Wedding

The ceremony, as you know, took place in the Lewises' Aylesboro avenue home, with the Rev. Dr. E. J. Van Etten, rector of Calvary Episcopal Church, officiating. The altar was formed of cibotium ferns and large urns of white roses were arranged attractively everywhere. On each side of the embankment were Italian seven-branch candelabra.

The bride, given in marriage by her father, wore a distinctive gown of creme satin in princess mode. The close-fitting waist was of duchess and old rose-point lace and a full court train fell from the waistline. Mary's veil of creme tulle fell from a cap of duchess and rose-point lace and she carried a shower bouquet of white orchids, white sweetheart roses and lilies of the valley. * * *

Bridal Party

HER maid of honor, who was her sister, Mrs. Harry Christian May, Jr., wore nymphe chiffon, with a quaint touch added by the new mit effect terminating the sleeves, and with a long, flowing skirt. Her flowers were Johanna Hill and Talisman roses, having a border of African daisies and blue delphinium, with streamers of ribbon matching her gown.

The bridesmaids were Phyllis Person, a sister of the bridegroom, and Betty Charters, and they both wore gowns of Madreline tinted crepe chalon and net, fashioned with a net yoke and circular sleeves, and the skirt of the gowns of crepe with flounces of net, touching the floor. They carried Talisman and Johanna Hill roses, with borders of delphinium and lilies of the valley.

The bride's mother wore a lovely gown of mousseron crepe Elizabeth, a Germaine Lecomte model, in bolero effect and featuring the peplum skirt. Mrs. Mench wore black lace.

The best man was Jeter Eason, of Memphis, Tenn., and the four ushers were Jack Currier Lewis, Edward Lewis, Jr., brothers of the bride; Harry Christian May, Jr., and Joseph Currier Willey. * * *

Wedding Dinner

AFTER the wedding there was a reception for 225 guests, who were seated at numerous small tables centered with spring flowers arranged in shallow bowls. The bridal table for 25 guests was all in white with a centerpiece of lilies of the valley, sweet peas, lilacs and white iris.

The Solon Persons left for Havana and will later visit Mexico City en route home. They will make their home in the Dithridge Apartments. * * *

DENTISTS WARN AGAINST ABRASIVES

Would you clean silverware by rubbing it with sand? Sounds foolish—yet some people whiten their teeth with tooth pastes that dentists all agree wear down the enamel surfaces. Once removed, enamel can never be restored. Use PEBECO Tooth Paste—science guarantees that it will clean and whiten without marring the enamel surfaces. Also, Pebeco retards decay by neutralizing the destructive mouth acids. Try Pebeco one week—then ask yourself if your teeth aren't whiter, brighter,—if your mouth isn't really refreshed.

THE MODE IS BLUSHING IN MANY SHADES OF PINK

—Sketched in Paris—

Paris Bureau, Pittsburgh Sun-Telegraph

PARIS, March 27.—The mode, this spring is raising pinks. We do not refer to the flower, although it is no doubt represented in the printed designs, but to the hue, which is omnipresent in every showroom here just now. During the era of the more severe aspects of the mode, pink was in the discard but now it has no reason to blush because of neglect.

To be smart, you must be "in the pink," and therefore Patou is to be congratulated for the impetus he gave to that color by his introduction of the extremely attractive rose "Opaline" which is expected by buyers here to duplicate its success on your side.

Nearly every collection is also using black combined with pink, always a good combination, especially for the brunette. The pale pastel pinks are also much liked, particularly in heavy stains and crepes, while black and pink taffeta is used for some extremely effective models. And so, you who have a yearning for a pink frock, which you had to supress for some time, can now step boldly forth in the roseate reflection of your favorite shade with the assurance that you are very much a la mode. * * *

CALLOT is showing an interesting model and we have had it sketched for you. It is of black taffeta combined with pink in an original manner. The colored material forms the simple bodice and the large pouff at the side. It also borders the black taffeta skirt which is extremely wide and flaring and sweeps the ground at sides and back.

EFFECTIVE simplicity is the keynote of the model from Augustabernard. The bodice is softly draped at a moderately high waistline and the straight skirt is given width by groups of inverted and unpressed pleats at front or back. Over the hips in a diagonal line is superimposed a circular peplum of the material, which is heavy but supple pastel pink crepe, ending in a straight line across the back.

CRANE GUILTY IN 2 DEATHS

HARRISBURG, March 27.—(AP.)—For the second time within seven months, Samuel (Red) Crane, a former major league baseball player, last night heard a jury return a verdict of second degree murder against him. Crane was on trial for the killing of John D. Gren, a brick salesman.

Last September a jury returned a similar verdict against the former ball player for the killing of Miss Della Lyter, an employe of the State Highway Department. Gren and Miss Lyter, a former friend of Crane, were shot and fatally wounded last August 3 while seated in a hotel here.

The jury deliberated four hours. The verdict carries a penalty of 10 to 20 years.

The State at both trials asked for the death penalty. The prosecution sought to show that the killings were the result of Miss Lyter's ending her friendship with the ball player. The defense maintained that Crane was so intoxicated that he did not realize what he was doing. The defense also introduced an element of self-defense by maintaining that Gren was shot after he had gone to the aid of Miss Lyter and had struck Crane with a ukulele.

WOODMEN BALK RATE FOES

SPRINGFIELD, Ill., March 27.—(AP.)—A bill for injunction to restrain opponents of the proposed higher insurance rates announced by the Modern Woodmen of America from attempting to stop the enforcement of the new schedule, was filed in Federal Court here by Glenn Kenderdine, a member of the society.

The Supreme Court of Illinois at the last session held that the high rates of the society were legal and were necessary to keep the fraternal insurance group in a solvent condition. Several groups of the membership, however, have asked for a rehearing of the case by the Supreme Court charging collusion, fraud and violation of the Federal Constitution in the rate change.

Rifle Bullet Cuts Phone Service To 10 Towns

WASHINGTON, Pa., March 27.—A rifle bullet cut telephone service in the Monongahela Valley to Washington and Pittsburgh. Crews worked for hours restoring service.

Linemen found a bullet hole in the sheathing of a main cable, carrying 154 circuits.

Monongahela, Finleyville, Charleroi, California, Brownsville, Uniontown, Monessen, Donora, Belle Vernon and Fayette City were without service to Pittsburgh until repairs were made.

BRITISH SEEK NANKING SITE

SHANGHAI, March 27.—(AP.)—The British government, it was learned in authoritative circles here, is acquiring leaseholds in Nanking, with the view of possibly removing its legation from Peiping, China's old capital, to the Nationalist government's capital.

This is the first major outward move toward moving foreign legations to Nanking to be in closer touch with the Nationalist government, which supplanted the regime of the northerners at Peiping, formerly called Peking.

The British have not made known the date of the possible removal of their legation. It is believed, however, that if the removal takes place, other legations shortly will follow to Nanking.

The Japanese legation's headquarters has been in Shanghai many months. Nelson T. Johnson, the new American minister to China, recently said that he intended to spend the major portion of his time in Nanking and Shanghai. Several legations of the lesser nations have been making Shanghai their diplomatic headquarters.

PALESTINE RIOT AWARDS GIVEN

JERUSALEM, March 27.—(Jewish Telegraphic Agency)—The government has made public a compensation scale for the Palestine riots of last summer which provides no compensation for the deaths of persons under 14 years of age.

Persons between 14 and 18 who were killed are worth a maximum of $500 in compensation. A wife whose husband was killed is entitled to a maximum of $1,250, while a husband whose wife was killed gets only $500. If both were killed the maximum claim to be allowed is $1,750. For disablement from wounds the compensation scale ranges from $25 to $500.

STATE POLICE ASKED TO GO

MOUNDSVILLE, W. Va., March 27.—Captain Lloyd Layman, of the West Virginia State Police today conferred with Prosecuting Attorney Arnold and Sheriff George Dorsey, following demand by Mayor J. D. H. Sullivan that the troopers be removed from the county.

They have been on duty here since a strike has been in progress at the Valley Camp Coal Mines. The mayor contends that their presence causes trouble.

A family doctor's laxative is the sensible choice!

YOUR health is too important! You can't afford experiments with your delicate bowels when a coated tongue, bad breath, gas, headaches, nausea, feverishness, biliousness, lack of appetite, and no energy, warn of constipation. This applies not only to grown people; it is particularly the case where young children are concerned.

That's why a family doctor's laxative is always the safe choice! Only a doctor knows just what will cleanse the system of men, women or children without harm.

Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin is prepared today under strict supervision from freshest herbs and other pure ingredients, and exactly according to Dr. Caldwell's original prescription.

He was a family doctor for more than forty-seven years. He specialized in the disorders of the digestive tract. He tested this prescription in thousands of cases. Men liked its quick and thorough action; the children liked its pleasant taste; old people praised it because it never gripes.

Today, millions of families rely on Dr. Caldwell's judgment in the selection of their laxative. Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin is now sold in all drug stores. It is the world's largest selling laxative.

NEW SEASONING IMPROVES FOODS

Make It at Home With Two Familiar Ingredients

To make this new seasoning all that is necessary is sugar and salt. Mix them together—a pinch of salt to a dash of sugar—and a flavor is created that has no equal.

This combination of sugar and salt is ideal for all kinds of cookery. Vegetables such as tomatoes, carrots, cabbage, peas, spinach and corn take on new goodness when thus flavored. The familiar French dressing is also improved by this seasoning. In cooking chops, in making meat sauces or stews, the same holds true.

Many cooks keep a dish containing a mixture of salt and sugar on hand. The proportions can be varied to suit the taste, but equal parts of sugar and salt, or two parts salt to one part sugar, are the most commonly used.

The value of this new seasoning lies in the fact that it makes essential foods more palatable. Finicky children and adults who have no appetite will eat the food their systems require with relish when thus flavored. Doctors and dietitians approve this use of sugar. The inviting flavor increases the flow of gastric juices and as a result, the food is digested more quickly. Good food promotes good health. The Sugar Institute.

CHICKIE

By ELENORE MEHERIN

Barry and Chickie Are Disappointed Again

CHAPTER XLIV

IT WAS August—the month they had planned for their vacation. No need to give that up—they could still have this joy together. So Chickie induced Jonathan and her mother to take a cottage on the river.

"An' I'll come down and be your swain and row ye about and teach you much wood lore." He crossed his arms about her shoulders. "Chickie don't fall for any one else till I get there—will ye?"

"I think sometimes Barry that you love me more now. Do you?"

"Right ye are." It was enough before.

During their first week Jennie went about humming to herself, standing on the porch, sighing. "Smell those trees! Isn't the air soft?" She laughed at her fancy. "Chickie dear, God must be very close. It's so beautiful!"

"I think He's perched in that branch up there, Jennie darling. Sometimes I feel Him staring down."

Jonathan, his great legs sprawled before him, smoked his pipe, went for the mail, made the fire in the kitchen stove.

Chickie lay in a hammock, her head in her folded arms, gazing happily at a bit of blue sky that seemed dropping like a scarf between swaying branches. She thought with a rush of expectance: Day after tomorrow. She already had picked out the paths where they would walk, the spot on the beach where they would swim. She imagined him rushing to her with an excited: "Well—they've sent word! It's going through!" They were always waiting for that—actually expecting it.

He came on Saturday. Oh, she made herself so pretty—white shoes and stockings—dress of rose and a great drooping hat. Even the pert audacious youngsters of fifteen and sixteen—all of them dolled up and powdered and ruffled, so that they looked like a gaudy, riotous field of flowers—stared at the sweet wistful grace of her as she waited at the station.

Barry Arrives

She scarcely noticed them. She strained her eyes down the track, catching her breath as the whistle roared; as an immense whirling feather of smoke circled upward.

First to get off—hurrying toward her—suitcase, books, boxes of candy—young face vital with eagerness. He saw her—jabbed her arm because his hands were filled with bundles. "Hello, dear!"

She laughed, unable to speak, walked with him through a lane of trees and glancing up found his mouth full-cut and sweet, pursing at her daringly.

"Don't Barry! I'm too happy now!"

He laughed. "Why not frail! This is a near honeymoon, you know!"

And it seemed to Chickie that they had indeed entered a garden of enchantment. He was full of buoyance. They walked, they swam, they paddled about—early in the morning—late at night. A thousand gossamer threads woven of sunlight, of water, of moonbeams dropping on them through trees bound them together. He put his arm about her—kissed her. She felt her spirit was already his.

Other times they went to the dance because she loved that. High school boys earning a dollar on their vacations furnished the music. Girls of 15, careless, radiant creatures, danced with the wiles of Salome, but smiled with the innocence of cherubs—a mystery to some of the old ladies who came with their grandchildren and sat on the hard benches arranged about the floor. Outside, under the trees, other girls rested their heads on the shoulders of young boys. They smoked frankly.

Chickie Learns to Swim

Scandalized, the old ladies whispered the stale refrain: "What are these young people coming to? Look at that one in red. Some one should tell the girl's mother!"

A moment later the girl in red and her happy-go-lucky partner sauntered to the ice cream parlor and quite oblivious of the shock she had administered to the past generation, partook delightedly of strawberry sundaes and root beer.

To Chickie they were but bright, joyous youngsters, very much like herself except that they were still dwellers in a make-believe of sentiment. She had in her hands the warm, living reality—a love that was both beauty and terror.

It seemed that way in moments of shivering gladness when she acknowledged to herself the power of his word, his glance. Especially when he taught her to swim. She that had been frightened of the water plunged in like a young Undine. Once he made her swim far out and she knew it was so deep she might be sure to drown. But because he said, laughing at her: "You will!" Because of that, she did it. He kept alongside of her. When they had almost reached the bank, he drew her head under the water and kissed her.

She was startled. "Don't do things like that, Barry. You take my breath away."

He did it again.

They came up the path. Jonathan, sitting on the porch, watched them absently. He listened to Chickie's glad crystalline laughter. Afterward as she dressed, he came and stood beside her. He raised her face in his great palms, looking at her till she blushed and tried to pull free. He whispered: "Chickie girl—you're very happy?"

"Oh, Jonathan!" Her eyes filled. She said hastily: "It's so glorious here. I wish we could stay forever."

She had an idea that everything was blessedly settled now. It would come out all right and soon. Because he seemed to feel that way, too.

One day after a swim they were lying on the sand, half hidden by trees. He had his head against her arm. Half shy, she kept looking at his long, muscular form—so clean, and then at his face, the red hair wet and slicked back from his forehead.

Barry Confident

He laughed and, reaching up, pulled off her cap, so that her hair fell down. "Like me frail? Stoop down and put your wet lips here!"

"No—wait. You know—you seem so happy—why Barry?"

"A secret—"

"Tell me."

"Wrap your hair around me and I will."

"No—"

"I'll tell you anyway. I wired to Moore. Told him we'd got to know. So I think we're a cinch to win in a week or two! That's why." He pulled her down. "It's a good thing, Chickie! Lordie, I could never wait five years."

She was half crying with excitement.

"Could you, Chickie?"

"Don't ask—never mind. I hope——"

"Well—I feel sure."

They talked about it—they planned. They waited for that answer. It came Friday.

Erect and tall, brown shirt open at his throat, and all the 16-year-olds smiling at him, Barry stood in the long line before the postoffice window. He gave Chickie an expectant wink: "Get the big word today!"

Charley, grouchy and slow, pushed letters under the grating. Their turn now. He glanced at the writing, stuffed them in his pocket and, taking Chickie's arm, all but ran her along the road back to the cottage.

They walked swiftly. Below them the river, winding like a bright snake between the willows. A boy, his body gleaming like bronze, leaped from a diving board into the water.

Both of them were breathless. "From Tufts," he said, tearing the envelope. She pressed against him, looking over his arm.

Another Disappointment

He said: "Well," his face blanching. He doubled the paper in his hand.

Chickie reached for it, saw at the end of the short page this sentence: "Moore doesn't mention your appointment. They've evidently dismissed the plan—for the present, at any rate."

She folded the sheet carefully. Not glancing at him, she whispered: "Barry—it won't matter"—She found it hard to breathe.

They plunged on recklessly. The veins in his neck swelled. The heat made her limp. They sat down under a tree.

He said, grim and spent: "That settles it. We can cook!"

She threw off her hat and leaned against the tree. He stared at her white forehead, her hair bright against the redwood bark. He took her hand, saying roughly: "But doesn't this seem insanity to you?"

"What?"

"This—this here! They can control us. Tell us when to go and when to come. It's slavish—"

She closed her eyes, letting her head rest on his shoulder. After a while she murmured, smiling: "But we love each other anyway! No one can stop that."

He answered, troubled: "I don't know what we should do."

All afternoon he watched her eager, doubtful eyes. As they lay on the beach on a little slope he took her hand. He pressed it in the sand and pressed his mouth in its hollow—held her like that a long while.

She felt a tremendous pity and longing. She wanted to creep close to him, put her hand over his hair. She said: "Barry—there may be other words tomorrow."

"No—no, there won't."

WHAT good brakes are to an automobile, and a compass is to a ship, self-control is in life!

Self-control is often the deciding factor between failure and success, happiness and misery.

Proper self-control stays the hand that would commit a crime, that would destroy one's self.

It is that quality that helps us make decisions in the right direction.

It is self-control that keeps the ambitious youth at his tedious tasks, and helps him often to pass the more gifted, who, lacking self-control, fail by the way.

In self-control one has the essence of all other good qualities.

With self-control one does not need much in the way of laws to keep on the right path!

Madge Arrives at the Farm

THERE is no material pleasure to me so satisfying as a motor drive through the country. I suppose it is because I am an incurable romanticist, and cannot forget the dreams of my bookish childhood when I pored over tales of old coaching days in England and the colonies, and closing my eyes would imagine myself driving over strange roads and supping or breakfasting at roadside inns.

But reason has little sway with me where motoring is concerned, and when I had left the city behind and with but two or three cars in sight had swung upon the bridge, I felt as if I suddenly had been transplanted into another world.

With my early start I had plenty of time to reach the farm for my talk with Katherine. So while I rolled through the uninteresting stretches along the road, I loafed and filled my beauty-loving soul with pictures of winter-stripped woodland and meadows, of evergreen crowned hillocks and tiny sunlit lakes, and best of all, when I reached Shinnecock Hills, of the wide expanse of sea rippling in the sunlight.

I knew just the welcome which would be mine when at the gate I should sound the horn of the car. I could see Katie rushing out with her apron over her head with Jim more sedately at her heels, could see my father open the door and come out on the veranda, and then I knew Katherine would appear with Junior to whom my unexpected coming was to be a surprise. He is so strenuous in his anticipation of any expected pleasure that Katherine and I have agreed not to tell him when any of us are coming to the farm for fear that something may happen to prevent the journey and thus disappoint him sorely.

But it was I who was disappointed when no response such as I had pictured came from the sounding of my horn. Indeed I scarcely had pressed my fingers upon it when the front door opened and Katherine stood in the doorway, her arm outflung in a gesture which meant silence.

My fingers fell from the horn and gripping the wheel I brought the car to an abrupt stop, and jumped out, my heart pounding, my throat muscles contracted. What illness or accident had befallen my home in the few hours since Katherine and I had talked together? I knew Katherine well enough to acquit her of fussiness. There must be some serious reason for this admonition to silence.

As I ran up to her she relieved my worst fear with characteristic and considerate promptness.

"Nobody hurt, nobody sick," she said. "But make no noise. You're looking very fit."

Her welcoming kiss, her manner, were carefully reassuring, but I could not rid myself of the notion that something momentous had happened. And when I was inside the house from which no sound of activity came, I turned upon my little kinswoman and took her by the shoulders.

"I'm not a baby," I said. "Tell me what has happened?"

Tomorrow's Horoscope

Friday, March 28

THE stellar movements for this day seem to hold an element of conflict. There may be unexpected changes, with solid returns for industry and fidelity, but also there are omens of money losses and intrigues. Purely personal affairs may be agreeable and pleasant.

Those whose birthday it is may anticipate an interesting and eventful year with some advantageous change but funds should be protected and precaution exerted as to subtle or crafty methods.

A child born on this day should be ingenious, original and accomplished as well as practical and industrious. It should be trained in economy.

The Marry-Go-Round

By HELEN ROWLAND

One Woman and Another

WHEN a girl goes South in winter and North in summer, it is not so much for a change of climate as for a change of heart-interest.

Love is like seasickness. The moment the effects wear off, a woman forgets all that she has suffered, and is keen to plunge right into another adventure on the stormy water of emotion.

The modern woman is getting to be like a fashionable resort hotel—awfully strong on scenery, but awfully weak on cooking.

Before marriage, a man lays his heart, etc., at a woman's feet and parks his car at her door; after marriage, he lays his troubles at her feet and most of his sins at her door.

Funny, how the average man will cheerfully let a woman choose his religion, his friends, his diet and his amusements for him, if she will only give him his own sweet way with his cravats, his cigars and his shoes.

Wonder if a man ever suspects how much practice it requires for a girl to return his kisses with all the hesitancy of an amateur, all the delicacy of a lady, and all the enthusiasm of an expert.

The reason why platonic friendship so seldom lives long enough to ripen is because most men kill it at the roots, by trying to Burbank it with a little cheap petting.

When her husband forgets the goodby morning kiss, a bride is heart-broken; but a seasoned wife feels that the day has started with sweetness and light, if he just goes out without banging the front door wrathfully behind him.

Even love is far brighter when jeweled with consistency.

How to Keep Well

By DR. ROYAL S. COPELAND

Sleepless Nights

SLEEP is life-giving. It is essential to our very existence. When it is disturbed and broken we are reduced to poor creatures. Many there are who suffer from the evil effects of sleeplessness and would give much for quiet sleep.

DR. COPELAND

During sleep every muscle is at rest, the nerves are at rest, and the brain is at rest. The heart and lungs keep on working, but the digestion is on part-time work.

Sleep is perhaps more necessary than food; at least one can go longer without food than without sleep. As we sleep we collect energy for another day.

Without sleep the nervous system breaks down. Insomnia or loss of sleep is a serious matter, especially if it become a habit.

Speaking of habit, the way we sleep is somewhat a matter of habit. You have noticed that if you lose sleep for two or three nights, or go to bed very late, you are likely to take on the habit of being sleepless.

There are many causes for the condition known as insomnia. A constitional trouble, some injury or sickness may bring with it this uncomfortable and depressing symptom.

Improper diet, with constipation, is perhaps the outstanding cause in a majority of cases. Poisons in the body from the intestinal tract badly affect the nervous system. Sleeplessness is the result.

Drinking coffee at night will cause insomnia in a nervous person. So will excessive smoking or the taking of certain drugs.

I beg of you not to resort to the taking of drugs for insomnia. Too many lives have been ruined in this way. Sleeping powders, sleeping potions, sleeping drops are all dangerous. They lead to drug addiction and conditions worse than insomnia. They should not be self-prescribed certainly. This is your doctor's job.

Try taking a tepid bath. This is a good thing before retiring. It causes your nerves to relax. The circulation is drawn to the extremities. Sleep is likely to follow.

Many persons find a glass of warm milk beneficial before going to bed. A real meal is harmful, but something light taken into the stomach before bedtime may help you to sleep.

Sleeping in the fresh air is good for sleeplessness. Have the windows wide open. Given a comfortable bed and plenty of warm covering in cold weather this is conducive of good sleep.

Taking a brisk walk before bedtime, with deep breathing, is a splendid tonic. Walk until you are physically tired. A physically tired person is the best sleeper.

Worry is probably one of the most common causes of sleeplessness. Once you get this bad habit you are likely to fare very badly for sleep. Why worry? It never did any good. Learn to banish thoughts of business and other cares when you leave the day's work.

Correct Manners

By MRS. CORNELIUS BEECKMAN

A Light Evening Punch

DEAR MRS. BEECKMAN: I let no day go by without reading your column, so you may rest assured that I find it interesting. It has aided me many times in the solving of social problems.

1. Would you kindly advise me as to whether or not it is correct to serve a light lunch, consisting of a piece of cake and a dish of mixed fruit, or any other simple dessert, when one's young man friend is calling?

2. Also, if proper, how often can this be done?

THANK YOU.

THANK you for your kind expression of loyalty to my column—it made me very happy, I assure you. Do let me help in your own problems whenever you think that I can.

1. I think that this plan is a very hospitable one, and by all means correct. And I am sure that the "young visitor" will be pleased.

2. As often as you wish; as often as he comes to see you. But, of course, vary the items of your menu.

Thoughtful Hospitality

DEAR MRS. BEECKMAN: An old friend of the family buried his wife and daughter about two months ago. Would it be wrong to write inviting him to have dinner with us?

R. L.

NO; indeed it would not be wrong to extend this kind thought and hospitality to this man whose life must be very shadowed. It would be a great act of kindness for you to write him a note asking him to dine with you and your family. Of course, in your note you would explain to him that only your family will be there, and I should also explain to him, if I were you, that you will understand perfectly if he does not feel that he wishes to come, but that you would very much like to have him dine with you if he feels that he would like to.

The White House Gang

pathy. . . . At only one other time (when at the death of Calvin Coolidge, Jr., the departments were generally closed by the individual action of the secretaries), has the death of a child been so observed in our history. President Lincoln, already bowed by the cares of war and state, turned to Tad for some brief moments of consolation. It was about this time that Secretary of War Stanton, harsh, peremptory, sharp-tongued, violent, succumbed to Tad's winning disposition and in a moment of indiscretion, commissioned the boy a lieutenant in the Union Army.

Gang Drafted

By all accounts, Tad Lincoln must have been very much like our own Q, for he speedily had the White House staff drilling under his orders. This becoming impracticable, he recruited, perhaps drafted, a company of boys of his own age, to command—the Lincoln Gang.

Thus, due to Dick Chew and his forebears, the Roosevelt Gang of the White House proudly claims a tradition not unlike that cherished by some of the historic regiments of the line—that of carrying on an unbroken history of defeat and victory, through the administrations of Abraham Lincoln, U. S. Grant and Theodore Roosevelt!

A member of the Grant Gang once wrote: "How we have ever been willing to speak to each other, in all these years, after the way we treated each other in those days, is a wonder. Very few of us escaped being expelled, in disgrace, at one time or another; and most of us either resigned in a huff, or were expelled for unpaid dues, or for none-attendance at meetings, or for non-performance of duties. . . . There were meetings when the president could only keep order by shying kindling-wood at the heads of unruly members—days when there were free fights—days when there were fierce rivalries and personal jealousies, causing a quick succession of cliques, and cabals, and cauguses, and heart-burnings to follow." Added proof is scarcely needed—that boys of one generation differ very little from boys of another.

Severe Initiation

In jealousy and a sense of alleged superiority were the real motives for the revival of initiations among us to be found. Sometimes these were carried off in fun, sometimes in all seriousness; but at this particular period, they were instituted with the hope that their severity might eliminate rival candidates for leadership, for if a member quailed under the imposition, no matter how difficult its accomplishment, he forfeited his chance of honor.

With the Gang, initiations began again mildly enough. A member was blindfolded and presented with three or four inches of wet macaroni and told to "eat this worm, alive, cold and wriggling, and swallow it down whole after chewing it thoroughly, for a minute by the watch. . . ." Sometimes he would be given one grain of cooked tapioca, and told it was the eye of a fish. The "black" hand, was fireplace soot smeared across the lips, and drinking four full tumblers of water in immediate succession, which was supposed to produce the cramps—but never exactly worked.

The "white" hand, was talcum powder, more preferably flour, massaged well into the scalp, and sifted down the neck, on the outside. The "hot" hand, was a stinging blow with a shingle on the sitting-down portion of a member's anatomy delivered with all the strength each of the other members could muster. All of this was to be taken without the slightest demur, or sign of annoyance.

More Hazardous

These serving as preliminary degrees, an initiation then became more hazardous—jumping from high places; hanging by the hands where a drop would mean certain physical disaster; being dragged by the legs down staircases; bumping heads against marble floors until a required crack in tone was noted and approved. By far the most difficult, because almost entirely mental, was the strain imposed by having to pass a number of minutes in absolute silence. This was a cruel infliction for Q. For this degree, the candidate would be led about by the Gang bent on meeting or creating a situation wherein, from reasons of explanation or protest, it were a thing almost impossible to maintain silence. Meanwhile, the candidate had to do whatever he was ordered to do, right up to the last second of the specified period.

Q was thus led by the Gang out from under the south portico and across the lawn to meet what must have been two distinguished visitors, seeing that they were being shown about the gardens by an aide. The Gang, inspired by an exceptional opportunity thoroughly to haze Q, walked him right up to the visiting group with the greatest effrontery.

"Look friendly and pleased," Q was ordered in a whisper.

The Aide, not hearing the aside, began an altogether proper introduction to the guests. "This is Quentin," he said, "the youngest son—"

Apologizes for Rudeness

"Turn your back on 'em," was the whispered order.

He promptly obeyed.

"Quentin," said the aide in a sharper tone, noting that something was wrong. "Your mother's guests should be shown what kind of a boy you are, you know." The aide was making an appeal to Q to behave, and very handsomely ignoring his bad manners and lapse from an almost invariably frank friendliness. The situation began to be noticeably strained.

"Shake your head," was growled into Q's ear.

Q did as had been bidden.

"Rather unusual and uncomplimentary," one of the guests remarked.

"Quentin Roosevelt!" the aide said curtly. "What's become of your manners!"

"Make a noise like an army mule, but don't say a word!" was the Gang's whispered command.

Q brayed half a dozen times, in rapid succession.

The Aide flushed with embarrassment, the two guests were visibly annoyed, and the interview was becoming altogether painful for all concerned. The back of Q's neck was a rich deep crimson right down to the margin of his collar.

"Time!" cried small Walker White, in a large voice.

The Beauty Box

By HELEN FOLLETT

No complexion is weather-proof. Overheated apartments make the skin scaley. Water moisteners should hang on every radiator, not only to protect the skin from steam heat flaying, but to keep the breathing mechanism free of dried membrane and subsequent colds. The skin should be well oiled during the winter season. After coming in from contact with the caresses of Mister North Wind, give face and hands a cold creaming.

Tiny white bead-like projections, which sometimes appear around the eyes and on the cheeks, are seed acne. The opening of the pore closes and sebaceous substances bank up into masses. The only means of removing these blemishes is to slit them with a sterilized needle and to pick out the little bead with the needle end; it is often impossible to remove it by means of pressure. Follow with applications of alcohol.

Many cases of irritability, nervousness, headache and intestinal troubles can be laid directly to the spiked heel which throws the body out of balance, drags down and displaces the inner organs, curves the spine at the wrong place and raises the dickens generally. If high heels were necessary for health and comfortable locomotion, we would have been born with them.

MEINE FACES CUBS TODAY

SPORT COMMENT
by JAMES J. LONG

Grand National Awaited. Pittsburgh Represented. Bucs Rich in Pickets.

Mosolf Stays as Extra. Adams in Card Infield. Record Floor Series.

WON BY ONLY TWO AMERICAN HORSES

THE presence of a Pittsburgh horse among the 40 odd probable starters adds greatly to the interest with which local sportsmen await the outcome of the toughest and most hazardous event in the racing world, the Grand National Steeplechase, to be run tomorrow over the famous course at Aintree, near Liverpool, England. This entrant is Glangesia, of the Rolling Rock Farm at Ligonier, owned by R. K. Mellon. In fact, it might be said that the hopes not only of this district, but of all America, will be centered partly in Glangesia, as since the scratching of John Hay Whitney's Easter Hero, second last year and considered the best prospect for 1930, but five of Uncle Sam's horses remain in the running. The four others are Whitney's Sir Lindsay, H. Gordon Selfridge's Ruddyman, Stephen Sanford's Sandy Hook and Victor Emmanuel's Royal Arch.

R. K. Mellon

Only twice has the English classic been won by an American steeplechaser. The first was Stephen Sanford's Sergeant Murphy in 1923, and the other was A. C. Schwartz's Jack Horner in 1927. Two entrants from this country have finished second, Howard Bruce's Billy Barton in 1928 and Whitney's Easter Hero last year. Both of these horses were beaten out by 100-to-1 shots, Tipperary Tim and Gregalach. You never can tell about the Grand National. It's anybody's race.

GLANGESIA, ridden by Jockey Browne, will carry 144 pounds tomorrow. With Easter Hero out the top weight will be 168 pounds, carried by Gregalach, last year's winner. The race was first run at Maghull 93 years ago, or in 1837, and the initial Aintree running was held in 1839. The distance is 4 miles and 856 yards, or twice around the course. A $1,000 trophy goes with a purse of $50,000 or more.

The course is the most difficult in the world. There are 16 fences, but on the second time around two of these, the Chair and the Water Jump, are not taken, the horses swinging outside for a flat run to the finish line. The Chair is a fence 5 feet high and 3 feet wide, with a ditch 6 feet long and 2½ feet deep on the take-off side. The Water Jump is a span of 15 feet, with a hedge 2½ feet in height on the far side. Most of the other jumps are at least 5 feet high and 3 feet in width. In 1928, only Tipperary Tim and Billy Barton finished out of 42 starters. Out of a record total of 66 starters last year only 10 finished.

NOT only will the Pirates be well fortified with reserve material for the infield this year, but the outfield situation also is a source of gratification to Pittsburgh fans. No club in the country looks better than the Bucs in that department.

Paul and Lloyd Waner and Adam Comorosky form a first string second to none in the game in all-around worth, and when it is considered that in addition to these Manager Ens will have Fred Brickell and Jim Mosolf as substitutes, with Ira Flagstead on the side, it will be seen that no other pilot in the big show is quite so well supplied with extra timber.

Jim Mosolf

PAUL WANER appears to be headed toward a big season, perhaps the best of his career. He is working hard and gives every promise of hitting again as he did in his most successful seasons here. Lloyd is likely to be O. K. when the gong sounds, but if he needs a little longer rest Brickell may be expected to hold down the job satisfactorily in the meantime. Fred is good enough for anybody's outfield. And don't overlook the helpful part that Mosolf is likely to play this year. This youngster is certain to be retained to fill in and for pinch-hitting purposes. He is a real line-drive hitter, a hard worker and bound to improve steadily in his fielding, both as an extra first baseman and outergardener.

AMONG those paying tribute to the football prowess of the late Walter Eckersall is Willie Heston, Michigan's immortal, who played two games against him. "Eckersall was one of the best field generals the game ever has seen," Heston says. "He was a very versatile player, a clever and fast runner and an exceptional punter and drop kicker.

"He was the fastest man of national prominence in football, and the only player in my own career ever to bring me down from behind. Three times in the two games I played against him he pulled me down after I had broken away from the entire Chicago team and had an open field ahead of me."

CORNELL UNIVERSITY'S football troubles of recent years have been many. According to Gloomy Gil Dobie, the school just hasn't the material from which to carve winning teams. Since the Carnegie Foundation Bulletin No. 23 gave a clean bill to Cornell football, many of the alumni have been up in arms, insisting that Cornell be made more attractive to the gridiron star.

With the situation well on the way to being crystalized, Jess Carver, football editor of the Sun-Telegraph, is to speak to the Cornell Club of Western Pennsylvania at its weekly luncheon in the William Penn Hotel tomorrow, discussing the Carnegie Foundation report, Cornell football, and things to do about it.

Sparky Adams

ACCORDING to the latest tip from the training camp of the St. Louis Nationals, Sparky Adams, former Pirate infielder, is in a fair way to become a regular in the Cardinal lineup. Manager Gabby Street's original intention was to open the season with Andy High at third base, Frankie Frisch at second, and Adams in the role of a substitute, but he has benched High, shifted Frisch to third and put Adams at second. Street makes no announcement as to whether or not he expects the new arrangement to be permanent, but it looks as if Adams will be a regular for the start of the campaign, at least, if he keeps up his present gait.

DUCKPIN bowling teams of this section and elsewhere have a new mark to shoot at that probably will keep them busy for some time, following the remarkable performance of the Red Moran Colts in a South Pittsburgh League match against the Beltzhoover No. 2 team on the Bank alleys in South Twelfth street. There were eight individual scores above 200, high being 232 by T. Fabio.

The Colts rolled 937 in the first game, 1011 in the second and 975 in the third, a total of 2923 and an average of 195 pins per man per game. The team average per game was 974. Vierheller bowled 202, 187, 214—603; A. Rogers, 198, 156, 221—575; B. Burns, 166, 212, 226—604; W. Buckley, 202, 224, 169—595; T. Fabio, 169, 232, 145—546.

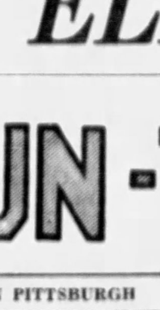
HORNE IMPROVES

PHILADELPHIA, March 27.—(AP.)—The condition of Oliver Horne, of New York, University of Pennsylvania boxing captain, who was operated on two days ago for a clot on the brain, was said by University hospital physicians today to be "satisfactory," although still serious. Horne, they reported, was resting peacefully.

BENEDICT, STEPHENS FAVORED

By JESS CARVER

The quest of the faithful for a plate of head lettuce that actually can be cut with a fork without said greenstuff careening from your own plate to that of a neighbor will be resumed tonight at the Keystone Athletic Club as the Dukes of Duquesne University honor the varsity basketball team, which didn't win any titles during the past campaign, but did make it tough for all other championship contenders.



Brud Stephens

Aside from the very important matter of getting enough to eat, the main interest in tonight's affair will center about the election of a captain for the coming year. Ganzy Benedict, who led the Dukes during the past campaign, and the veteran Brud Stephens are both considered to be in the running, with one Bluff faction favoring the retention of Ganzy and another boosting Brud.

The speakers of the evening will be Graduate Manager John Holohan, Father Dowell, chairman of the athletic council, Coach Chick (Sez You) Davies and the captain.

THE GRIND BEGINS

Monday afternoon, Bob Waddell willl ift his conch shell to his lips and issue the call for spring football practice at Carnegie Tech. The dapper head coach will be in full charge of the three weeks of intensive drill carded for the Tartan forces, Advisory Coach Wally Steffen intending to remain in Chicago.

The Skibo coaches expect to have close to five score candidates working in the spring drills. It has been suggested that a practice game be arranged with Southern California. This suggestion comes from the gang that traveled to California in that compartment car last December.

More than 40 football candidates are working out daily under the guidance of Head Coach Howard Harpster at Geneva College. The spring football practice has brought out many promising newcomers.

ALL HAIL JILLER!

The one and only Jiller Miller, who is almost as famous as his alma mater, Wash-Jeff, is itself, will be in full bloom tomorrow night as the Western Pennsylvania Alumni Association of W and J. gathers in the Willie Penn ball room to put on its annual football banquet.

The Wash-Jeff varsity gridiron squad will be guest of honor, former Federal Judge Thomson will deliver the principal address.

DUKE CO-EDS PLAY

A warm encounter is expected in Duquesne University gymnasium tonight when the Duke co-ed basketball team meets the Sixth U. P. Church girls in their second tilt of the season. The Irish lassies' tangle with the church girls' sextet whom they defeated in their first game, will doubtless provide plenty of action and rivalry.

The Duke co-eds are coached by Miss Danella Shannon, instructor in physical education for women, and the Sixth U. P. basketeers by Miss Virginia McMillan.

May 3—W. & J. at Pitt.
May 10—Bethany at Pitt.
May 12—Carnegie Tech at Pitt.

May 19—Carnegie Tech at Tech.
May 24—Pitt at Allegheny (pending).

Nick Altrock Says:

SOMEWHERE IN THE SOUTH, March 27.—I see that Shires guy that was hollering for $25,000 last winter finally signed up for $7,500. Comiskey couldn't have got a better bargain if he'd ordered him out of a mail order catalogue. I suppose Comiskey gave Arthur the talking privileges instead of the extra $17,500. The White Sox will be the only club in baseball that has a broadcasting station playing first base. If Shires should have a good season I'm warning you 1930 will be the year of the big wind. When Babe Ruth comes out with a prediction the Yanks will beat the A's this year, I'm afraid someone has been stuffing excelsior in Babe's straw ballot.

YESTERDAY'S RIPLEY CARTOON EXPLANATIONS — THE RECOLETO IN BUENOS AIRES, A GRAVEYARD WITHOUT A GRAVE—The Recoleto of Buenos Aires is the most magnificent City of the Dead and one of the grandest sights of the Capital of the Argentine. Its avenues are lined with endless rows of imposing sepulchral structures, repositories of the mortal remains of departed rich Argentinos. One of its peculiarities is that there are no graves dug throughout the cemetery. The ground is owned by the leading families of the Argentine, and space is costly and very scarce. TOMORROW—THE TRAITOR WHO WAS A HERO.

GIZZY DEFEATS ANDRUCCI

By HARRY KECK,
Sports Editor.

In a battle that started off with both men on the floor for knockdowns in the first round and one of them down three times in the first two rounds, Battling Gizzy, of Donora, defeated Andy Andrucci, of the East End, in the 10-round windup bout before another near-capacity crowd at Duquesne Garden last night.

After the hectic start, the thing settled down to an ordinary mauling affair, with Andrucci, who had rallied from two knockdowns in the first round to floor his opponent before the bell and then had been sent down again in the second round, coming on to outbox his opponent and take the lead by a slight margin before weakening under the pace and taking a beating in the last three rounds to leave no doubt of his opponent's superiority as a slugger.

VICTOR OFF FORM

Gizzy, noted as a buzzsaw type of fighter, was far off his usual form even in victory. His seconds claimed he hurt his right hand in the second round, but he managed to use this weapon throughout the bout. Except for spurts, he was sluggish in action compared with his best fighting manner. Andrucci was the better boxer and in the middle part of the bout had Gizzy missing badly while he himself was finding the range and scoring cleanly. Andy couldn't match his opponent in stamina, however, and had to break ground at the finish. He was cut on the left eye in the sixth round and finished bleeding from that spot and also from his nose and mouth, while Gizzy was unmarked. The decision in Gizzy's favor was unanimous. Gizzy scaled 132 pounds against 133½ for Andrucci.

The action in the opening round was spectacular and had the fans up cheering. Andrucci was outboxing Gizzy until the latter suddenly rushed, and, with a chopping right, floored Andy, who got up groggy at the count of six only to be punched down again, this time into the ropes. He still was dazed as he pulled himself up without a count, and, in an exchange in midring, nailed Gizzy, who hit the floor and rebounded. Both were almost out on their feet as the round ended with the fans hysterical.

KNOCKDOWNS FEATURE BOUT

Andrucci went down once more in the second round as Gizzy rushed him to the ropes with a right to the head and hit him again as he was falling from the blow. This time Andrucci took a count of eight and his head was clear when he got up. He outboxed Gizzy the remainder of the way, but lost the round on the knockdown.

The next two rounds went to Andrucci and Gizzy evened up the fifth by staggering Andy in an exchange of rights just before the bell. The next two rounds went to Andrucci, although his left eye was cut just as the sixth round ended, and he appeared to be well on the way to victory when Gizzy began a determined drive that carried through the last three

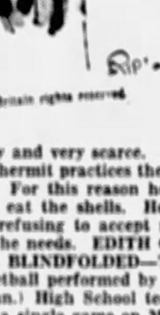
MORAN TO GET PARIS PURSE

Charles Francis (Frank) Moran, former Pittsburgh heavyweight title contender, will be between $60,000 and $80,000 richer within the next few months.

He said so himself last night while a visitor in Pittsburgh en route to his home in Los Angeles after a flying trip to Paris, where he arranged for the collection of the purse for his bout with Jack Johnson, then the heavyweight champion, held up there by a moratorium declared on the eve of the World War in 1914, when the 20-round battle was fought.



Frank Moran

Moran will receive the purse with compound interest, and he says it will be twice as welcome now as when he earned it, for the reason that his money came and went fast in those days of heavy earning capacity in the ring. Johnson will receive the major portion of his purse, with interest, and it amounts to more than Frank's end, although Li'l Artha received some of his money in advance of the show. They fought on a winner and loser basis and Johnson received the decision.

Moran also fought Jess Willard, Johnson's successor as champion, in Madison Square Garden, New York, in 1916.

Frank now is chief inspector for the Los Angeles district of the California boxing commission. There are three commissioners who are non-salaried, but the inspectors receive pay.

While here, Moran was the

PIRATES BEAT OAKS, 10-9, IN FINALE

By CHARLES J. DOYLE,
Staff Correspondent.

LOS ANGELES, March 27.—Los Angeles today is fussed up over the presence of two major league ball clubs which are set to open a four-game series at Wrigley Field this afternoon. The peppery Pirates reached the big town after an all night ride from Oakland, while the Cubs, who are to furnish the opposition, have been in this neck of the woods for weeks.

Two years ago Los Angeles thrilled at the spectacle of four battles featuring the Freebooters and the Bruins. At that time, the Pirates were champions of the National League, but the snappy Bears made them bite the dust four afternoons in succession. Now the Cubs are the champions, and there is nothing the Pirates would like better than to return the retort courteous. But do not bet on such an eventuality, especially with Pie Traynor and Burleigh Grimes among the absentees.

MEINE ON SLAB

Nevertheless, if there is a continuance of the wonderful baseball weather that has favored the Buccos in the past 10 days, the series here will attract many thousands. The series of two years ago proved a big attraction to Los Angeles folk and they seem to feel the same way toward the big league combinations. Los Angeles and San Francisco are major league cities in every way, except location.

Heine Meine will be on the slab for the Pirates in the first clash. He will be received by Rolly Hemsley. Charley Hargreaves had been slated to catch the opener, but Hemsley was out of whack yesterday and Hargreaves started in his stead.

The Buccos said farewell to the San Francisco Bay section yesterday with a victory in one of those slam-bang affairs. Both the Oaks and their big league rivals were in a distinctive batting mood, but the Freebooters were able to overpower the home foe in the long run, the score of the free-for-all being 10 to 9. Thus the Pittsburghers won two of the three games with the Oakland lads.

LIL HOLDS OAKS

The Pirates made all of their 10 runs in the first four innings and then went runless through five frames on account of the clever Bob Hurst. Howard Craighead, rated as one of the best of the Coast League pitchers, found the Pittsburgh attack so furious that he could not weather the storm. The same condition applied to Ervin Brame, the Pirate sharpshooter with the terrific sock. The Kentuckian continued his fine batting, but he was yanked in favor of Lil Stoner, while the Oaks were in the midst of a batting spree of the fifth. Lil threw the home boys back with a bright show of cleverness. His snappy curve was too much for the Oaks.

Louie Martin, the same kid who "busted" things wide open on the previous day, came through with three more hits, including a triple.

Joe Bellana was the batting star of the afternoon with a triple, two doubles and a single. In his last effort at the plate, he all but tied up the game, Bartell grabbing his liner to end the round. Paul Waner pasted the home pitchers for a couple of two-sackers and a single.

BUTLER LOOPS BANQUET

BUTLER, Pa., March 27.—The City Bowling League and the Foremans' Club League of the Standard Steel Car Company wound up their season with banquets here yesterday. The Foremans' Club had 147 men on its roster, while the City League had 120. Not a dummy was used during the season by the City Bowling League teams and a high average of 180 was established in the City League.

LES CANADIENS COP SERIES

MONTREAL, March 27.—(AP.)—A goal by Howie Morenz, after nearly two hours of overtime play last night, gave the Montreal Canadiens a 2 to 2 tie with Chicago in the second game of their Stanley Cup playoff series and won the round for Montreal, 3 goals to 2. The Canadiens had gained a one goal lead in the first game of the two game series between the second place teams of the National Hockey League.

The game set a new record for duration of overtime play, surpassing the mark made here last week by the Maroons and Boston Bruins by about six minutes. There had been 51 minutes and 53 seconds of actual play in the overtime period when Morenz broke the deadlock.

The victory sent the Canadiens into the second round of the playoffs for the Stanley Cup. They will meet the New York Rangers, winners of the third place series, in the best two out of three games for the right to oppose the first place victor in the finals.

F. M'NAMARA PRO AT NEW DRIVING RANGE

BOB-O-LINK LAYOUT OPENS TUESDAY

By VERN SWARTSFAGER.

A boy's greatest ambition was partially realized today when C. H. McDonald, manager, announced that Francis McNamara, brother of Jack McNamara, greenkeeper at the Pittsburgh Field Club, and son of the late John McNamara, vice president of the National Greenkeepers' Association, who for years was the esteemed keeper of the greens at the noted Aspinwall layout where Jack now holds forth, will be one of the professionals at the new Bob-O-Link golf driving ranges which are to open Tuesday in Aspinwall on the Freeport road and in the South Hills, on Pioneer avenue.

F. McNamara

STARTED AT FOUR

The appointment of Francis to the Aspinwall post will more than likely be received with a certain amount of surprise for McNamara never has held a similar position—but his many friends will be right on hand to encourage him in the making of a successful golf career, his life-long ambition. Francis is only 18 now but he has been playing golf since he was 4 years old when he played at the Pittsburgh Country Club; he has lived with the game and it is a part of him.

The new out-door driving ranges are not new to golf, although they are new to Pittsburgh. In Chicago and California they are "the rage" and it is anticipated they will be as well received here. At each of the two Bob-O-Link ranges here one finds 20 driving fairways, six of the tees enclosed for inclement weather and 14 open to the elements. The practice field in each case is more than 500 yards long—and golfers can smack 'em as long and as hard as they please a driver being provided if needed without interference.

TO OPEN TUESDAY

While the Aspinwall range, with its nine-hole putting green, is to be opened Tuesday, an effort will be made to open the South Hills layout at the same time, although it is still indefinite due to the fact that that range's construction got away to a late start. There are no membership fees, no dues, no caddie fees, no green fee—you just hire a bucket of balls and let 'em fly.

Another professional is to be named for the South Hills range, according to McDonald, with a chief professional to supervise both layouts. He is examining a long list of applications at this time and will be ready to announce the remainder of his staff in short order.

Hill Crest Country Club near New Kensington announces that the good Finley Boyce, former assistant at Oakmont, Rolling Rock and Champion, has been signed to replace Fred Robinson as professional there. It was originally announced such a change was to be made, but Hill Crest officials denied it at the time. Finley is a fine chap, and Hill Crest members should like his work.

The state tournaments have been carded for Allegheny again. It happens every other year. The open and amateur state titular affairs do not create the excitement they should because they are rather one-sided. When the tourney is played here, distant players make up most of the field. When it is played in Philadelphia, Eastern Pennsylvania golfers usually sop the bees.

The Stanton Heights Golf Club has voted to discontinue its annual invitation event, named for it, nearly one of the feature events in local golfdom. The Stanton Heights event usually proved one of the most successfully staged in this vicinity.

With Glenna Collett taking a troupe to England to play a team there this spring, it would not be surprising if the national women's invitation tourney at Allegheny, which usually draws the nation's elite, would be minus several of the stars who have played here in seasons past.

MISS ORCUTT LEADS

SOUTHERN PINES, N. C., March 27.—(AP.)—Lounging comfortably around the clubhouse yesterday, Maureen Orcutt, of Haworth, N. J., saw her brilliant 154 for the first 36 holes of the women's Mid-South golf tournament here withstand the assaults of a half-dozen entries, including the American champion Glenna Collett, and retain for her the leadership at the end of the second-round play.

Miss Collett faced weather conditions almost as bad as yesterday. A cold, driving windstorm swept the links as she made her round in 84. Her 80 Monday placed her in fifth position with 164—10 strokes behind the leader.

MYSTERY CLEARED UP

JACKIE WILSON

Former Jersey City middleweight boxer, who has shown so much class in a few starts in Pittsburgh that the fans had him tabbed as a "ringer." He boxes Mickey Solomen in the windup at the Moose Temple tomorrow night. In an accompanying article, the "mystery" about his career is cleared up.

SOLOMEN'S FOE SEASONED SCRAPPER

And now to clear up the mystery about the great Mystery Man, Jackie Wilson, middleweight boxer, who drifted into this man's town recently and set the fans to buzzing about him to the extent that he's fighting Mickey Solomen, of New Castle, in the main bout in the Moose Temple tomorrow night.

Wilson has appeared in four bouts in these parts, three in the Moose Temple, where he broke in as a substitute, and one at Washington, Pa., and has shown so much boxing class and hitting ability that the hardened patrons of the sport have set him down as a "ringer" who has been doing his stuff in other centers for a long time. His natural reticence has helped along this impression and it even has been whispered that he is an old campaigner who is trading under a fictitious name.

Such is not the case. Jack (or Jackie) Wilson is his real name. He is not quite 22 years old. He came here from Jersey City, where he broke in as a boxer a little more than a year ago, and he has just signed a contract for three years with Jimmy Conrad whereby the latter acts as his manager.

HAILS FROM ARKANSAS

Wilson came here via New Kensington, where he has a brother and a married sister. The home of the Wilsons is in Bigelow, Ark., which lies between Little Rock and Hot Springs. About two years ago, Jackie drifted to New York to work with a brother, who is a shoe buyer. Jackie became a shoe salesman and when business fell off became a boxer. He is a clean-cut youth who stands 5 feet 11½ inches in his socks and looks the part of a student or young business man rather than a boxer who knows plenty about the art of socking them to stay socked. In other words, he's now in the sock business to stay instead of the shoe business.

Jackie began to hang around the gymnasiums in Jersey City, and to fight at a small club on Monday nights, and in added attraction bouts at a theater on Friday nights. Thus he was going twice a week in short-distance bouts. He won his first nine bouts with knockouts and then drifted over to New York, where he gained the polish he has shown in his bouts here. His tutors in gymnasium workouts were such notables as Willie Harmon, Andy DiVodi, Izzy Grove, Sergt. Sammy Baker, Harry Ebbets and Rene DeVos. His most important bout was a closely-fought 10-rounder with Pal Silvers at Coney Island last September, the semi-final to a battle between Sid Terris and Emory Cabana. Silvers received the decision.

SENSATION HERE

After that bout Jackie did no more boxing until he came around here less than two months ago, and he substituted with only a few days' training against Georgie Chambers, former local amateur star and a hard hitter, whom he knocked out in two rounds. Since then he has won the decision over Chuck Zelnack in six rounds at the Moose, stopped Buddy Stewart, of Canton, O., in two rounds at Washington, Pa., and knocked out Charley (Tarzan) Wolfe, in two rounds at the Moose Temple. He is living on the North Side and his best fighting weight is 153 pounds.

Wilson has seen Solomen fight only once, the night Mickey lost to Gene Moretti at McKeesport recently, and he says, without bragging, that he will beat the rugged New Castle puncher, adding "if he doesn't fight any better against me than he did against Moretti, I'll knock him out."

Despite his natural advantages in height and reach over most men of his weight, Wilson does not stand off and box. Instead, he wades in to close quarters and blazes away with both fists until they drop. He looks like a rare prospect.

Kaye Don May Ask Sanction Be Extended

DAYTONA BEACH, Fla., March 27.—(AP.)—With beach conditions showing little improvement, Kaye Don, British contender for the world automobile speed record, announced today that unless he was able to make his trials by Sunday he would request the American Automobile Association to extend his sanction. The original sanction was made from March 15 to 30.

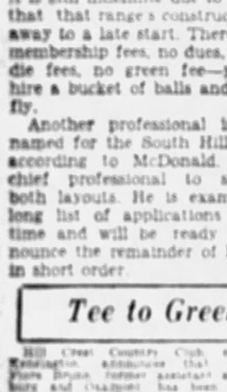
bers in the American League's split season pronouncing it the most sensational exhibition he had ever witnessed.



Pete Barry

The Rosies, who captured the world title for the third time by winning four games in a row after dropping the opener, placed a number of unusual feats to their credit. They came from behind in every game that they won, and set new professional records for field shooting and for holding their opponents scoreless over extended periods.

IN the third game, the Cleveland stars took only 26 flings at the hoop, a new mark. From this low total they scored six goals, enough to win. Their system was to retain possession of the ball and they rarely shot except when in the scoring zone. In the five contests they averaged only a shade more than 30 shots per game, while the average of the losers was close to 50. In the third, fourth and fifth games, the Rosies set another record by holding their foemen scoreless for 18, 16 and 15 minutes. In the final game they were held scoreless themselves during the last 15 minutes.

PETE BARRY, who has been playing professional basketball longer than any other man in the game, was the outstanding passer of the series, not only totaling more field goals than any other participant but actually starting every Cleveland rally. His floor work and shooting were amazing. Individual honors for a single game were won by Joe Lapchick in the fifth clash.

Lapchick also led in foul shooting with 13 out of 15 tries. Carl Husta was the leading scorer of the classic, with 11 field goals and 5 fouls for a total of 27 points. Kintzing topped the Centrals in scoring with 11 baskets and two fouls, a total of 24 points. The Rosies totaled 98 points against Rochester's 80, making 36 field goals and 26 fouls against their opponents' 30 and 20.

PRIMO CARNERA'S 54-second victory over George Trafton last night, the quickest of the 12 knockouts that have marked the giant Italian's American campaign, did not come as a surprise. In the first place Trafton is a football player and not a fighter, his only recommendation in the boxing game coming as a result of his knocking out Art Shires, and in the second place, a person of Trafton's inexperience could not be expected to weather Primo's heavy artillery. Carnera meets another set-up tomorrow night in Denver when he takes on Jack McAuliffe.

40 TO START IN STEEPLECHASE TOMORROW

YANKEE ENTRY IS SECOND IN BETTING

LIVERPOOL, Eng., March 27.—All Britain today eagerly awaited the ninety-first running of the Grand National Steeplechase over the famous Aintree course tomorrow.

Terminating one of the strangest training campaigns since the grueling chase was first run in 1839, 40 horses have been named as probable starters in the journey over the 4½ miles of heavy going with its 31 difficult jumps.

40 MAY START

Late scratches are expected to reduce the starting field to less than two-score, the smallest number in recent years. Yet out of that number only a small percentage may be expected to complete the course, which is famed for its severity. More than 60 faced the barrier last year, but only seven finished, while the year before the end of the long jaunt found only Tipperary Tim, 100-to-1 shot, and Billy Barton, the American representative, still running. They finished in that order.

The canal turn, Beecher's Brook and Valentine's Brook all take their toll. All of the hedges, varying in height from 4½ to 5½ feet, are of live gorse, thorn or spruce and are so closely packed that a man can walk across them without making an impression.

GRAKLE FAVORED

With the scratching of Easter Hero, the American-owned favorite, and the condition of Gregalach, last year's winner, still doubtful, C. R. Taylor's Grakle has been made the public choice at 100 to 12 against. Sir Lindsay, the mainstay of American hopes, rules as second favorite at 100 to 11 while Gregalach is quoted at 100 to 6 along with K. C. B., and Shaun Golin.

Since the Grand National was first run, only one American horse has won the race and he was owned by an Englishman. Rubio was the jumper. Billy Barton and Easter Hero, who was purchased by Whitney until late last season, have finished second. No American jockey has ever ridden a Grand National winner.

Tomorrow's renewal will be worth approximately $60,000, slightly less than last year when a record field of 66 started.

Comes to the office a visitor named Mr. James to see our Jess Carver . . . . A Jesse James combination . . . . But he didn't have a horse . . . . They've hung the name Muscle Shoals on Billy Scholes, North Side boxer, who drives a milk wagon for a living and recently came back out of fistic retirement after a lapse of several years to quickly fight his way up to semi-final estate . . . . He meets U. S. Carpentier in that spot at the Moose Temple tomorrow night . . . . In a way, the yclept "Muscle" aptly fits Billy. . . . He's the muscular type more often found in the rassling racket. . . . And it's a treat to see him winding up his delivery of punches in snake charmer fashion . . . . As Jim Miller, of this department, says, Billy has more poses than Jem Mace, of wood cut fame . . . Paul Mellon, son of A. W. Mellon, Secretary of the Treasury, was one of those to earn his oar rowing in the second boat of Clare College in the annual bumping races between colleges at Cambridge, England . . . This coveted honor is awarded to members of a crew which bumps the boat ahead of it every night of the four days' racing . . . Shall we go punting on the Thames this fine evening, old thing? . . . . And now the golf pros are to have a "Judge Landis" . . . . As if there is another such . . . . "Romero-Rojas' Comeback Attempt Ends in Failure," shriek the headlines. . . . The story is of a bout in which good old Romero lost the decision at the end of 10 rounds . . . . Aye, a failure, indeed, a sad, sad artistic flop . . . Time was when the great Romero could lose 'em all in the first or second round . . . . And in his palmy days he would have been one of Primo Carnera's victims long before this . . . When they begin to slip they go fast . . . . If you read anything in Fuzzy Pfarr's Sidewalks column about us, don't believe it . . . . He threatens dire calumny . . . . And if Havey Boyle ever tries to get out of another speaking date by referring the committee to us as a capable pinch-hitter, the committee is hereby warned that it's the old run-around . . . . Have still is filling dates that we wished on him and we want to quit the racket while we're ahead.—HARRY KECK.

INTERCOLLEGIATE SWIMMING

The record-breaking achievements of Michigan and Northwestern University swimmers in the Big Ten meet were very impressive. In fact, the indications are that Northwestern now has an excellent chance to win the team honors at the annual meet at Cambridge, but only after some great racing. Harvard and Yale will not be in this year.

Knute Rockne

The probabilities are that Kojac, of Rutgers, Olympic backstroke champion, will swim in that event, in which case Hinch, of Northwestern, and Wahl, of Syracuse, while giving him a good race, hardly can expect to win. Kojac has competed in the sprints all winter, but the backstroke is his favorite event.

Schwartze, of Northwestern, has become very consistent and should win two of the sprint events.

Howlette and Petersen, of Northwestern, have an even chance in the breaststroke with Moles, of Princeton, the present champion.

In the 440-yard swim, Ault, of Michigan; Wilson, of Northwestern, and Ruddy, of Columbia, all have a chance.

For team honors, Tom Robinson's Northwestern paddlers, by their remarkable improvement, look best.

COUNTY STARS MEET Y. M. H. A. TONIGHT

By JULIUS LEVIN.

The Young Men's Hebrew Association will officially close its home basketball season tonight when the team that will represent the local institution in the National Y. M. H. A. tournament in Newark, N. J. Saturday and Sunday faces an all-star quintet of Jewish passers gathered from the rosters of the Allegheny County League.

The County League All-Stars are headed by Eddie Losman, star center and forward of the Fintex team. The proceeds of the game will help defray the expenses of the Y. M. H. A. baseball team in the Pittsburgh Central League.

COUNTY LEAGUE STARS

Besides Losman, the County League team will include Harry (Red) Sapira and Sammy Klateman, of Fintex; Jock Rosenberg and Moy Rubenstein, of the Goldensons, and Bill Miller and Johnny Serbin, of the J. J. Veronas.

The preliminary game tonight finds the Y. M. H. A. Institutional Reserve League team in action against a team composed of University of Pittsburgh Freshies.

Tomorrow night will mark the resumption of the West Penn League playoff series when the Penn five entertains the Ray E. Schneiders on the Sharpsburg High School floor. The Penn five defeated the North Side Aldermen in the first battle and will be out to end the series by winning their second in a row.

The North Side Buicks and the Sharpsburg Y. M. C. A. basketball teams meet in Javor Hall, North Side, this evening in the playoff for the Greater Pittsburgh League title. The Marquettes and Trojans clash in a preliminary.

BENEFIT GAME LISTED

The North Side Community House basketball team winner of the senior A. A. U. title last Monday night will meet an all-star team of West Penn League players Saturday night in a benefit game for Frank Stansbury, athletic director of Community House, who has been confined to the Presbyterian Hospital for some time due to injuries suffered in the gymnasium.

Stansbury, who was seriously injured during one of the gym workouts, is a popular figure at Community House and the members of the basketball team are eager to show their appreciation for his fine work. Among the West Penn Leaguers who will take part in the game are Willie Arture, Puss Ferraro and Dick Pappert, of the Penn Five; Don Moore and Norm Grodstein, of Kingsley House, and Harry Lawrence, Eddie Kubiak, Switala, John Kubiak and Willie Lawrence, of the South Side Falcons.

An effort is being made by the sponsors of the game to have Charley Hyatt serve in the capacity of referee.

Red Crane Again Found Guilty Of Murder

HARRISBURG, Pa., March 27.—(AP.)—For the second time within seven months, Samuel (Red) Crane, a former major league baseball player, last night heard a jury return a verdict of second degree murder against him. Crane was on trial for the killing of John D. Aren, a brick salesman.

Last September a jury returned a similar verdict against Crane for killing Della Lyter, State Highway Department employe.

The jury deliberated four hours. The verdict carries a penalty of 10 to 20 years imprisonment.

COLLEGE STARS TO PLAY FOR ETNA NINE

By TOM BIRKS.

The Etna Furnitures aggregation, which crashed with a bang into the Pittsburgh Central Baseball League, is going to be classed as the collegiate club of the district, for in the list of players turned in by its officials we find Howard (Dutch) Eyth and Ted Rosensweig, stars of Carnegie Tech's football squad and real sandlot material.

Ted Rosensweig

We know of Ted Rosensweig's pitching ability. On hot July day at Verona Community Park, Universal was clashing with real club in the eliminations. Rosy was flashing his fast ball into the catcher's mitt with a thud. It is thought Rosensweig has the fastest ball on the sandlots.

Eyth, who has flashed much speed around the opposition's ends for the Plaid, will cover the short field for Etna, and Dutch will have another opportunity to show his wonderful speed. With Eddie Imhoff and Rosensweig, Etna is well fortified with two star pitchers. Heisel and Forsythe also are expected to win many games. Newman and Bill Sherman will assume the catching duties. Jock Miller will play the outfield. Charley Hyatt and Whitehill will be fighting for infield berths.

The Etna Furnitures will hold a special meeting this evening at the bowling alleys, and all players are expected to be on hand. Any new players wishing a tryout also should report.

Whitey Alperman, former sandlot star, with the Brooklyn Robins in 1910, will coach the club.

ERIE TEAMS ROLL HIGH IN A. B. C. TOURNEY

HOME B. & T. FIVE SCORES 2,838 PINS

CLEVELAND, March 27.—More American Bowling Congress money drifted Pennsylvania-ward last night when the Metal Metals Works, of Erie, stamped out 2,789 pins through games of 947, 921 and 907, and Home B. & T. (Erie) rolled 940, 907 and 911 for a total of 2,838.

The men practically carried the Metal Works load, there being Kindle and Voss. The former had a 585 series and the latter one of 637.

NEW STARS IN LEAD

That only two years of bowling can make a person a potential world champion bidder seems possible. Yet that is the situation as it confronts Joe Lusardi, of Rochester, N. Y., as a result of the 1930 he and his partner, Frank Pos, turned out in the doubles event.

Lucardi took up bowling less than two years ago and this is his first tournament. It is but the second American Bowling Congress classic in which Pocott has participated. The latter was the star of the duo as he hit off a series of 709, Lusardi getting 628. Their games were 373, 488 and 476.

Only one other change occurred among the leaders. R. F. Taylor, of Passaic, gained fifth in the all events with a 1,910. He had 624 in his team event, 657 in the doubles and 629 in the singles.

Furman and Byers, of Pittsburgh, retained their hold on the doubles leadership although threatened by Eperthner and Hinch, of Pittsburgh.

Listed for action on tonight's schedules are the Arcades of Pittsburgh, who won last year's tournament; two teams from McKeesport, Mt. Pleasant Recreations, Donora Murray Beacons and Moran Colts, of Pittsburgh. The scores:

CARNERA'S FOE FACES BAN

KANSAS CITY, March 17.—(AP.)—Harry Davis, member of the State Boxing Commission, announced today he would recommend to the commission the indefinite suspension from Missouri boxing rings of George Trafton, Chicago heavyweight, who was knocked out in 54 seconds here last night by Primo Carnera, Italian giant.

Trafton did not land a clean blow on Carnera and was counted out after three quick knockdowns. Davis said the blows that resulted in the first two trips of the Chicagoan to the canvas did not appear to have been solid enough to cause an upset. The boxing official added that he was not sure that the final blows struck by Carnera were of knockout force.

JACKIE RODGERS SUSPENDED

PHILADELPHIA, March 27.—(INS.)—The Pennsylvania State Athletic Commission for the first time in many months was forced to take action at its weekly meeting here against participants in an unlicensed boxing show held at Souderton, Pa., last week. All participants were dealt with severely.

A number of other boxers and managers also were punished at the regular weekly session, while Jack Hennessey, boxing manager, and Gabe Natos, a boxer of Harrisburg, Pa., were reinstated.

Buss Musselman, Almont, Pa., and Henry "Red" Rousch, Tylerport, Pa., boxers, had their licenses revoked. Both men were principals in the Souderton show.

Elmo Clark, New Castle boxer; Jackie Rodgers, Pittsburgh boxer, and Bobby Young, Detroit boxer, were suspended indefinitely.

Charles Gibson, Shenandoah boxer; Jimmy Ceccoli, Scranton boxer, and Jack Harley, Philadelphia boxer, were placed on the ill and unavailable list for an indefinite term, while Mike Killey, Pittsburgh battler, was suspended for 60 days.

The commissioners unanimously agreed to recognize Midget Wolgast, 19-year-old little South Philadelphia Italian, as king of the world flyweights and stipulated that before any boxer would be recognized as heavyweight king he must dispose of the claims of George Godfrey, huge Leiperville, Pa., Negro.

rounds and left the East Ender weak and tired and glad to hear the final bell.

Ray Collins, of Erie, 137 pounds, making his local debut, scored a hit in cleverly outboxing, outthinking and outpunching Johnny Smackey, of Canonsburg, 136½, in the other 10-rounder. A cool and crafty ringman, Collins carried off six of the 10 rounds, with the third and fifth even and only the fourth and tenth going to his opponent. Smackey was all at sea against the maneuvering and sharpshooting of Collins and really did not begin to fight his fight until the last round, when it was too late. Judge Ferris called the bout a draw, but the other judge and the referee voted for Collins.

Ken Hargraves, Negro of New Kensington, 130½ pounds, lost on a freakish technical knockout to Frankie Portland, of Ambridge, a substitute for Young Chiodo, of Johnstown, in the fourth round of the second bout, scheduled for six rounds. Portland had an edge of almost 10 pounds, scaling 140 pounds against 130½, and also height and reach in his favor, and, by his forcing tactics, was in front all of the way until shortly after the opening of the fourth round, when he sent home a right to the head. A moment later, Hargraves fell to the floor of the ring and began to roll around pecking at his eyes with his gloves. He was up and down again and finally, at the count of nine, he was groping along the ropes and his opponent and the referee led him to his corner, where it was found he was suffering from temporary blindness, caused by the rubbing or flicking of his opponent's glove over his uncovered eyeball. He was still in pain in his dressing room an hour later, according to Dr. M. R. Goldman, the commission physician.

GALLAGHER IS WINNER

A strong rally in the last two rounds enabled Peaches Gallagher, of Swissvale, 132 pounds, to win the decision over Jackie Griffiths, Negro, of the Hill, 135, in the six-round opener. Peaches did not fight up to the form he showed recently in stopping Griffiths in a bout in the Moose Temple. Griffiths was subbing for Frankie Moran, who has a bad hand.

Frank Brown and Frank Ferris were the judges, Red Robinson refereed all of the bouts, Max Zeugschmidt was the timer, A. C. Couch the knockdown timekeeper and Bill Schuster the announcer.

THE WORDS on the back of the package still mean what they say. No "extras," which do not contribute to the quality of the smoke, are included in the price of Camels. Just the utmost smoke-enjoyment that modern science can put into a cigarette.

That statement was on the first package of Camels manufactured and has been on every one of the billions of Camel packages sold from that day to this. When it was first written, other cigarette manufacturers were giving away flags, pictures of actresses, pictures of ball players—almost anything that would make the smoker think he was getting something extra for his money. The makers of Camels believed the smoker wanted a cigarette sold strictly on its merits, with all of its cost put into quality—a cigarette made of such excellent tobaccos—so perfectly blended—so mellow—so fragrant—that it would win its own way.

The vast popularity of Camels is a tribute to that four-square policy.

More Now Work 'On Own Account' Than in Past

—By B. C. FORBES—

WHILE many men are finding themselves compelled to give up doing business on their own account, an increasing number of men are in effect, working for their own account by putting their capital into the corporation or other enterprise employing them.

This naturally inspires a man to work wholeheartedly to make his capital grow more valuable through expanding profits.

JAMES A FARRELL, for example, has the bulk of the fortune he has earned as an employe of the United States Steel Corporation invested in his corporation's shares. Mr. Farrell began investing his surplus capital in steel shares many years ago, when his salary and his position were much lower than they are now.

By having several million dollars of his own money invested in the corporation, isn't Mr. Farrell working for his own account and his own benefit just as much as any so-called independent business man?

DANIEL WILLARD, president of the Baltimore and Ohio, early began putting most of his savings into the shares of the road. He had such faith in its ultimate future that he kept on buying B & O stock at times when it and the whole stock market impressed most people as unwarrantedly high.

There was a time when his holdings showed him a very serious loss. But Willard's faith, thanks to the ability and ceaseless energy of himself and his associates, became more and more clearly justified. And, of course, anybody and everybody who bought B. & O. stock years ago now has a very generous profit.

Could Mr. Willard have felt more incentive to work diligently had he been running a business owned solely by himself?

ALBERT H. WIGGIN, who lately has come into fame as the developer of the largest banking institution in the world, was revealed, during the Pujo investigation many years ago, as a very large owner of his own bank stock, The Chase. Therefore, the more profits he was able to make for stockholders, the more he made for himself in his capacity as a stockholder. Having much of his own money at stake, how could Mr. Wiggin feel otherwise than that he was as much in business "on his own" as any individual merchant or manufacturer having no stock-owning partners?

THE E. I. du Pont de Nemours Company in 1923 sold 843,750 General Motors common shares to the General Motors Manager Securities Company. This stock later increased in market value something like $100,000,000. The chairman of the du Pont Company once referred jokingly to a remark someone made that the company would have been $100,000,000 better off had it not sold that stock. His reply was that the du Pont Company had enjoyed more than $200,000,000 enhancement in the value of its permanent holdings of General Motors stock and that therefore he saw no reason for complaint.

There isn't a responsible executive in General Motors who, because of his holdings of General Motors stock, doesn't feel that he is working for himself as directly as he would be working did he have his own business.

THE comment may be made, "All you have said applies to high-ups, men of means. What about ordinary folks?"

Most, if not all, of these men were "ordinary folks" at the start. Not only so, but stock ownership is now being put within reach of millions of employes of all ranks, often on terms far more favorable than are available to outsiders. Whether an employe's savings (capital) amount to $1,000, $10,000, $100,000 or $1,000,000, if he has practically all of it invested in the stock of his own concern, is he not, in effect, working for his own account?

WHILE the number of individually-owned businesses may be decreasing, the off-setting fact is that there are in the United States today more capitalists—meaning owners of capital—than ever before, and more than any nation on the face of the earth in all history could match.

STOCKS CLOSE FIRM AFTER SEE-SAWING

Steel Reaches New 1930, But Slips—Huge Volume Of Sales Delays Ticker

NEW YORK, March 27.—Prices on the New York Stock Exchange bounded upward with an impressive flourish at the opening of today's market, ran into a heavy profit taking when the ticker fell far behind the market and then made irregular recovery when new leaders were brought forward in the early afternoon. So great was the volume of trading that the ticker was running about three quarters of an hour behind the market at the end of the third hour, with every indication that the day's sales would set another new high record for the year.

The mid-day selling movement received its chief impetus from an increase in the call money rate from 3½ to 4 per cent. This was accompanied by the heavy calling of loans as bankers began their semi-monthly adjustment of balances at the Federal Reserve Bank. Time money and commercial paper rates held firm.

ANACONDA RALLIES

Declaration of the regular quarterly dividend by Anaconda Copper, which many speculators felt was endangered by the unsettled conditions in the copper industry during the last few months, stimulated the afternoon recovery. Anaconda, in which a large short interest has developed, rallied at least 3 points on the announcement of the regular dividend, but was still a couple of points below the year's high established a couple of months ago.

Curiously, the public utilities led the early advance and also presented the most weak spots when the market turned reactionary. In the early upswing, American Telephone, Peoples Gas, Pacific Lighting, Stone & Webster, Public Service of New Jersey, Consolidated Gas, Commonwealth and Southern, Engineers Public Service, General Gas and Electric, American Water Works, National Power and Light, North American, Utilities Power and Light, United Gas Improvement, United Corporation and Electric Power and Light all moved into new high ground. On the break, American Water Works, American Power and Light, Columbia Gas, Western Union and several others sold down 2 to 4 points, but all made partial recovery.

WIDE GAINS MADE

Worthington Pump was marked up 6 points to 137, Allied Chemical 5½, Houston Oil 4½ to 110, General Refractories 3½ to 87½, and Electric Auto Lite 3 to 110½, all new high records. General Motors and General Electric also reached new high ground in the afternoon recovery, the former selling at 50 for the first time this year.

Outside of the Anaconda dividend, there was little in the day's business news to influence the price movement. However, the feeling has been growing in speculative circles that a general recovery in business is inevitable this spring and summer and that the current rise in the market is discounting such action. On the other hand, conservative commission houses continue to advise caution and a restriction of commitments to stocks of companies with the best earnings prospects.

Profit taking sales and bear selling on the theory that the technical position of the market warranted a setback began after U. S. Steel had reached 193½, a new top for the year, and after other leaders had also broken their previous highs. Steel slipped back 3 points. R. H. Macy lost 6 to 137¼, the year's lowest. Later buying gave a better tone to the final dealings and the close was firm. Sales approximated 5,200,000 shares.

Koppers Gas Has Rapid Development

By GEORGE H. SNYDER

RAPID expansion into the actual operation of by-product coke plants has been the outstanding development in the Koppers Company during the past decade. In January, 1927, when it became apparent that the organization was to take a constantly growing place in the production of coke, in addition to its original business of building plants for other operators, the company's production activities were transferred to a subsidiary, the Koppers Gas and Coke Company.

The Koppers Company, while primarily an engineering organization, had made large investments in the securities of public utility companies in many parts of the country. These investment activities were also transferred to the new organization, all the common stock of which was held by the parent company.

The growth of the Koppers Gas and Coke Company in the three years of its exitsence has been impressive. Its balance sheet at the close of 1927 showed total assets of $78,699,847 and a surplus of $735,192. At the end of 1929 its total assets had reached $143,855,562 and its surplus had increased to $8,574,227.

Earnings Increase

THE subsidiary reported for 1929 net profits of $6,600,066 after taxes, depreciation and interest. This was equivalent to $33 a share on the 200,000 shares of 6 per cent preferred stock which are in public hands. It compared with $3,795,874 or $18.98 a share on the preferred stock in 1928. Earnings in both years were smaller than net profit of $9,580,223 in 1927. This was due to the fact that that year's income included $4,621,123 in non-recurring profit from the sale of the interest in the Chicago By-Product Coke Company to the People Gas Light and Coke Company under an option. The year's income also included a share in the earnings of the Chicago plant.

At the close of 1929 the Koppers Gas and Coke Company carried its investment in plants at $25,503,027. Against this reserves for depreciation of $11,286,467 had been established.

Plants which the organization operates either entirely or jointly with other companies are located in Jersey City, N. J., St. Paul, Minn., Boston, Mass., New Haven, Conn., Philadelphia, Pa., Montreal, Que., Hamilton, O., Chicago, Ill., and Brooklyn, N. Y.

Investment Activities

WHILE Koppers Gas operates as a holding company for these organizations which sell their gas to utilities and market their coke and by-products, in some respects the company may be compared to an investment trust.

It had total investments of $89,921,475 at the end of 1929. This compared with $45,166,889 at the close of 1928 and $28,722,061 at the end of 1927.

The last balance sheet showed that $58,507,347 of the investment was in the securities of allied companies. In addition to this $31,214,128 was in other securities. These had a market value of $53,961,623 on December 31. A year before securities costing $29,632,709 had a market value of $45,454,331.

Holdings in Utilities

THE list of investments has not been published, but it is understood that it is largely in public utility organizations. Recently a large interest was purchased in the United States Electric Power Corporation. Last July it was announced that the Koppers Gas and Coke Company and individuals associated with it had secured control of the Massachusetts Gas Companies and a minority interest in Eastern Gas and Coke Associates.

At present Koppers Gas has a funded debt of $48,050,000. Its subsidiaries have $861,775 of funded debt and preferred stock outstanding. Current assets at the close of 1929 amounted to $25,407,266 against current liabilities of $6,506,359. Cash amounted to $7,531,702.

Analysis of the company's gross income of $11,078,852 for 1929 showed that $4,200,254 was derived from operations, $1,910,715 was profit from the sale of securities and $4,967,882 was secured in dividends and interest.

American Tobacco February Sales Show Gain

NEW YORK, March 27. American Tobacco Company in February sold approximately 429,000,000 more Lucky Strike cigarets than in February, 1929. This brought the gain in sales of this brand to 1,128,000,000 for the first two months. Sales of Cremo cigars by American Cigar Company in the first two months increased over 24,000,000.

During two months, production of cigarets in the United States for domestic consumption as reported by the Internal Revenue Bureau gained 450,475,187. During the same period the entire industry reported a decline of 19,770,161 in production of all classes of cigars.

PIG IRON SALES IMPROVE

CLEVELAND, March 27.—Little change is noted in the rate on incoming tonnage in steel bars, shapes and plates, according to Daily Metal Trades. Business is holding at about the early March level though specifications appear slow to brotden. New business in autobody and common black sheets has enabled valley producers to step up operations slightly, while at Chicago wire producers report fairly encouraging bookings of common wire products for the agricultural districts.

Strip steel production is holding up fairly well though contracting for second quarter is not imposing. Specifications for cold-finished steel bars are fairly numerous but the tonnage involved still is light. Shipments of semi-finished steel at Chicago are less deferred than was the case a month ago. Some improvement in pig iron demand is reported.

DAILY TRUE STORY

The 'Nit-Wit'

"GOSH!" muttered Harvey Norton.

He stared hard at a mighty pretty girl with copper hair, a pert nose, kissable lips and a sort of Clara Bow personality.

The girl, Fay Somers, didn't even notice Harvey. She was in her father's car at the freight station, waiting for him to come out.

Harvey was delivering avocado pears from his grandmother's little ranch up in the foothills. And he wasn't the first young man—or old one for that matter—to stare long and approvingly at Fay Somers.

More sophisticated males had muttered "An eyeful" or "Oh, baby," or some equally eloquent expression.

Mr. Somers came out and drove away. Harvey finished his business and drove to his grandmother's little place.

When he got back he said: "I saw a girl—I mean an awful pretty girl, Gram."

"Like as not, Harvey. When boys get your age they begin to see pretty girls. It would be a foolish world if they didn't."

"Yes, Gram'" he answered, without changing expression.

That was a peculiarity of Harvey Norton. No matter what was said or done he seemed to have no change in facial expression.

When he went to the country school the others thought he was sort of dumb and made fun of him. But while they continued to more or less make fun of him, they realized that he was not at all dumb. He was the star scholar.

So when Grandma Norton who had reared Harvey since he was a baby, because a railroad accident had left him an orphan, saw that Harvey had all the schooling procurable in the high school down in the valley, she insisted that he go to a small but good college that was up-state way toward San Francisco, but inland pretty well.

Grandma was not all wealthy. Harvey objected. He said: "I can clear and plant a lot more acres of the avocados, Gram' and we'll make more money."

"You'll go to college and get educated so's you can be somebody," Gram answerpd.

Never Disputed Her

"Yes, Gram.'"

Harvey never disputed her. No one, parent or grandparent, ever had a more dutiful boy to bring up.

But Harvey was planning to find work to put himself through the college without cost to his adorable grandmother.

The college was co-educational. Harvey matriculated easily. And the second day he was there he paused and muttered, "Gosh!"

Here was the same mighty pretty girl with the copper hair, pert nose, kissable lips and Clara Bow personality. They used movie stars for similes out that way, being so close to Hollywood.

The girl, Fay Somers, gave a sort of impersonal glance at Harvey and forgot him.

Harvey was sized up by the other boys. They wanted to find candidates for sports, glee club and all sorts of college activities.

He was questioned, sounded out.

"No, thank you," poor Harvey had to say to every proposition.

The reason was that he couldn't afford any extras. Perhaps he could have played some instrument, but he couldn't afford one. He could sing, but couldn't afford to buy the sporty clothes necessary for glee club events.

He already had two jobs out of study and class hours, and was self supporting.

But he had been named the "Nit-wit."

It was a name that stuck.

Nothing moved Harvey. He didn't mind that—he plugged right along.

That is, nothing seemed to stir Harvey except Fay Somers. Poor chap! He'd stand and stare at her with that lack of expression that had helped him to get his title, and no one would have suspected that his stout heart was thumping violently.

Of course he got so that he spoke to Fay.

And Fay would say: "Hello, what's on your mind, if any?"

That always got a laugh. Fay thrived on laughter and was clever at creating it.

It got so that more in good nature and a matter of habit than anything else, they called Harvey "Nit-wit" to his face, just as they called the hideously ugly Sim Ogilive "Adonis."

One day Fay saw Harvey. She was with a group of friends.

Earned His Way

"Hello, Nit-Wit," what's on your mind—if any?" she asked.

"You," said Harvey, looking straight at her.

The others laughed. Fay stared at him and didn't laugh, for some reason or other. Somehow the face of Harvey wasn't so expressionless. At least his eyes were clear and deep and alight with sincere admiration.

When Harvey finished his first year he brought back all the money has grandmother had sent him. He had more than earned his way.

The second year passed uneventfully, except that Fay Somers got Harvey to help her with two languages because it was well known that Harvey excelled in them.

Somehow Fay found that Harvey could help her more than any of the professors.

Harvey got up courage enough one day to say, "I suppose you'll go in the movies?"

Fay laughed. Her father was wealthy, although she never mentioned that.

In the third year Harvey was able to buy as good clothes as anyone. To Fay's surprise, he could dance, and dance well.

After a dance with her Harvey said: "I don't suppose you'd marry me and live on our ranch after college, would you, Fay?"

"No, I don't suppose I would," she said, kindly.

"I was afraid you wouldn't."

Some of Fay's girl friends thought it a good joke that "Nit-wit" Norton had proposed to Fay, the prettiest and most popular girl in the class.

That was the year a picture company sent an outfit up to the school to get the background for a college picture.

That was also the year that Fay's father had financial reverses.

Fay hoped she could get into pictures, since she had to do something. But Fay was one of those pretty girls who photograph horribly.

Burton, an assistant director, had assured Fay that he would make a star of her. Harvey overheard him. Harvey, who had easily picked up some work to do with the outfit, holding reflectors, assembling groups and being otherwise handy, had already seen some of the tests and knew that Fay couldn't get over.

Sort of Guardian

So when he saw Fay start off with Burton in his car that night he decided to appoint himself a sort of guardian.

He trailed them in his little tin car, discreetly back. From a hill top he saw the old stunt put over, stalling the car. He couldn't see very plainly except that he did finally see Fay running down the wide white highway and then the man after her.

Harvey drove down in time to see Burton overtake Fay.

He stopped and got out.

"What's the idea?" Harvey asked.

"I'll show you, buttinsky," Burton said, and he took a swift poke at Harvey. It rattled his teeth. Harvey poked back. Burton found himself sitting in the middle of the road. Something seemed to be wrong with his lips and teeth. That was where the "Nit-wit" had poked back at him.

But Burton wasn't done for. He had plenty of strength left—so much that when Harvey went for him again he was able to leap up and make a plunge—in the other direction.

On the way back Fay cried a little. That distressed Harvey.

He told her why he had followed her—because he had seen that she didn't photograph well at all, and when Burton told her he'd make a star out of her he simply lied.

"Not so bad for a Nit-wit, was it, Fay?" he asked.

Fay only sobbed a little more.

He left Fay at her door and overheard one of her girl friends cry, "For goodness sake, Fay, don't tell me you're wasting your time on the Nit-wit and his tin car?"

Laugh at Harvey

Harvey couldn't hear the answer.

They shot some more stuff the next day, the college boys and girls being delighted with the chance to get in, except Harvey.

"You'd have to pay ordinary extras," he said, "and I'm not wasting my talents."

That got a laugh until Creston, the director, got Harvey aside and asked him about Burton.

"He run into something," was all Harvey would say, and then: "Isn't there some sort of work Miss Somers can do? She's mighty smart. She might hold script or help in the publicity department—and she's a fine girl."

Creston said he got him and would see what could be done.

Harvey knew Fay would have to quit college at the end of that year. He began to pull other wires with some of the faculty, who liked him and knew how clever he really was.

The result was that Fay got a good position with this company.

"Do you think I'd have a chance if I came down to see you after I'm through college?" Harvey asked her.

"I'm sure of it, Harvey—sure of it. I know—I was told about your getting me this work—and——"

"Gosh, Fay—if it makes you cry to think of marrying me next year, you better——"

"You darling Nit-wit," cried Fay.

That Fay Somers could be so dumb as to become engaged to Nit-wit Norton was the joke of the little college.

That is, it was a joke until a couple of years later, when Harvey Norton became an overnight celebrity as an eccentric screen comedian and Fay Somers gained some fame by writing his original comedies.

It was that "nit-wit" expression of his that did the trick.

Of course, the original comedy by Fay Somers—her name in private life being Mrs. Harvey Norton—with the title of "THE NIT-WIT," was a big factor in the "making" of Harvey.

Right now Fay is up on the great big ranch with Gram Norton and little Nit-wit, Jr.

I'VE NEVER TRUSTED HER SINCE SHE GOT A SAMPLE OF BREAKFAST FOOD THAT I KNOW WAS LEFT IN THE HALL FOR ME.
THERE SHE IS NOW LOOKING OVER HERE. HOW DIGNIFIED SHE TRIES TO APPEAR WHILE BOWING. WELL IT TAKES MORE THAN A LITTLE OFF-HAND POLITENESS TO PULL THE WOOL OVER MY EYES.

Of course, the new practice of giving pep talks by sound film is a step in the right direction. But it doesn't go far enough.

It makes things more convenient for the talker. But the audience suffers just as much as usual.

So why not have sound films made of the audience?

Then speakers, or those with a desire to speak, can talk harmlessly, painlessly (and by running the film over and over again) as long as they like.

Be that as it may, a news item says—

Tariff Legislation Stands In the Way of Prosperity

With the coming of spring the American people will soon see their seven thousand million dollar building program for public works and public utilities in full swing all over the country.

And the expenditure of this vast sum of money in 1930 will mean new employment for hundreds of thousands of wage-earners, new business for nearly every major industry, and new encouragement to business generally.

Detailed reports obtained by the National Business Survey Conference afford a sound basis for confidence in the steady improvement of general business conditions.

These reports can be relied upon for two reasons. They come largely from trade associations. And they are compiled by men whom long experience has taught the real meaning of trends and factors in their respective lines.

These reports show that the country is steadily overcoming those obstacles which only a few months ago threatened to retire an early return to a business-as-usual schedule. And they give new evidence of the influence upon the return of prosperity of the seven thousand million dollar building program which is now starting all over the country.

Bond issues for the last two months were 33 PER CENT LARGER THAN THE SAME PERIOD LAST YEAR and bond prices have turned upward.

Funds for long and short time securities are generally increasing and the outlook in the investment field is shown to be generally favorable.

There is an easing of bank credits all over the country and the increase in bank loans shows that funds are going into trade again.

New February business for life insurance companies is more than ONE THOUSAND MILLION DOLLARS, WHICH IS THREE PER CENT MORE THAN FOR THE SAME PERIOD LAST YEAR.

In almost every section of the country building and loan associations report a marked increase in receipts over those for the closing months of last year.

Farm loans show a slight increase, but there is a marked decrease in delinquencies and foreclosures as compared with the last two years.

Installment sales are almost equal to last year.

Shipbuilding yards employed last month 28 PER CENT MORE MEN THAN FEBRUARY A YEAR AGO and there will be large additions to their force as soon as the government speeds up its award of new ocean mail contracts, which will require more new construction.

The main obstacle in the way of returning prosperity is the mess which Congress has made of tariff legislation. First the House passed an extortionately high tariff bill. And now the Senate, after six months' dwadling, has framed a tariff bill that is as bad.

Once tariff legislation is out of the way the chief cause of business uncertainty will be eliminated.

That is why every American interested in speeding up the return of prosperity owes it to his own welfare to rebuke the Senate and House of Representatives for the mess that they have made of tariff legislation. IT IS NOT ONLY A DISGRACE TO THE PARTY IN POWER, BUT A BRAKE UPON THE WHEELS OF RETURNING PROSPERITY.

Junior League Engaged On Play for Children

The Junior League, members of which are young society women, is preparing to present a play designed especially to amuse children, "The Wizard of Oz," at two special matinees in the Pitt Theater April 5 and 12, the hour for each date being 10:30 o'clock. This activity is in line with a feature of the program of the national organization with which the local Junior League is affiliated.

One must admire young women sponsoring such an endeavor. There are no lack of plays these days, certainly, but few of them are suitable for children, let alone being produced essentially for them. We have an occasional show of marionettes and an occasional children's concert, but aside from these there has been little entertainment especially prepared for the juvenile mind and taste.

To meet the need for this is one of the purposes of the Junior League, the existence of which appears to be proof that "society" of the present day has a serious aim and is not devoted merely to amusing itself. Although the membership of the Junior League is composed of the socially elect it fosters and engages in various worthy activities not at all associated with the frivolous things that are popularly supposed to occupy the Four Hundred.

Study is one of them. Welfare work is another. Another is the activity in behalf of a children's theater such as will be represented in the matinees mentioned next month.

"A Well-Bred Beast"

And a King.

King George of England, much loved in his own land, much respected in this, outside of Chicago, has six rules of conduct. They are:

"Teach me to be obedient to the rules of the game.

"Teach me to distinguish between sentiment and sentimentality, admiring the one, despising the other.

"Teach me neither to proffer nor to receive cheap praise.

"Teach me to win, if I may; if I may not win, then, above all, teach me to be a good loser.

"Teach me neither to cry for the moon nor over spilt milk.

"If I am called upon to suffer, let me be like a well-bred beast that goes to suffer in silence."

Not a bad set of maxims.

The King keeps them hung up on the walls of his library at Sandringham, so that he won't forget them. Many American executives have the same habit, though not the same rules.

Slogans here are apt to be:

"Do It Now."

"Keep Smiling."

Or variations of those two themes.

Probably nobody in our government, and few in business, ever objected to receiving "cheap praise." And certainly nobody ever prayed that he might bear suffering "like a well-bred beast." That would sound entirely too undignified.

A king, however, doesn't have to think about his dignity as we do in a republic.

"The Ancient Mariner"

Drawn by Nelson Harding

"Down dropped the breeze, the sails dropped down,
'Twas sad as sad could be
And we did speak only to break
The silence of the sea.

"Day after day, day after day,
We stuck, nor breath, nor motion
As idle as a painted ship
Upon a painted ocean."

—Rime of the Ancient Mariner.

LAY A BET ON JOHNNY

By Herbert Kaufman

WHEN YOU were a boy, round steak was ten cents a pound and the butcher threw in a soup bone and a hunk of liver for LAGNIAPPE.

When YOU were a boy, a nice home could be had for fifteen dollars a month, and an all-wool suit purchased for five.

When YOU were a boy, anthracite was four dollars a ton, working shoes, one dollar a pair, and "dress" shirts retailed at fifty cents.

When YOU were a boy, businesses were small; the boss knew all his help by name, constantly contacted with them, personally delivered praise and censure, and was "guide, philosopher and friend" of the whole organization.

But Johnny lives in an era of short rations, high rents and cotton-mixed clothes. He's a ward of scientific management, with a bundle of charts and graphs where its "soft spot" OUGHT to be.

HE doesn't exist as a HUMAN BEING; He's just a minor COG on one of the many wheels of a great trade machine.

He knows nothing about the business except his own restricted and intensive task. He's cubby holed in an isolated department and shut off from the rest of the works.

As he aspires to advance, his promotion will be challenged by more qualified folk—better nourished, constitutionally stronger, sounder trained youths, who START IN with a fuller education than he'll END with.

He's handicapped from the very scratch; neither his body nor his brain has a chance to feed upon the RIGHT food like a prematurely ridden foal, he'll be BROKEN DOWN before he's broken in—dull minded and over strained before his faculties are fairly tempered.

MEANWHILE, you'll continue to pay him the market LEAST for which his services may be obtained. In accordance with prevailing practice, you'll grind him down to the last penny of wage. And when his utility and vitality are exhausted, he'll be effaced and replaced without a balance sheet qualm.

Aside from the fact that it is your enlightened duty to contribute as far as possible to the efficiency of tomorrow, by improving the quality of future citizens—waiving all consideration of generosity and sentiment, and eliminating every question of emotion, tenderness or charity—it's an EVEN break that you're cheating your OWN interests in overlooking his.

Johnny may not be the ONLY one now being robbed of opportunity. You're just as likely hurting YOURSELF when you DON'T help him.

JOHNNY is STILL at an age where character, habits and ideals are plastic and impressionable. He's a colt ready for an expert trainer's hands; young enough to grow OUT of or into anything. But, his rut's too narrow to develop a winning gait. The stride of a thoroughbred may be lurking in his unexercised and thwarted capacities.

Coach him on right and some day, when your fortunes are at stake, who knows but what he'll save your colors?

Don't base his worth on PRESENT performance. Lay a slight bet on possibility at DARK-HORSE odds; give him a real living wage and charge the trifling difference to the SUSPENSE, account or deferred profit.

Recall how often concerns have been reblooded, by partners who began as cash boys, bundle wrappers and messengers, and realize that a wise employer is never so HARD-HEADED as when he is SOFT-HEARTED.

∴ LISTEN, WORLD ∴

By Elsie Robinson

"EVERY WOMAN IS ALL WOMEN."

That's what Norma Shearer tells Gladys Hall in the April number of Motion Picture. "In the heart of every woman is the good woman, and the bad woman, and the woman between the two. The mother. The wanton. The nun. The adventuress. I am all of these women; you are all of these women. Not one of us can see one of them without saying: 'There, but for the grace of God, go I.'"

That's true of women—it's also true of men. Whatever your sex or outward appearance, you have hidden within you the makings of ALL characters.

What kind of a person is he?" you often ask. He's YOUR kind of a person. All those secret feelings which you think you alone possess—those odd dreams, those prickly dislikes, those great hopes, those haunting despairs, those streaks of vulgarity and viciousness—he has them, too. Rich man, poor man, beggar man, thief—THEY ARE ALL OF A PIECE WITH YOU.

Circumstances and training may have made them ACT differently and THINK differently—but they all FEEL the same. The brotherhood of man isn't just a poetical phrase. It's a chemical fact—a glandular fact. Whether you like it or not, lady, you and Judy O'Grady are sisters under your skins.

It's amazing how life changes when we accept this fact. Your life—for example. You're having a pretty miserable time—aren't you? — thinking how lonely you are and how bewildered and misunderstood. You look at other people. They seem so happy, so confident and contented. Or else so stupid and stolid — beyond the reach of any feeling. Other people have all the luck! Poor you! So you go glooming around, all steamed up with self-pity.

Well, get over it. Stop thinking that you're a de luxe edition. You're not. You're not feeling a single thing that every one else in the world hasn't also felt or isn't about to feel. Maybe that statement peeves you a bit? Hurts your vanity? But if you'll believe that fact and get used to it you will find that it's Big Medicine for what ails you. It will cure you of loneliness and heal you of intolerance.

AND THE LOAD ON YOUR OWN NECK WILL LIGHTEN WHEN YOU REALIZE THAT ALL OTHER NECKS ARE CARRYING THE SAME BURDEN.

Isn't It So?

Some people would rather be right than regular.

A poor excuse may be better than none, but the trouble is you can't always think of it when you want it.

The average man would howl louder if the women quit using beauty aids than he does now because they do use them.

THE SCIENCE OF LIFE

By H. G. WELLS

In Collaboration With

Prof. Julian Huxley and George P. Wells.

BESIDES the teeth and toes, other characters, too, show steady parallel changes as we go back through time. The earlier forms had shorter necks and faces, less tightly-fitted wrists and ankles, two separate bones instead of one in the lower arm and leg.

H. G. Wells.

In a word, as we go back we find horses less and less efficiently adapted for swift running and for grinding hard, vegetable food, and more and more like the other generalized mammals of the early Eocene (VA1).

The existence of the three-toed horses in the past acquires a double significance when we remember that every individual one-toed horse of today actually passes through a three-toed stage in its embryonic development.

In a six-weeks embryo the limbs are short; two separate bones are present to make the skeleton of the forearm; the wrist and foot are short, and the middle toe is flanked by two other smaller but perfectly formed toes, each complete with the same number of joints as the center toe.

At eight weeks the two side toes are on the way to become mere splints, but they still show the full number of joints. They eventually develop a cross between a nail and a hoof at their tip, and this later grows into a regular hoof.

Not until some weeks after birth do the separate joint surfaces disappear and the three end joints coalesce with each other and with the elongated first joint to form the little buttons that tip the two splint-bones.

Thus the three-toed state occurs twice, in two different ways, in the history of horses. It occurred as a stage in the past history of the race; and it occurs as a stage in the development of every modern one-toed individual; the current stage recapitulates the three-toed past in its own embryo person.

All this in broad outline was known more than half a century ago, when isolated representatives of all our four main stages had already been described, and the general trend of horse evolution correctly deduced from them.

But today we have more than the broad outline; we are able to fill in the details. It is amazing how fine the detail has now become.

The amount of material at our disposal is enormous. In this single-horse stock, beginning with the little four-toed creatures from the Eocene (VA) and ending with the forms alive today, a total of over two hundred and sixty species have now been distinguished and named.

It is, of course, true that in a continuously changing life-flow like this, species, genera, and families become merely arbitrary, since no sharp lines can be drawn.

But even a continuous melody is divided up into bars; and the naming of two hundred and sixty species of fossil horses means roughly that we may chop up the continuously written record into two hundred and sixty pieces, making the difference between each piece and the next about equal to that found between forms resognized as species in the average abundant and variable family living today.

Actually, however, in many cases the species and genera of fossil horses which were readily separated in early days have simply blended into each other as new material came to light.

Sharp breaks in fossil history appear always to be the result of poverty of finds. Furthermore, not only are there these hundreds of types, but of many single types hundreds or even thousands of specimens have been unearthed. Occasionally the specimens are complete, but more often they are fragmentary, the skull (and specially the lower jaw) being perhaps most commonly found.

All together, the specimens of evolving horses now in the museums of the world run into several tens of thousands.

Even of the Lower Pliocene (VD1) three-toed forms alone, at least 10,000 have been collected; and though they come from many localities in Europe, North Africa, Asia Minor, India, Persia, Mongolia, China and North America, all of them agree with one another in their testimony with regard to the evolution of teeth and feet.

There are two complications of the horse's history.

NEW YORK DAY BY DAY

By O. O. McIntyre

NEW YORK, March 27.—It is proverbial that men and women gain the heights in New York at an almost total sacrifice of human companionship. With wealth and honor comes a monastic isolation. One enormously rich man can count only six who have not used his friendship for them for personal advantage.

This is the chief reason why such fortunes take to private yachts to roam the seven seas or to moated Long Island castles. Ninety per cent of the mail of John D. Rockefeller and his son and J. P. Morgan consists of charity requests or asking personal favors.

The multi-millionaire has thus become almost as inaccessible as the monk in his cloister. Even in my time in New York one saw the head-lined financiers at the opera, at the play and concerts. And they frequently enjoyed promenades in the park and on the avenue. But not anymore.

In the past few years they have acquired the neurotic remoteness of sanitarium invalids. They arrive at their places of business by secret entrances and are whisked to their offices by private elevators. In other days a single secretary acted as a buffer between them and the public.

Today one must often run the gauntlet of a half dozen before reaching the inner sanctum. It is such a tiresome process that few care to endure it. And as for reaching such notables on the telephone, even the most intimate friends find such contacts well nigh impossible.

When they ask over the phone for a big shot they are immediately given a private secretary who, before he is told who is at the other end of the phone, announces: "Mr. Blank is not in the city." This has become a set formula and averts embarrassment.

Then by a process of questioning the secretary learns who is speaking and if the telephone caller is considered important enough he is later called up. Multi-millionaires do not attend public dinners as a rule and their circle of intimates is narrowed to a handful.

Those who declared Marc Connolly could not write a play without a collaborator are thinking up something else. Connolly wrote several hits with George S. Kaufman and when they separated authored a flop or so. Kaufman was supposed to be the genius of the combination. Yet Connolly's "Green Pastures" with an all Negro cast is the outstanding theatrical smash—and deservedly—of five seasons. It is the finest performance this writer has seen lately in the theater. Connolly is a product of Pittsburgh and began his career as a newspaper reporter. He spent three years writing his masterpiece.

Stories told at dinner parties often fizzle in print like a wet fire-cracker. One I heard last night convulsed a large gathering. I put it on paper this morning, let four people read it and not one smiled. Tough, this column business!

They are now tippling tea in the East Side slums. Many little tenement flats have become tea rooms in the late afternoon. Neighbors gather and discuss vicissitudes of life. Tea is sold for five cents a cup and patrons bring along their own salami and rye bread.

A new hotel features a room key that, with the locking of a room door, automatically turns out all the room lights, indicates to the front desk and telephone exchange that the room is vacant, pulls down the blinds and, we suppose, sharpens your skates.

ONCE OVERS

By J. J. Mundy

HOW do you accept a reprimand that you deserve?

Do you feel antagonistic to the person who censures even when you know that you are at fault?

You know how easy it is for you to make the same mistake again and again if it does not bring you individual harm or a call-down from the boss.

There may be some excuse for the first mistake, but when you repeat it it is hardly excusable.

It should not be necessary for any one to call your attention to a mistake of the same nature as a previous one.

If you have just ordinary brains you will not be that sort of offender.

If you do not exercise enough care to overcome mistakes you deserve reproof.

Do you ever go over your work in the evening when you are quiet at home?

Do you try to think how you might have improved it and charge yourself with some way to avoid errors?

Would you tolerate the sort of work you give if you were the boss?

Don't be foolish enough to think that any improvement you might make in your work results in benefit only to your employer, because it's important to you.
